Britain Sends Eden to Paris To Calm Fears On Navy Pact

May Be Met With Demand for Pledge

Reich Building Program Faces Delay From Lack of Materials.

The Situation Abroad.

In London it was believed the fate of the proposed Western air pact hangs on Anglo-French relations.

French officials are expected to ask Capt. Anthony Eden, British cabinet minister, for a pledge of naval aid against German attack.

In Berlin, lack of raw materials was seen likely to slow the pace of the Reich's 390,595-ton building program.

By the Associated Press.

London, June 20.—With the future of Anglo-French relations and the fate of the proposed western European air pact apparently hanging in the balance, Capt. Anthony Eden journeyed to Paris today to explain the new Anglo-German naval agreement to displeased Frenchmen.

Diplomatic quarters here discussed hints that France might take moves to "retaliate" for the understanding as Britain's 38-year-old ace negotiator, on his first assignment since the recent government shake-up hoisted him to full cabinet rank, conferred with Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin before leaving.

The conversations at Paris were regarded as the most momentous since British and French cabinet ministers met here in February to draft the joint Anglo-French declaration on European security.

Goes to Italy Later.

Capt. Eden also will go to Italy to meet Premier Benito Mussolini after his Paris visit, it was officially announced tonight.

He will "discuss with Mussolini the same questions which will form the subject of his talk in Paris, namely, the naval question and the next steps to be taken toward a western air pact," the announcement said, adding that Mussolini welcomed Britain's proposal for Eden's visit.

One persistent report circulated here was that France would decline to join England in new representations to Lithuania concerning treatment of the German population in Memel. A signatory of the Memel statute, France heretofore has signed notes to Lituania.

British officials, however, said confidently that France's withdrawal at this stage was "extremely unlikely."

Calm French Fears.

For the moment, the most urgent problem facing Eden was to calm French fears regarding the Anglo-German agreement.

(Paris dispatches said Premier Pierre Laval might ask Eden for the promise of British naval aid should Adolf Hitler's new fleet attack France, this to bulwark the Anglo-French understanding which the French regarded as shaken by Britain's independent action.

In Berlin, meanwhile, unofficial calculators estimated the agreemet would let the Reich add 390,595 tons to its present fleet, but observers said lack of raw materials might slow up construction of new ships.)

Prime Minister Baldwin told the House of Commons this afternoon the Anglo-German agreement "furnishes a fixed point of departure for further discussion with other powers and does not alter the final object, the ultimate conclusion of a general naval treaty."

He reproached a questioner for suggesting that Germany reserved the right to meet naval armament increases of other powers, pointing out that Britain by virtue of the pact alone controls the rate both of British and German naval construction.

Eden, it was learned, will investigate the possibility of France's joining the four other Locarno signatories—Britain, Germany, Belgium and Italy—in an early conference to put the proposed pact for mutual aerial assistance into effect.

A definite reply on this matter

League Is Told To Stay Out Of African Tilt

Mussolini Warns Italy Will Quit; Ethiopia Invites Inquiry.

Italo-Ethiopian Situation.

Italy was reported ready to quit the League of Nations if the council interferes in her dispute with Ethiopia.

Ethiopia filed a new protest with the league, charging Italy is preparing to make war against her.

In Addis Ababa, an Ethiopian tore an Italian flag from a legation automobile.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, June 20.—Italy tonight was authoritatively reported ready to follow Japan and Germany out of the League of Nations if the league council intervenes in her dispute with Ethiopia.

That threat was voiced in high quarters after Ethiopia, in another note to Geneva, invoked Article 10 of the league covenant binding league members to respect the independence and territorial integrity of other nations.

Other Developments.

Two other developments in the course of the day served to emphasize the growing tension between the European and the African kingdoms:

1. The foreign office received information that an Ethiopian aviator had torn the flag from an Italian Legation automobile at Addis Ababa, and that the Italian minister there had protested vigorously.

2. A front-page article in the usually authoritative, sometimes officially inspired, Giornale d'Italia said Ethiopia should be ousted from the league because of her alleged non-fulfillment of conditions under which she entered the Geneva body.

The Italian government does not regard its controversy with Ethiopia as within the league's competence, it was stated. This contention was outlined in the publication Affari Esteri (Foreign Affairs), which said:

"Italy Indifferent."

Referring to Articles 10 and 15 of the league covenant (the articles Ethiopia invoked in several appeals), the publication said "such references leave Italy completely indifferent," and declared Article 10, which guarantees the territorial integrity of nations, does not apply because it has been vitiated by the league's non-application of Article

Battle Park Slayer Makes A Confession

Attacker of Fannie Kurz and Man Reenacted Crime, U.S. Hints.

Earl Conner Williams, 23, colored, yesterday was named as the murderer a year ago of Fannie Kurz, 21, in Lovers Lane near Fredericksburg, Va.

J. Edgar Hoover, Bureau of Investigation chief, announced his men received a confession from the prisoner, now held secretly in Washington, supposedly at the District Jail.

Williams was linked with the case after his arrest for vagrancy May 28 by C. L. Pace, a deputy sheriff, in Iuka, Miss.

Hoover hinted the crime was reenacted yesterday when the prisoner was taken to the quiet recesses of Battlefield Park in Spotsylvania County by Federal agents and questioned at the spot where Miss Kurz and her fiance, George Milton Brown, 24, were dragged from their car, clubbed until insensible, robbed and tossed into a ravine the night of May 20, 1934.

Girl Was in Coma Three Days.

Miss Kurz remained in a coma until she died three days later. Brown regained consciousness after 11 days and finally recovered. But he remembered nothing of the night's tragedy.

The motive, Hoover said, remained undetermined. He added, however, that Brown's pockets were rifled of $25. Hoover said Williams was known as a moron and suspected of attacks on other white women, though he did not have a criminal record.

Miss Kurz, Hoover reported, was not criminally attacked.

Few, if any residents of Fredericksburg, where a mob outbreak was feared barely a year ago, knew of Williams' arrest or of his return to the battlefield yesterday. Agents guarded their movements until they believed the crime was solved.

Justice operatives entered the man hunt because the murder was committed on Federal property.

Murder Charge Is Due.

Hoover announced a formal charge of murder would be preferred against Williams today in Richmond by a United States attorney. He waived extradition from Mississippi.

Obviously pleased by the part the Justice Department played in the crime, Hoover detailed the circumstances which led to the confession.

Brown was beaten so severely he was unable to tell a coherent account of what happened.

Justice agents, however, learned the description of a colored man who an hour before the Kurz-Brown attack approached the car of another couple in the Virginia trysting place and ordered them to "git out!" Before they could comply the assailant fled at the approach of another machine. The colored man carried an iron pipe.

His description—reported to tally with that of Williams — and his method of operating were circularized to all law enforcement officials in the country by Uncle Sam.

Bulletin Sent Out.

A formal Justice Department announcement added:

"Believing Williams answered the description of the individual sought by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the murder of Fannie Kurz and the assault on George Milton Brown * * * Pace contacted the special agent in charge of the bureau's Birmingham office, with the result that Williams was turned over to agents of the bureau, and, after questioning, confessed to bureau agents that he was responsible for the murder and assault on the above-named victims."

Hoover described Williams as possessing "dark gingercake" skin and said he was born in Texarkana, Tex., May 18, 1912, but had no "real home."

COL. CHARLES LINDBERGH.

Lindbergh Invents Glass Lung And Heart as Aid to Medicine

Flier Turned Scientist Teams With Dr. Carrel, Nobel Prize Winner, to Enable Doctors to Keep Parts of Body Alive.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 20.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, turned scientist, has made an artificial heart and lungs at the Rockefeller Institute, making possible success in a century-long quest of medicine to cause whole parts of the body to live indefinitely and even grow in glass chambers, where they are placed and revived after surgical death.

The announcement was made tonight in Science. Lindbergh teamed with Dr. Alexis Carrel and signs the story with him. Dr. Carrell already has the Nobel Prize for similar work in making "tissues" live under glass.

But the new achievement has nothing to do with the old tissue culture, the announcement explains.

Whole organs not only live but grow. They offer a new field of discovering the nature of disease and its cure, its internal cause directly visible under the scientists' eyes.

26 Experiments Succeed.

Twenty-six times, the announcement states, the new Lindbergh pump has worked successfully. Spleens, hearts, kidneys thyroids, ovaries, and suprarenal glands were revived, lived indefinitely. They were taken from animals an hour after they had bled to death.

For 123 years this has been attempted. Of late there had been some temporary success, the organs lived a while.

But infection, which got into them in their artificial houses the same as in living bodies, cut their after-life short. The Lindbergh pump solves this problem, being so mechanically perfect that no infection enters.

The pump, an artificial heart and lungs combined, is not described. At the institute information about it was refused with the statement that it will be divulged later in the institute's own publication.

However, the announcement reveals that Lindbergh made the first step in 1931 and that he was the author of an unsigned announcement then in Science describing a new apparatus made at the institute's division of experimental surgery.

Hauptmann's Appeal Calls Trial 'Unfair'

14 Judges to Decide in Fall; Prisoner's Wife Barred From Court.

By the United Press.

Trenton, N. J., June 20.—Sitting behind locked doors for nearly five hours, 14 black-robed jurists comprising the Court of Errors and Appeals today withheld decision on Bruno Richard Hauptmann's appeal for a new trial.

The convicted murderer of the Lindbergh baby brooded in his death-house cell while his counsel argued that he was unfairly tried by his Flemington jury, that the shocking abduction was an "inside job" and that the State abruptly changed its theory of the crime during the course of the sensational trial.

The high court will digest the opposing briefs during the summer and reconvene either late in September or early in October.

Defense arguments to save the taciturn German carpenter from the electric chair were heard during the morning session of the closed hearing.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz, who conducted Hauptmann's prosecution, responded bitingly to the defense charges that he injected personal opinion in his summation and violated the defendant's constitutional rights.

"I said then that he was public

Cummings to Have Agents Sift Graft Assertions of Mitchell

Separate Inquiry Promised by Attorney General While Ousted Commerce Aid Raises Question on Cutting's Death at Senate Probe.

By the Associated Press.

A promised inquiry into Ewing Y. Mitchell's "graft and corruption" charges by the Justice Department's criminal division yesterday represented the Administration's partial reply to Senate testimony of the recently dismissed Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

Attorney General Cummings told newsmen the investigation would be made by Assistant Attorney General Joseph B. Keenan regardless of results of the Senate Commerce Committee's inquiry and would be extended into "any other matters necessary to reach a definite conclusion."

At the moment, Mitchell was presenting to the Senators brusquely disputed claims that lax Federal inspection may have caused the grim tragedy of the Morro Castle and that outside influence upon the Air Commerce Bureau might be blamed for the air crash which took the lives of Senator Bronson Cutting, of New Mexico, and four others.

He promised to produce today a copy of the official report of the last inspection of the Morro Castle which, he said, shows there was "practically no inspection at all."

He promised proof, too, of his assertions regarding the air crash and readily agreed to a request from Senator Johnson (Republican), California, close friend of the late Senator Cutting, to "gather together every whit of evidence regarding outside pressure as it may relate to this particular accident with all other facts and even your opinions regarding it."

The man whom Mitchell has attacked most persistently, Secretary Roper, will follow him on the stand today and other departmental officials to whom Mitchell has referred are expected to appear as well as reply to his insinuations.

Roper, cool in tan linen, testified briefly at the close of yesterday's session to urge confirmation of President Roosevelt's nominee to succeed Mitchell, John Monroe Johnson, and added with a significant inflection that he would "command the respect that this position requires."

In his press conference discussion, Cummings said he thought Mitchell's offer to serve as a special

Screaming Girl Interrupts Session of French Chamber

By the United Press.

Paris, June 20.—The Chamber of Deputies adjourned in confusion tonight when in the midst of an unexpected, violent clash between Right and Left bench deputies a girl in the gallery leaped into their midst. Scores of members rushed to the young woman, who waved her arms and screamed: "I want the floor."

She was surrounded by sergeants-at-arms, but clung to a bench screaming and disrupting the debate, already heated and almost beyond control. Finally she was dragged out.

The woman was described as Mireille Bost, 22, unmarried, from Cannes.

She was listening to frenzied debate on the proposed disbandment of the so-called Fascist leagues in France, when suddenly she rushed to the balustrade, climbed over, hung by her hands a moment and then dropped to the floor below.

Deputies ran to her aid, fearing she was hurt, but Mlle. Bost set those fears at rest by her lusty screeches. She said she was interested in the scheduled debate on the declining birth rate and depopulation of France.

Almost all the deputies were on their feet shouting across the chamber when the woman dropped into their midst.

The uproar began when Marx Rucart, Radical deputy, began a violent attack on the government for failing to call for debate on his committee's report into the February 6, 1934, riots, prior to the long summer recess scheduled to start shortly.

He attacked the Fascist leagues, demanding their immediate disbandment. The chamber voted not to debate on the subject further, and the speaker, unable to retsore calm, adjourned the session.

Cities to Pay WorksShare, SaysHopkins

State Directors Told to 'Get As Much as Possible.'

Job Relief to Cost Big Centers More Than Under FERA.

By Felix Bruner.

State works progress directors have been instructed to get as much money as possible from the cities to bolster the $4,000,000,000 works relief fund, Harry L. Hopkins, progress director, said yesterday.

Hopkins indicated that local communities, in spite of the fact that they have been asked to assume the task of caring for unemployables who have been on Government relief rolls, will be asked to contribute more toward work relief than they contributed to direct relief under the FERA. This money would be used to make up the difference in the respective communities between the $1,100-per-man limit set by President Roosevelt and the actual cost of the projects undertaken.

While Hopkins was explaining his works plans, President Roosevelt was addressing regional rural resettlement directors under Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell, Undersecretary of Agriculture. The President stressed the rural phases of the work, but did not comment on Tugwell's plans for suburban relief activities. The President repeated the warning he gave State progress administration against political favoritism.

Secretary Ickes denied that there was a "rift, schism, clash, row, breach, break or misunderstanding" between himself and Hopkins in connection with the works program, but added that "there may be occasional differences of opinion."

Hopkins commented that talk of differences between himself and Ickes was "silly."

"We haven't got time to row," he said. "I didn't know there were any differences of opinion. I'm sure both of us want to do the job the President told the country he wanted done, namely putting 3,500,000 people back to work."

Hopkins said that he believed very substantial sums would be spent for housing and PWA projects under the direction of Ickes.

Ickes' statement, made to newspapermen at his press conference, follows:

"I have been surprised at reading statements carried in some newspapers in the past few days to the effect that there is a conflict between Mr. Hopkins and myself. I want to take this occasion to make it perfectly clear—I wish I could say this to your editors and headline writers—that there is no rift, schism, clash, row, breach, break or misunderstanding between us.

Sees Honest Differences.

"There may be occasional honest differences of opinion as to details of approach and methods of achieving our mutual goal, but we have a common object in trying to give work to the unemployed. Reports that Mr. Hopkins and I are not getting along well together are false and in some instances malicious. Harry Hopkins and I are good friends. We have worked happily together for two years and will continue so to work together. I will support and help Mr. Hopkins in his part in this difficult task and I know that he feels the same way about PWA."

Ickes said that he did not have the slightest objection to employment by Hopkins of Harry S. Berry as Tennessee works administrator. Berry was fired by Ickes as Tennessee PWA engineer when he is alleged to have circulated letters telling local officials they would not have to repay PWA loans.

"A man might be a poor quartermiler, but a good 2-miler," Ickes said.

Ickes said he did not object to a certain amount of political activity

Senators Reject Plan to Act Soon For Tax on Rich

Senate Weighs Holt's Seating; Fails to Vote

Senator-Elect, Just Thirty, Watches Proceedings With Blase Air.

By Robert C. Albright.

To the Democratic Party, he was another Senate vote. To the gentlemen of the minority, he was one vote less. And to the United States Senate he was the occasion yesterday for much hair splitting and ponderous quotations from precedent.

And the object of all this weighty discussion was a white clad young man, just turned 30, who lounged in a half dozen different Senate seats, while the Senate debated whether to seat him in one of them.

In the end, the Senators decided this was too complex a matter to decide in one day. They recessed without taking action.

Rush D. Holt, West Virginia's youthful Senator-elect, was the young man. He was interested in this discussion. He had slept over the matter for five and a half months, and there were things he would like to say. But the Senate officially was unaware of his presence. He was not allowed to talk.

But the Senators made up for this reticence. Avowed antagonists, like Majority Leader Robinson and Huey Long, healed over their differences rooting for Holt. And old pals, like Senator Tom Connally and Senator Kenneth McKellar, fell out over the thing.

Today the Senate probably will vote to seat Holt. The Senate Privileges and Elections Committee has recommended that he be seated. Aside from Tom Connally and five or sixth other Democrats, the overwhelming Senate majority probably will vote for him. And the Republicans—well, they haven't enough votes to matter much.

There is a clause in the Constitution which reads:

"No person shall be a Senator who shall not have attained to the age of 30 years * * *"

That started all the controversy. Holt was elected last November when he was 29 years old. When Congress assembled in January, he did not claim his seat. But on Wednesday he came of Senate age.

Finance Committee Votes Down Rider Idea of La Follette.

White House Lets Capitol Fix Time

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

With congressional leaders apparently confused as to whether President Roosevelt desired immediate action on his "share-the-wealth" tax program, the Senate Finance Committee yesterday rejected a proposal to attach the plan to the pending resolution extending the nuisance levies which expire on June 30.

Senate leaders took the view that the President would not insist on enactment of his tax program at this session of Congress; some House leaders took the same view. Others, however, indicated that they believed Mr. Roosevelt wanted quick action and that now is the time to act.

White House Takes Stand.

The White House indicated that the matter was now on Capitol Hill and that it was up to the leaders there. This apparent "buck-passing" as to when the program should be enacted deepened the belief in many quarters that the political implications, at least for the present, overshadowed the financial considerations involved.

The Democratic leadership, however, seemed of one mind that increased rates on large incomes, establishment of a graduated levy on corporations, increased estate taxes and imposition of levies on inheritances—as proposed by the President—would require lengthy consideration and should not be written into the nuisance tax extension resolution, chiefly because if that measure is not passed in ten days the nuisance or excise taxes, producing $500,000,000 annually for the Treasury, would automatically expire.

Nevertheless, Senator Robert M. La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, who made the rejected suggestion to the finance committee, gave notice that he would offer legislation representing his conception of the President's program with the nuisance tax extension resolution when it reaches the Senate floor, probably next week.

La Follette Expects Defeat.

The Wisconsin Progressive, however, feels that he will be voted down, but he is insistent that since the President has spoken on the redistribution of wealth idea there be no long delay in carrying out his proposals.

Senator La Follette will be supported by Senator Huey P. Long (Democrat), of Louisiana, and founder of "Share-the-Wealth Societies," who has expressed skepticism of the sincerity of the President's tax message and believes that "the New Deal crowd should be put on the spot."

Earlier this week he made an effort to increase Federal tax rates in a rider to the social security bill as means of defraying the cost of that measure's provisions but was voted down overwhelmingly.

Senator Harry F. Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, also moved to effectuate the President's proposal for elimination of tax-exempt securities, both Federal and State. At the present time the States are without power to tax any security or instrumentality of the Federal Government and the latter is in the same position in regard to State, county and municipal securities or instrumentality.

Consequently, the Federal Government makes its own securities tax-exempt. These tax-exempt bonds since the World War have been regarded as one of the biggest loopholes in the income tax laws.

Byrd Proposes Amendment.

Chalice From Palestine Cave Arouses Hope It Is Holy Grail

". . . and from the star there shot a rose-red sparkle to the city, and there dwelt, and I knew it was the Holy Grail which never eyes on earth again shall see." —Tennyson, the Holy Grail.

By the United Press.

London, June 20.—Experts tonight believed the centuries-long search for the Holy Grail, or chalice, used by Christ at the "Last Supper," may have ended with its discovery south of Antioch, in the Holy Land.

A report was received by the Palestine Bible Lands Exhibition here that the cup had been found by a party of archeologists excavating for ancient relics.

The dispatch said excavations in a cave revealed a small case containing a glass chalice which experts described as fine Roman work. They dated it roughly from about 100 B. C. to 100 A. D.

Experts believed the cup was the famous Talisman of Romance in the tales of King Arthur and his knights of the round table. It was the object of the quest by the knights and also became famed through the English translation of "Quete Del Saint Graal," in which it is the cup or chalice of the last supper.

The blood which flowed from the wounds of the crucified Saviour was caught in the grail. The word originally signified "dish," however, and some versions indicate it was the dish on which the paschal lamb was served to Jesus.

Experts hence have a problem to prove that the chalice found near Antioch is the real Holy Grail, it was felt here. Modern criticism gradually has arrived at the conclusion there is only one solution of the grail question which can meet the apparently contradictory tales —namely [illegible] which lies in the direc[illegible] of what is termed the "ritual" origin rather than in that of purely Christian legend or modified folk tales.

G.O.P. Holds Up Appropriations With Filibuster

Tangled Session Adjourns With $224,000,000 Bill's Passage Set Today.

House Republicans decided yesterday that legislation has been moving at too rapid a clip through that chamber of Congress and decided to put on the brakes.

Irked at a rule rigidly limiting debate on the $224,000,000 second deficiency bill, they resorted to quorum calls, roll calls and other filibustering methods.

In the end, passage of the last of the big appropriations was held up until today. The House adjourned, following one of the most confusing sessions in months, without a final vote.

Climaxes Four Hectic Days.

The filibuster came as a climax to four busy days, during which the House has rushed through in record time a $502,000,000 extension of nuisance taxes, the revolutionary AAA amendments and the Wagner labor disputes bill.

Hardly had the House convened before the controversy started. A rule on an appropriation bill is an unusual procedure, and this one, narrowing debate to a bare two hours, was more than the Republicans had reckoned for.

Minority Leader Bertrand H. Snell wanted to know if the Democratic leadership was invoking a practice of no general debate whatever.

"The only conclusion that I can come to," he said, "is that you Democrats are ashamed of this legislation and do not have the courage to come in here and defend it."

He charged the Democrats "are using their great majority in the House to take advantage of the minority," insisting such a practice never had been followed by Republican majorities in the past.

Representative John J. O'Connor, of New York, chairman of the Rules Committee, came back with the charge that under Republican usage "general debate in the House has degenerated into general abuse."

"Under the guise of general debate," he said, "we have heard the openinig guns of the next campaign."

Snell took sharp exception to O'Connor's assertion that the Republicans had used open debate on the legislative appropriation bill for a "blow off," and the filibuster was on.

Representative Byron B. Harlan (Democrat), of Ohio, tried to make a speech on the subject of general debate being used for dissemination of "false propaganda." Republicans blocked him. Snell demanded a quorum call, and that used up about 20 minutes.

When the vote came on adoption of the rule, Snell demanded another roll call. That used up about half an hour, but in the end the rule was approved by a 268-to-95 vote.

And then Representative Charles D. Millard (Republican), of New York, demanded that the 69-page second deficiency bill be read. Democrats sought to defeat the maneuver, but Millard insisted and the bill was read. And that took another hour.

As the clerk read the bill at the usually brisk pace, Representative William A. Ekwall (Democrat), of Oregon, demanded that he proceed more slowly. Democrats sought helplessly to dispense with the reading, but every such request was met with a Republican objection.

Point of Quorum Fails.

Another futile attempt was made for further delay when Representative Allen T. Treadway (Republican), of Massachusetts, raised a point of no quorum. But Representative Frank Hancock, of North Carolina, who was in the chair, insisted a quorum was present.

Among the manifold appropriations in the $224,000,000 deficiency bill were $64,000,000 for public buildings; about $35,000,000 for the Tennessee Valley Authority; $20,000,000 for veterans' hospitals; $14,000,000 for Boulder Canyon and $10,000,000 for rivers and harbors.

Leaders at first intimated they would hold the House in session until the bill was passed, but relented as the hour grew late. They forecast prompt passage today.

No major amendments were attached yesterday. Refusal of the committee to allow $23,862,751 to repay the Philippine government for the increased value of a gold deposit in the United States Treasury is expected to cause some debate when consideration of the bill is resumed.

Cook County Clerk Indicted for Fraud

Chicago, June 20 (AP).—The Cook County grand jury decided today tax redemption money was no "vest pocket fund," and indicted former County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer for withholding $414,129 from his duly elected successor.

Return of the four-count indictment, forecast earlier in the week by the grand jury's activity in the Sweitzer case, was followed by the issuance of a capias for his arrest. It was expected that "Smiling Bob," one of the leading vote getters of the Democratic Party for years, would, however, be allowed to surrender for his arraignment at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Clipper Hops Today, Back to California

Honolulu, June 20 (AP).—The Pan-American Airways clipper plane is scheduled to take off from Pearl Harbor for Alameda, Calif., at 3 p. m. (8:30 p. m. E. S. T.), tomorrow unless weather conditions change radically.

The seaplane—making observation flights preceding a proposed commercial service between California and Canton, China—is returning from Midway Island, 1,323 miles west of here. The flight to Alameda will be its fourth between the Coast and Hawaii.

Roosevelt Message Stops Huey; NRA Bruises May Heal; Corporation Tax Plan Dissected.

By Raymond Clapper

SUMMARIZED reaction to Mr. Roosevelt's share-our-wealth tax message:

1. No action is probable at this session of Congress.

2. The message was primarily political, designed as a declaration of social policy rather than as a move for materially increased revenues.

3. By proposing to break up large fortunes, it smothers Huey Long and the Left-Wingers, and makes it difficult for them to oppose Mr. Roosevelt next year.

4. Implications in the charges of Ewing Mitchell, ousted Assistant Secretary of Commerce, are that Mr. Roosevelt is inclined to go easy on his rich playmates like the Vincent Astors. Huey Long has spread such talk effectively in the backwoods. The tax message stops that talk.

5. The proposal to reduce income taxes on small corporations while raising them on large corporate incomes appears to be a friendly gesture toward the small business man who is nursing NRA bruises.

That corporation tax proposal, tucked down toward the end of the message, bears close study. On its face it looks drab beside the more flashy suggestions which would cut rich men's heirs down to one yacht and tax the polo ponies out of the $1,000,000 incomes of which there were 46 in 1933, the latest year for which figures have been published.

This is the only proposal in the message which Mr. Roosevelt reduced to specific figures.

In brief, he requests that the present flat 13¾ per cent on corporation incomes be changed into a graduated tax, scaled according to the size of the corporation income. Mr. Roosevelt suggested reducing the rate to 10¾ per cent on corporations with small incomes and raising it up to a top of 16¾ per cent on the net income of the larger corporations. That is, the big corporation would, on its earnings, pay a tax 60 per cent higher than its small competitor.

It looks to some like an effort to drive business back to the horse and buggy stage by penalizing large units.

* * * *

This proposal has so many ramifications that it is worth touching on the high spots.

First the basic principle.

Mr. Roosevelt assumes, erroneously, some economists think, that the same principles can be applied to corporation incomes that are applied with recognized justice to individual incomes. Few any longer question the justice of graduating an individual's tax rate upward as his income increases. The larger his income the greater his capacity to bear a share of the social burden.

But in the case of corporations, the amount of income in dollars is no test at all as to the percentage of profit. Compare a railroad and a trucking company. The railroad's income may amount to several million dollars a year and yet be equivalent to perhaps 1 per cent of its investment. On this it might be in the top 16¾ per cent tax bracket. The trucking company might have a net income of $10,000 which might represent a 10 per cent profit. Yet it might be subject only to the minimum rate of 10¾ per cent.

Such a tax would operate strongly against the very heavy industries which are having such hard going now. Most of them, by their very nature, require heavy investment of capital. There can be no such thing as a small rayon plant or a small steel plant. They have to be big and therefore a very small percentage of profit bulks large in dollars compared with the annual income of a garage repair shop or a small dyeing plant.

Therefore a tax graduated as to rate in proportion to the annual dollar income may be inequitable among different types of businesses.

It also may be inequitable among like businesses of varying size. The chain store grocery must pay a rate perhaps 60 per cent higher than that of the small independents doing business next door to its stores.

There is serious question whether a tax base on net corporation income would be constitutional in view of the fact that it would be discriminatory against firms operating with large capital investment.

To graduate the tax in proportion to the dollar income is a tax on size and is fundamentally different from basing it on the percentage of profit.

On a similar point last March the Supreme Court threw out a Kentucky tax law, aimed at chain stores and applying a graduated tax on gross sales.

Speaking for the majority, Justice Roberts said the law was "unjustifiably unequal, whimsical and arbitrary," and pointed out that the graduated tax on gross sales had no relation to the profits of the establishment.

But should such a tax be sustained, what would its effect be?

It would tend to pulverize large business units such as chain stores and large integrated vertical corporations. And the small retailer and the small manufacturer, who have hitherto relied on large corporations for sources of supply, would run into difficulty. The rise of large manufacturing and distributing companies has enabled the small retailer to operate on greatly reduced inventories. He can buy from hand to mouth and thus cut down his invested capital and do business on lower prices. One Department of Commerce study since the war showed that since American business has become highly integrated, inventories have been reduced a general average of 25 per cent.

Hitler has done something similar to what is now proposed. Some economists who have looked into the results report that the effect has been to increase the small man's cost of doing business. This has increased the cost of living generally.

Slight on Editor Denied by Hopkins

By the Associated Press.

An examination yesterday of FERA press conference reports revealed that Administrator Harry Hopkins was on record as saying recent references to Norman Hamilton, Portsmouth (Va.) editor, were not meant to "embarrass him."

Previously Hopkins had been quoted as asking "who is this fellow Hamilton?" in connection with newspaper stories that Hamilton was slated for a works relief post in Virginia. Hopkins' question was asked in a telegram to Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia.

The press conference records of June 13 show Hopkins was told Hamilton's friends claim he "has been embarrassed," and Hopkins replied, "I certainly did not mean to embarrass him."

Hopkins then was asked if Hamilton had been a candidate for the position, and replied he understood he had not.

Senate Debates Seating of Holt, But Fails to Act

Simultaneously he decided it was about time West Virginia had two Senators in Congress, and a majority of the Privileges and Elections Committee thought he was right about it.

The trouble was, the constitutional fathers failed to say no person shall be a Senator unless he was 30 years old when he claimed his seat. A few Senators, among them Hiram Johnson, Daniel Hastings and Tom Connally, thought that was a significant omission. What the fathers meant to say was, no person shall be a Senator unless he is 30 years old at the beginning of his term, these Senators insisted.

Precedents Are Sought.

The ghosts of Daniel Webster, Henry Clay, John C. Calhoun and Stephen Douglas were all dragged into the discussion to prove one side or the other. And, lacking specific precedents, the cases of Albert Gallatin and Gen. James A. Shields, whose Senate elections were voided because they had not been citizens for nine years when they came to the Senate, were made much of.

This was all so much talk to the galleries. There sympathies were all with the silent young Senator-elect who weaved in and out of the chamber from time to time just to see how the business was going. It was the painful duty of his colleague, Senator Matthew M. Neely, of West Virginia, who sat in the chair, to rap loudly for order every time the spectators applauded the arguments for Holt.

Sister Is Spectator.

Senator Johnson, who delivered a strong argument against Holt's seating, once turned apologetically toward this group.

"I take this course solely because I believe it is every man's duty to do the things he thinks he ought to do," he said.

"I am sorry that this demonstration must come from me, but when I am under oath I can not permit my views concerning the popular will to interfere with my conclusions."

Senator Connally, who, in his stand against Holt was almost alone on his side of the aisle, was peppered with interruptions by Administration Democrats. He said in exasperation:

"I get no pleasure in taking the position I am taking. Every impulse of my carnal nature calls for a vote for him. But every impulse of my intellectual nature demands a vote against his seating."

Tomes Dragged Off Shelves.

There were humorous interludes, but for the most part the Senate took this business seriously. Backstage, in the Senate Library, great tomes were dragged down and drained of their essence. Senate Librarian James D. Preston sweated through a busy day. The Senate was shouting for precedents. Precedents he would give them.

But try as he would, he could not find a case where an underage candidate, who boldly announced he was only 29, ever was elected to the Senate before he was 30. True, Henry Clay served in the Senate in his late twenties but he was careful to keep mum about his years.

So the Holt opposition in the Senate fell back on the Gallatin and Shields precedents. Gallatin later lived to be Secretary of the Treasury for a longer period than has any other man, but after he took his seat in the Senate in December, 1793, the Senate ousted him. He had not been a citizen for nine years. Gen. Shields lived to be Senator from three States, but after he had been seated as the Senator from Illinois, in March, 1849, the Senate resolved he also was shy of citizenship requirement "at the commencement of the term for which he was elected." He likewise was ousted.

Senators Hastings, Johnson and Connally, who backed a resolution to void the election of Holt, made much of these cases.

Argued Senator Johnson:

"If construction of the Constitution shall prevail, the result which was reached in these two precedents seems not only justified, but imperative."

Said Senator Hastings:

To permit this Senator-elect to postpone, for any time, the taking of the oath and his seat, amounts to a change in the composition of the Senate in conflict with the express requirements of the Constitution."

Senators Robinson, George McKellar and Barkley rushed to the West Virginian's defense. Fighting with them was Huey Long, who has formed a fast friendship with Holt.

"Eligibility attaches to service and not to the election or to the term," contended Robinson, who pressed Johnson and Connally closely.

With characteristic irony, Johnson replied that Robinson apparently was not as familiar with the case as he might be."

The sharp tongue of the Californian also lashed at Huey Long.

"I will yield to the Senator for a question," he said, "but I will not yield for him to be funny."

Naming of Cohen To SEC Is Hinted

Brain-Truster Due to Fill Pecora Vacancy.

By the Associated Press.

Appointment of Benjamin V. Cohen, one of the New Deal "brain trusters" to the Securities Commission yesterday was reported planned by President Roosevelt immediately after enactment of the utilities holding company bill.

Cohen would fill the vacancy created by the resignation last January of Ferdinand Pecora, who conducted the Senate's stock market investigation, to accept appointment to the New York State Supreme Court. Cohen, it was understood, would be appointed for five years.

With Thomas G. Corcoran, assistant counsel of the Reconstruction Corporation, James M. Landis, now a SEC commissioner, and Raymond Moley, all classed as brain trusters, Cohen helped draft the 1933 securities act and the 1934 stock exchange regulation act. He has been associated wtih Corcoran and Dr. W. M. W. Splawn, Interstate Commerce commissioner, in helping congressional committees frame the controversial utility bill and during Senate debate sat beside Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana.

Holding Firms' Death Penalty Fate in House

Fight to Restore Drastic Provision of Bill Is Forecast.

By the Associated Press.

Sharp differences between President Roosevelt and Capitol Hill over the regulation or abolition of utility holding companies yesterday were projected to the House floor by Interstate Commerce Committee approval of a sub-committee's recommendations against an outright "death sentence."

Pushing hard to have the utility bill ready for House action early next week, the committee worked all day over the troublesome measure which has been before it since last February 4.

Before it quit, all the controversial holding company sections save two minor points had been approved. These were expected to be rounded up today and by tomorrow the entire measure, including interstate power movement regulation and amendments to the water power act, was scheduled for reporting to the House.

Mr. Roosevelt on Wednesday reiterated his wish that provisions of the Senate bill—calling for abolition of holding companies by 1942 — be enacted. But almost simultaneously the House committee was receiving the sub-committee substitute making the dissolution of holding companies permissive instead of mandatory with the Securities Commission.

Administration leaders planned a fight to put the abolition language back when the bill reaches the floor. But a survey was reported to have shown a margin of House votes against the "death sentence."

The committee has yet to decide finally the tax procedure in the bill. The substitute provides for subjecting 15 per cent of holding company dividends to corporate income levies.

This provision was assailed yesterday by Philip H. Gadsden, chairman of the public utility executives, who said in a statement:

"It is not reasonable regulation to impose a special duplicate tax on dividends received by the utility holding company—a tax intended solely to force utility holding companies out of existence—particularly when the tax is not imposed on holding companies in any other industry in the country."

During the day, Representative Maverick (Democrat), Texas, in an open letter to Representative Farley (Democrat), Indiana, accused the sub-committee of having made "a radical departure from the vigorous and forthright policy announced by the President" and of tossing "a crumb" to him.

U. S. Trade Unit United to NRA In Latest Plan

Administration Drafts New Legislation to Keep Code Benefits.

By the Associated Press.

Legislation for still another NRA, created by union of the invalidated recovery agency and the Federal Trade Commission, was disclosed yesterday to have been drafted by an important Administration group.

Whether President Roosevelt had ordered the step or approved the plan could not be learned definitely. But it was recalled that in setting up the fledgling NRA the President referred to an "opportunity" for future legislation. Further, word was passed on Capitol Hill yesterday that a broader law seeking to achieve limited, but substantial, objectives of the old code rule was under White House consideration.

Steps Envisaged.

Guarded comments from various official and congressional quarters envisaged these likely steps if a new bill is pressed:

1. Virtual coalescence of the Trade Commission and NRA by increasing the number of commissioners—now four, with one vacancy—to seven, so as to blend commission and NRA views.

2. A new congressional definition of interstate commerce, by which the Government could regain supervision of some things stripped from NRA by the Supreme Court and yet be able to stand the test of constitutionality.

3. Founded on this new definition, a middle-ground industrial rule falling somewhere between the aggressive control of the old NRA codes and the operation of the commission's fair competition agreements.

Plans Only Tentative.

While all plans were classed as tentative, some congressional quarters viewed another NRA as a companion measure to the new tax program's stated objective of increasing mass purchasing power. Others emphasized that James L. O'Neill, NRA administrator, said only this week that the question of legislation was "open," and George L. Berry, his assistant, added a message that developments in that direction were "moving rapidly."

Another factor was the American Federation of Labor's insistent demands for a broader NRA.

Developments yesterday included a luncheon conference between President Roosevelt and Donald R. Richberg and a group visit by the trade commissioners.

Richberg Reported Backer.

Richberg said he had called only to say good-by before leaving on a 30 to 60 day vacation preparatory to returning to private business.

In other sources, the former NRA chief was reported to be favorable to a Trade Commission-NRA bill.

Members of the commission said they put before the President their policy of cooperating with NRA by leaving any voluntary agreements to that unit and acting as a "friendly policeman" in guarding anti-trust law boundaries. Mr. Roosevelt was reported to have approved this attitude.

NRA, meanwhile, went ahead with its reorganization job. The advisory council of six held its first meeting.

Writer Discusses U. S. Silver Policy

China Drained of Its Currency, Owen White Says.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 20.—The Roosevelt administration's silver policy, Owen P. White says in an article in Collier's, is "a comparatively harmless way to cool the ardor of the silverites, and, at the same time, yield slightly to the pressure of the inflationists."

"Political expediency had a great deal to do with shaping the Government's course regarding silver," White says.

He points out that American Government buying of silver has raised the price, but has brought about strange complications throughout the world.

China, he says, has been drained of its currency—"We have definitely robbed some very helpless people of the savings of generations." Another country which has suffered, he says, is Mexico.

White asserts that in America silver is mainly a by-product of lead, copper and zinc mining, and that the silver policy has led to an overproduction of these metals, immediately lowering their prices.

Harmony Among Units Of Relief Here Is Noted

A better co-operation exists between the chief factors in the relief set-up in Washington than in most cities in the country, Herbert L. Willett, jr., director of the Community Chest, told members of his executive committee yesterday.

Making a report on the national conference on social work held recently in Montreal, Willett said he was impressed by the "high rank that Washington holds in the quality of our social work, both public and private."

He said he also found that the Federal and local government and the private relief agencies functioned more harmoniously here than in most cities.

Senators Balk at Action Now To Apply High Tax on Wealth

thority "to lay and collect taxes on securities, and the income derived therefrom, issued after the ratification of this article by or under authority of any State, but without discrimination against such securities or income and in favor of securities, or the income derived therefrom, issued after the ratification of this article by or under the authority of the United States or any other State."

At the same time the Virginian introduced a bill providing that all securities issued by the Federal Government or under its authority and income from such securities "shall be subject to taxation by the United States, by any Territory, dependency or possession thereof or by any State, county or municipality or local taxing authority," subject to the same prohibition against discriminating in levying the tax between State and Federal bonds as provided in the proposed constitutional amendment.

The Senate Finance Committee in approving extension of the so-called nuisance taxes limited their extension to one year, instead of two years as approved by the House.

Chairman Pat Harrison of the committee explained that this was done in the belief that "if business picks up as it is expected to do in the next 12 months there will be no further need for these taxes."

But some observers saw another reason for the Finance Committee's action. It was that the committeemen wished to force re-consideration of the nuisance taxes next year at the same time the President's new tax program likely will be under study and deliberation. By that piece of strategy, it was conceded, the nuisance taxes could be used as a lever to win support from industry and the country generally for the President's program. In other words, the nuisance taxes next year might be traded-off for votes for the larger program.

Political Implications Grow.

The apparent confusion on Capitol Hill as to the President's wishes for enactment of his plan; the failure of the White House to make itself clear on this question, as well as the unexpectedness with which the tax message was submitted at the eleventh hour of the present session, all contributed to the belief that politics had actuated it rather than than any desire to bolster up Treasury revenues.

It was recalled that in his budget message for last January the President stated that "I do not consider it advisable at this time to propose any new or additional taxes for the fiscal year 1936 (which starts July 1)," aside from recommending extension of miscellaneous internal revenue or the nuisance taxes, which expire June 30, and maintenance of current rates of taxes, which will be reduced June 30.

Since the President made that statement the financial position of the Treasury has improved somewhat. Expenditures have not been quite as large as estimated, revenues have been slightly larger and Congress has pared down some of the estimates of appropriations for the next fiscal year.

On the other hand, the President has lost popularity with left wing elements. He has been frequently taunted by Kingfish Long for failing to live up to his "redistribute the wealth" promises, and the Louisianan earlier this week let it be known he would make a nationwide tour this summer preaching his "share-the-wealth" gospel. Also during the last week President Roosevelt has been charged by a former personal appointee of being partial to such rich friends as Vincent Astor and Kermit Roosevelt.

Favorable for the President.

All these things were mentioned by those who regarded the message as inspired by politics. The President has now cleared his record, it is contended, and has "taken the wind" out of the sails of the Huey Longs. The reaction on Capitol Hill indicated that the reaction to the message throughout the country should be favorable to the President.

It is pointed out that delay on the program would throw it into a campaign year and that House members may be more reluctant to act. But on the other hand, if the nuisance taxes, which are paid by virtually everyone, are lifted at the same time that increased taxes are levied on $1,000,000 incomes and $1,000,000 estates, smart Congressmen should be able to handle the issue, it is argued. The proposal for graduated corporation taxes, however, may prove more difficult.

At all events, Capitol Hill viewed the President's proposal through political eyes and little thought was given to revenue yields. Time enough for that when it is decided definitely whether the program goes forward now or next winter, seemed to be the viewpoint.

There was no indication as to what extent the President's program would reduce the deficit in current Treasury operations. Some estimated that such a plan might bring an additional $1,000,000,000 annually into the Treasury, but in the absence of specific rates—except for corporations—and other necessary details, this figure was the result of pure guessing.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., declined to throw any light on the amount of revenue which might be realized or what increases might be made in existing income rates. He intimated, however, that if the Ways and Means Committee called on the Treasury it would supply such information.

Treasury Figures Wanted.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the Ways and Means Committee, asserted that when that group undertakes the task of drafting the President's proposals into legislation the Treasury would be the first to be asked for its views. But he thought that the question of the moment was whether the committee was to go ahead for immediate action or make preparations to report to the House next winter.

Doughton said he did not consider the tax proposals as on the "must list" for this session, but that he would comply with the President's wishes in the matter. He pointed out that his committee now has before it a stiff schedule, including the Guffey-Snyder coal stabilization bill and the measure for Federal control of the alcoholic beverage industries.

He said it would be several weeks before the committee would be able to give its attention to so important a subject as the President's tax program. Technicians attached to the congressional tax committees said it would take a month or more to whip such a program into the form of a bill for House action.

Speaker Joseph W. Byrns, however, took the view that the President wanted the tax program passed before Congress adjourns. He said he could not at this time say it was "a must measure" but he believed that "if we are going to provide for more revenue the quicker we do so the better it will be for the Treasury." He added that "once a policy is agreed on it does not take much time to determine rates."

Chairman John J. O'Connor of the House Rules Committee confined himself to the laconic remark that "the President does not issue his 1936 Thanksgiving proclamation in 1935."

Senator Harrison, whose committee will have charge of the program on the Senate side, pointed out that the program proposed by the President would "require considerable study" and that he did not think it necessary to give consideration to it at this session. He said he assumed that during the summer and fall recess the Ways and Means Committee would work on the program in order to have it ready next winter.

Presidential Note Expected.

Other Senate leaders showed a reluctance to regard the program as a "must measure." It was reported that in a day or two President Roosevelt would advise Senator Harrison by a letter which would be made public that he wished action on the program as quickly as possible but that he did not wish to interfere with the pending "must program" and did not wish unduly to prolong the present session. This, however, could not be confirmed authoritatively.

Although reluctance to press the program was apparent on Capitol Hill, there was no outspoken criticism of it. It is reported that some of the Democratic leaders had urged the President some weeks ago to hold his tax program until next winter and were angry when he caught them unawares Wednesday.

But there was no expression of such sentiments yesterday. Speaker Byrns praised the President's message in glowing terms. He said Mr. Roosevelt had "given us a practical chart (for future taxation) to which I do not think anybody can reasonably object."

He said it was "an absolutely nonpartisan program because I do not think there is any partisan division in the sentiment that the greater part of the burden of taxation must be borne by those best able to pay for it." He enumerated the President's proposals, praising each.

Senate Democratic Leader Joe Robinson termed the program "an intelligent process for raising such revenues as may be needed and as tending toward balancing the budget."

Robinson Views It Calmly.

"There is nothing revolutionary about it," he asserted, contending it was "simply an extension of the present system of surtaxes."

"As to the inheritance taxes," he continued, "I do not see how anyone can complain of a system which makes the recipient of a vast fortune, to the accumulation of which in a majority of cases that recipient has made no contribution, release to the Government a fair percentage of his suddenly acquired fortune. The nations which the opponents of the Roosevelt Administration are prone to name as examples to us have applied the principle with wholesome results to the general population.

The Republicans were silent yesterday, watching developments. Privately they attributed political motives to the President rather any desire to get more revenue for the Treasury. One Republican leader, however, said he thought most of his party in Congress would support the program in general, although objections might be made to details.

He pointed out that the Republicans could not be consistent and oppose this tax program. They have demanded a balanced budget and have flayed the Roosevelt Administration for monetary experimentation and steps toward inflation. The budget can only be balanced and the debt decreased, he said, by increasing taxes or inflation. He thought his party might make a demand for some assurance that expenditures would be reduced.

Couzens Applauds Roosevelt Program

By the Associated Press.

Detroit, June 20.—Senator James A. Couzens, often described as one of the wealthiest men in the United States, gave his indorsement today to President Roosevelt's program of higher taxes for the wealthy.

"It should not take long to adjust rates and enact the program outlined in the message," the Senator said in a hospital here where he is receiving treatment for diabetes.

"I agree substantially with all the President's proposals and particularly additional taxes on inheritances and gifts," he added. "His request for higher assessments on incomes over $1,000,000 is highly commendable. However, there is also a large field below that figure that could stand an increase."

Internal Taxes Raised Income 6% During May Increase Credited Largely to Adjustment Levies Upon Agriculture.

By the Associated Press.

Recording a 6 per cent gain in May, internal revenue collections reached a total of $2,871,529,852 during the eleven months of the current financial year.

This represented an upturn of 24 per cent over the comparable eleven months of 1934, when $2,809,998,545 was received.

In making the announcement, the Treasury yesterday disclosed figures showing that miscellaneous internal revenue, the greatest income-producing group, had the lowest percentage gain for the year. Agricultural adjustment taxes showed the biggest jump.

Miscellaneous internal revenue produced $1,528,916,043 through May 31, 1935, a gain of 14 per cent, while agricultural adjustment taxes returned $495,272,096, which was 50 per cent in excess of last year. Income tax revenues totaled $847,341,712, an increase of 34 per cent.

Liquor taxes gained $8,000,000 during May, totaling $37,122,334. The year's receipts to date of $370,640,175 were $145,654,548 higher than last year.

Manufacturers' excise taxes, comprising most of the so-called "nuisance taxes" whose continuance now is pending on Capitol Hill, have returned $305,570,798 during the first 11 months of the fiscal year which ends June 30. Next year they are forecast to yield $500,000,000 in 12 months.

The capital stock tax and tax on similar interest sales or transfers has shown a heavy slump during the year thus far, amounting to only $13,887,569, or $22,529,721 less than last year's figure.

Mrs. Sarah Depue Dies at Hospital

She Had Lived in Capital More Than 70 Years.

Mrs. Sarah Catherine Depue, 97, for more than 70 years a resident of Washington, died at Garfield Hospital yesterday. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Nathan Hazen, of 708 Dorsett avenue and a son, Leidy S. Depue, and nine grandchildren, four of whom live in Washington: Mrs. Mary Nagke, Mrs. Neville D. Miller, Depue Falck and James Falck.

Active in church work, Mrs. Depue had been a member of Westminster Presbyterian Church in Southwest Washington, and later was prominent in the affairs of Washington Heights Presbyterian Church.

Services will be conducted by the Rev. J. C. Palmer at the V. L. Spare Funeral Chapel, 1009 H street, tomorrow, at 2 p. m. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mass Meetings to Air High Rent Complaints

To hear complaints on high rents and housing shortages and to suggest co-operative housing projects, aided by the Federal Government, as the cures, a series of mass meetings will be held in various sections of the city during the next few weeks, Ben Allen, of the Central rents committee, announced yesterday.

Allen said the first such meeting would be held next Friday in the Hine Junior High School, Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue southeast. It will be sponsored by a group of Navy Yard machinists.

Wine Sealed in Shell For Last of Veterans

Foreseeing the end that awaits every mortal, Washington veterans of the famed Rainbow Division chose to be stoical last night by forming a Last Man's Club. No elaborate ceremony was held. Instead, they bought a bottle of rare vintage and sealed it in the case of a .75-mm shell.

The veterans agreed that this bottle of sacred wine, which will occupy a place of honor at the club meetings, is not to be touched until the death of the next to the last member of the club. Then the surviving member will be privileged to unseal the shell and drink a toast to his departed comrades. In the regulations the return of prohibition is not contemplated.

Officers of the club are Harold B. Rodier, president; the Rev. A. A. McCallum, vice president; Fred C. Reed, secretary; Col. William R. Stacom, treasurer; Cecil J. Wilkinson, ritualist, and M. Manning Marqua, vintner.

The veterans are making preparations to entertain 1,000 of their comrades at a national reunion at the Willard Hotel on July 12, 13 and 14.

Roosevelt Leaves For Crew Racing

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt turned northward last night for a week-end on the water and at his Hyde Park home after a busy day clearing his desk and discussing future plans with his Cabinet.

The presidential train was headed for New London, Conn., on the overnight ride. Mr. Roosevelt will witness the annual Harvard-Yale crew races there today on the Thames River. Franklin, jr., fourth son of the President, is rowing in the Harvard junior varsity shell.

After the late afternoon race of the varsity crews Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt will entrain for their home at Hyde Park, N. Y., to spend tomorrow and part of Sunday. Sunday night they will stop at their New York City residence for a family dinner and return to Washington in time for work Monday morning.

Kiwanis Begins Plans For '36 Meeting Here

Merton S. Heiss, Chicago, convention manager of Kiwanis International, soon will move his offices to Washington in preparation for the annual convention of the organization, which will be held here in 1936.

According to estimates made yesterday by Lewis T. Breuninger, past president of the Washington club, Harold N. Marsh, president; Bynum W. E. Hinton and George P. Mangan, vice president, and Edward D. Shaw, secretary, the convention will be the largest in the history of Kiwanis International, with between 5,000 and 6,000 delegates registering.

Paying a preliminary visit, Mr. Heiss addressed the Kiwanis Club luncheon here yesterday. In the absence of President Marsh, Vice President Hinton presided.

Auto Injuries Fatal To Robert W. Steele

Injured June 9 when struck by an automobile on Wilson boulevard in Arlington County, Va., Robert W. Steele, 21, of 3010 South Dakota avenue northeast, died yesterday in Georgetown Hospital.

Steele, police reported, was repairing a tire on his automobile parked by the roadside. He was struck by a passing car and suffered a compound fractured left leg and internal injuries. Police said the other car was driven by Frank L. Carrado, 22, of the 1800 block of Kenyon street northwest.

Revised Wagner Bill Opposed in Senate

By the Associated Press.

A tiff over some of the amendments added to the Wagner labor disputes bill by the House was forecast yesterday when the Senate refused to accept them and sent the bill to conference for negotiation.

Chairman Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, of the Senate Labor Committee who was appointed to head the Senate conferees, said he would call a meeting as soon as the House appointed conferees. Other representatives of the Senate in the conference will be Senators Murphy (Democrat), Iowa; Murray (Democrat), Montana; Borah (Republican), Idaho, and La Follette (Progressive), Wisconsin.

Richberg Bids Farewell to Job, Hopes for NRA

'Not a Funeral,' He Asserts in Belief Code Aims Will Continue.

By the Associated Press.

Donald Richberg trailed his former partner and late foe in the NRA campaign—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson—into private life yesterday, smiling a hope for the future of the principles of the recovery agency.

Richberg said good-by over the White House luncheon table to President Roosevelt and, like Johnson, left the Government as a close friend of the Chief Executive.

Keeping carefully away from the political side of the issue, the retiring NRA chieftain insisted yesterday's session was not a "funeral party" over NRA and that from the "philosophical point the principles of the national recovery act can and will be maintained somehow."

Sees Onus in Congress.

As for new legislation, he believed this depends on how long the present session of Congress continues.

"It is a wonderful period for study and planning," he observed to reporters on the White House steps. "We were always confronted with the problem of changing conditions to meet a growing structure.

"Sometimes it is best that a tornado comes along and levels off things. Now, you can start from the ground up, build new streets otherwise impossible and make a new structure based on experience and trial."

One of the men who argued the Government's case before the Supreme Court, Richberg still thought the Constitution "elastic" enough to meet the NRA cause unanimously swept aside by the high tribunal.

Weight Off Shoulders.

Like one with a weight off his shoulders, Richberg smiled and chatted freely as he walked from the White House without a brief case in his hands for the first time in his two strenuous, busy years in Washington.

If he carried away with him bitter feelings against Gen. Johnson, he kept them to himself. His only reference to his archfoe of the last year was a remark that he was going to take the advice he had given Johnson but which the latter had ignored—take a vacation.

The fiery general during the heat of his controversy with Richberg was advised to take a couple of months off, but he preferred to fight on.

The former railroad labor lawyer of Chicago, who wound up embattled with organized labor here, announced no plans for his future life.

Nice, Hoffman Hit U. S. Extravagance

2 Governors Gloomy Over Outlook for States.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cambridge, Md., June 20.—Gov. Harry W. Nice, of Maryland and Gov. Harold S. Hoffman of New Jersey took a gloomy view of the present economic situation in addresses here last night before the Cambridge Rotary Club in the Hotel Dixon.

Nice scored the prodigal spending of public funds as jeopardizing such States as Maryland operating on a balanced budget. Hoffman cited the battle of Valley Forge when soldiers with bloodstained feet asks for socks. "How different from the present day," he continued, "when men are expecting the President and Congress to give them back the shirt and pants they lost on Wall Street."

Maryland Court Slates Tax Appeal for July 2

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 20.—Although the Maryland Court of Appeals today suspended deliberations for the customary summer recess, Chief Carroll T. Bond announced he had fixed July 2 as a tentative date for hearing arguments on the appeal involving the constitutionality of the 1 per cent gross receipts tax law passed at the late session of the General Assembly. Judge J. Frank Supplee, jr., in Baltimore City Circuit Court yesterday, held the act valid. The action was brought by a group of merchants.

Judge Bond said the date is dependent upon the pleasure of all parties involved, and whether the record in the case could be printed by that time.

Clarksburg Awaiting Martinsburg Guests

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 20.—More than 50 business and professional men from Martinsburg and vicinity will visit Clarksburg Monday night and Tuesday on their fellowship tour of the State.

The party will arrive here after being dinner guests at Grafton Monday evening, and be received by chamber of commerce members and others.

A hotel breakfast will be served Tuesday morning for the visitors. After an inspection of local industries and other points of interest, the tourists will leave for Fairmont, where they will spend Tuesday night.

Annapolis Chamber Sets Exposition in July

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 20.—The Annapolis Chamber of Commerce has decided to hold its annual trade exposition late in July. Harry S. Kenchington was named chairman of a committee on plans. Associated with him will be Barney Berman, Capt. Simon S. Martin, T. Ogle Tilghman, Jesse G. Simpson and Reuben Labovitz.

The chamber also is planning its annual moonlight excursion frolic.

Justice Aid Confers With Copeland

assistant in the investigation "introduces the element of humor," but added:

"Mitchell will be given an opportunity to amplify his charges at any time."

Mitchell belied his mild appearance with several vehement outbursts in the course of his Senate testimony. Both fist and sleeve buttons tapped the table so vigorously as to make the microphone of the amplification system jump and emit a thunder which rendered his words indistinguishable.

These episodes generally were associated with tales of his efforts to bring about reforms in the department while still in office, assertions that he was blocked by Roper and that when major matters came up for settlement he was "ignored as much as though he were not in the department."

It was Chairman Copeland (Democrat), New York, who took emphatic exception to his testimony on the steamboat inspection service as linked with the Morro Castle disaster.

"Where is your evidence?" he asked impatiently after repeated allusions to the subject.

"I know you're wrong about the Morro Castle and I don't think it was fair for you to infer that inefficient steamship inspection was responsible," the Senator said.

"I say 'may have been responsible,'" Mitchell doggedly answered. "No one knows what the cause was, but I say that inefficient inspection can cause such disasters."

Previously Copeland had asked what reason he had for such statements.

"Well, sir," Mitchell replied, "the last inspection of the Morro Castle itself. The derelictions of inspectors in Puerto Rico and the fact that I was told it was the custom for inspectors to accept gratuities after each inspection in New York, I asked that secret service agents be put on the job to see how much of that was going on."

Otherwise, Mitchell testified that he thought charges he had preferred were responsible for the resignation of two Shipping Board officials, H. I. Cone and J. W. Barnett; that lobbyists constantly were pressing favors upon officials of the Air Commerce Bureau; that because of his critical attitude, matters which should have passed over his desk were routed around him directly to Roper, and that he repeatedly but unavailingly urged a "house cleaning" in the Air Commerce Bureau.

Peacemaker Shot In Family Affair

Father Held; Victim Says He Befriended Boy.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Webster Springs, W. Va., June 20. Webster County officers today arrested Bud Anderson, 66, Hackers Valley farmer, charged with shooting and wounding Leslie King, 24, an employe, when, police assert, the latter attempted to protect Anderson's small son, Richard, from the anger of his father.

With two revolver bullets in the upper part of his chest, King, who was rushed to a Buckhannon hospital, has slight chance of recovery.

In a statement to officers, King said Anderson first knocked him down with a poker, and grabbing a pistol shot him twice in the scuffle which followed. Anderson declares he shot in self-defense.

Presidential Timber Cited by Fr. Coughlin

Memphis, Tenn., June 20 (AP).—Named today by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, as potential candidates for the Presidency, "though some of them don't know it themselves," were Senators Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma; Burton Wheeler, Montana; George Norris, Nebraska; Robert M. La Follette, Wisconsin, and the latter's brother, Gov. Phil La Follette, of Wisconsin.

In an interview between trains, Father Coughlin said there was a possibility of an effort to run Gov. La Follette on the Roosevelt ticket, replacing Vice President Garner.

Peery Cools All Hopes For $1,000,000 Project

Richmond, Va., June 20 (AP).—Gov. Peery definitely ended hopes for immediate construction of the proposed $1,000,000 new State office building today by declaring Virginia had no funds for that purpose and he saw no "emergency" that would justify borrowing the money.

The Governor said he was carefully considering the suggestion for a new building, but added that it was a matter for the General Assembly to decide.

As the Governor has steadfastly declined appeals for a special session of the Assembly for relief appropriations and other purposes, his statement was interpreted as deferring action on the new building at least until the regular legislative session in January.

Catlet Named to Parks Post.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., June 20.—Hillary C. Catlet, native of Frederick County, Va., but resident in this county for some years, has been named superintendent of the State Park here to fill the vacancy caused by the death of D. H. Phillips. He began his duties this week. He has not announced his staff.

Circulation Managers' Group Elects Officers

Cincinnati, June 20 (AP).—Members of the International Circulation Managers Association today elected Louis Hoffman, of the St. Louis (Mo.) Star-Times, president succeeding Frank Newell, of the Toledo (Ohio) Blade.

Walter Rauck, of the Pittsburgh Press, was chosen first vice president, and Dave Smith, of the Portland Oregonian, second vice president. Clarence Eysder, of the Peoria (Ill.) Star was re-elected secretary-treasurer, and L. W. McFedtridge, of the Tulsa (Okla.) World, was re-elected sergeant at arms.

New directors chosen include Ralph Feaman, St. Louis; Mac Halmbacher, Oklahoma City, and Clem O'Rourke, Cleveland.

Baron de Bles Dies; Allied Officers Head

Hollywood, June 20 (AP).—Baron Arthur de Bles, British administrator in Cologne, on the Rhine River, in the World War, died in his hotel suite here, Tuesday night, his friends learned today.

He was a major in the British Royal Fusilliers and at his death was national commander of the Order of Allied Officers of the War.

Baron de Bles came here five months ago to complete a book. Baroness de Bles was with him at his death, caused by a heart attack.

Fraud Feared In U. S. Subsidy For Ship Lines

Wearin and Brewster Flay Bill on Ground Its Principles Are Unsound.

By the Associated Press.

A warning that proposed ship construction ad operation subsidies might be "productive of fraud" was handed the House yesterday in a minority report on the ship subsidy bill approved early this week by the House Merchant Marine Committee.

Representative Wearin (Democrat), of Iowa, ad Brewster (Republican), of Maine, signed the minority report, listing specific objections to the measure and asserting that amendments could be expected on the floor to correct what they consider evils in the bill.

They said the bill contains "fundamentally unsound principles."

Earlier in the day, a majority of the committee urged prompt action on the legislation, requested by the President in a special message to Congress. Without it, the majority repotr said, the President may have to cancel ocean mail contracts and that might lead again to Government ownership and perhaps Government operation of some ship lines.

The bill would create a Federal merchant marine authority, provide construction and operation subsidies, permit adjustment of the mail contracts, and increase liability of shipowners for loss of life or injury to passengers.

Wearin and Brewster contended among other things that "the method by which both the construction subsidy and the operating subsidy are to be computed is unworkable and productive of fraud."

Court Clears Olson In Trial on Ouster

By the Associated Press.

Minneapolis, June 20.—Ouster proceedings against Gov. Floyd B. Olson, which he called "just another of those things," were dismissed by District Judge H. D. Dickinson today before a crowded, cheering courtroom.

"The court will have to find the Governor had no financial interest in the Minnesota Leader," Judge Dickinson ruled, "and certainly the omission of donated radio time from his campaign expense accounting is not a violation of the corrupt practices act."

Olson had been accused of violating the corrupt practices act on two counts by 29 petitioners, who charged that as a member of the Farmer-Labor Party he had an interest in the party's newspaper and therefore had not reported true campaign expense accounts. The other charge dealt with radio time paid for by a group, with which Olson had no connection.

The trial had lasted four days. It was ended with the directed verdict shortly after Olson himself had testified.

D. C. Pair, 79 and 80, Licensed to Marry

Life begins at 80 for two retired Washington Government workers, both born before the Civil War.

Associated Press dispatches from Harrisburg, Pa., told of the issuance of a marriage license there to Michael A. Gruber, 80, and Miss Ida Walker, 79, both of 2750 Fourteenth street northwest.

Gruber formerly worked at the War Department, while Mrs. Gruber was employed at the Treasury until a few years ago.

Friends reported the couple formerly lived in the same Washington boarding house. Their friendship dated back almost a half century.

The bridegroom's first wife died last October. He has several grown daughters.

Federal Rule Of Rails Asked In Resolution

Financial Houses Looting Carriers, Association Charges.

By the Associated Press.

Charging that financial houses have looted the railroads of the country, the Railway Labor Executives Association yesterday adopted a resolution urging immediate taking over of the carriers by the Federal Government.

The resolution said financial institutions holding large amounts of railway bonds had obtained the power to control railway managements because of the wide distribution of stocks among individual holders and that through these means and "the creation of highly questionable holding companies the bankers have riveted their control on this most vital industry."

In order to meet the extremely high interest and rental charges due to this situation, the resolution charged, railroad managements have found it necessary to dispense with the services of "hundreds of thousands of railway workers."

It added that a large number of communities throughout the country have been destroyed "to increase the returns to the wholly irresponsible groups controlling the railways."

The Railway Labor Executives Association is composed of the presidents of all of the standard railway labor unions, headed by Chairman George M. Harrison.

Meanwhile, legislation urged by President Roosevelt to speed up reorganization of financially pressed railroads advanced in Congress yesterday with the approval by the House Judiciary Committee of a bill embodying the proposals of Coordinator Joseph B. Eastman.

House Leaders, Treasury Split On Liquor Rule

Morgenthau Rejects Plan to Give Him Control of New FACA.

By the Associated Press.

Open criticism by House members of Secretary Morgenthau and the Federal Alcohol Control Administration yesterday spotlighted the quarrel between the Treasury and the House Ways and Means Committee over the type of Federal liquor control to be used henceforth.

At bottom of the wrangling was a bill redrafted by the Ways and Means Committee so as to create a new Federal Alcohol Control Administration, but put it under the Treasury Secretary and permit liquor to be sold in kegs or barrels. The present FACA was declared invalid under the Supreme Court's NRA code decision.

Morgenthau yesterday joined Joseph H. Choate, FACA chief, in disagreeing with the committee idea. So strongly did Choate feel about it that Wednesday night he proposed to resign.

Says Morgenthau Doesn't Know.

One committee member, Fuller (Democrat), Arkansas, bluntly asserted that the "Secretary doesn't know what he is talking about." Another, Cullen (Democrat), New York, took issue with the Treasury chief's assertion it could not and should not enforce liquor-control laws.

At a press conference yesterday, Morgenthau remarked that if sale of liquor in barrels was authorized he would "need an army to enforce" the laws. He added a hope that the FACA would be revived, asserting that the Treasury's job was to collect liquor revenue, while the FACA was concerned about "social aspects of the situation."

The two jobs, Morgenthau said, are not related.

Morgenthau also opposed any legislation that would permit sale of liquor in bulk.

President Backs Morgenthau.

"Furthermore, the President feels exactly and just as strongly about the matter as I do," he said.

Chairman Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, of the Ways and Means Committee, emphasizing that he did not wish to criticize Morgenthau, said he wondered why the Secretary was discussing the situation with newspapermen instead of the committee.

He said that hearings on the pending bill had been closed so far as Administration representatives were concerned with the understanding that they could be reopened for Morgenthau. The Treasury chief, he added, would be welcomed. Nothing had been heard directly from Morgenthau.

Liquor Monopoly Charged.

Fuller said of Morgenthau:

"He is listening sympathetically to (Dr. James M.) Doran, who controlled the alcohol prohibition unit during prohibition, who helped draw the old liquor codes and who now is hired by big distillers and drawing $36,000 a year from them.

"Three or four big distillers and bottlers have a monopoly on the liquor business. We're trying to break that up."

Cullen, chairman of the ways and means liquor sub-committee, declared that "from time immemorial liquor laws have been under the Treasury we are trying to restore the pre-prohibition set-up except that because of the new problems we propose a new division in the Treasury."

Staunton Academy Catalogues on Hand

New Supply Ready for Scholarship Contestants.

A new supply of Staunton catalogues, for boys who plan to enter The Washington Post $2,000 scholarship contest, is ready for mailing. Profusely illustrated, and giving details of the various courses and extra-curricular activities, the catalogues, will be helpful in writing this essay on "Why I would like to go to Staunton," which is required of every contestant.

The competition, which if being conducted by The Post and the District Department of the American Legion, is open to boys whose fathers saw service in the World War. Contestants must live in Washington, or their fathers must belong to a legion post in the District Department. They must have completed second year high school this June, to be prepared to enter the junior year at Staunton Military Academy next fall. The winner will spend two years there, with all expenses paid. Second place winner will spend a week in August at Camp Calvert, near Leonardtown, Md.

Application blanks, rules and catalogue may be obtained by writing Alice Fox Pitts, Staunton Contest Director, The Washington Post.

Cities to Bear Works Share, Says Hopkins

State Directors Told to Get 'as Much as Possible' From Big Centers.

on the part of Government employes.

"In public office," he said, "a man is more competent if he knows something about politics. The biggest failures I ever knew in public life were business men."

Hopkins said that when he employed Berry he did not know he had been discharged by Ickes. He said he considered Berry "a very good man," but that if he had known the circumstances he would have consulted Ickes before hiring him. He added that Ickes had not raised any quetsion about Berry.

Ickes announced that he had withdrawn a loan and grant of $2,691,800 formerly allotted the University of Georgia because the security promised had been withdrawn by the State Legislature. He declared that Gov. Talmadge, as a regent of the university, had asked for the money and then had approved the bill depriving the Government of the promised security.

"I'm not taking promises from Georgia," Ickes said.

He denied that this and previous withdrawals of money from Georgia and similar withdrawals from Louisiana were based on political considerations.

Replying to a published criticism that the works program was without a plan, Ickes declared that there should be a plan for the future, but that "when you are right in an emergency you must go catch-as-catch can."

Discussing his plan to get money from cities, Hopkins declared the kind of projects to be built in given localities will depend on the amount of local money available. Much of this money, he pointed out, can be obtained through loans from old PWA funds up to 55 per cent of the cost.

Hopkins indicated that considerable attention will be given to the improvement of farm-to-market highways under the works program.

In addressing the rural resettlement directors, President Roosevelt said that people in the cities are realizing "that their own prosperity depends, in a very large part, on the prosperity of people who live and work outside of cities."

"The Resettlement Administration," he said, "has begun a work in which we all believe. You who are here today are entrusted with the duty of bringing not only new hope, but a new program into the lives of a great many thousands of families."

He said that in many cases "we have to establish a better relationship between people and the sources of their living."

Stressing again the limitation on expenditures, the President siad:

"On the average, we can not spend more than $1,143 for each family taken care of. That makes a problem in management. It will challenge your ingenuity and require the most careful administration."

Warning against politics, he said:

"I know you won't mind my saying what I said to the relief administrator of the 48 States the other day. We can not, must not, and will not let politics enter into this work. It makes no difference what a family in need of rural resettlement, in one form or another, calls itself. The fact is that, if the need exists, you must help out, and you have my authority—as I told the works progress administrators the other day—to disregard partisan political pressure in any case where an attempt is made to exert it. You can tell them from me that you are not allowed to do it and that you are not going to do it."

The President said in conclusion that in the coming year he hoped "to get around the country a bit to visit and see with my own eyes what you have accomplished."

The Division of Applications and Information announced that the President had approved additional allotments totaling $40,043,272. These included $13,827,500 to the Forestry Service for improvements on national forests and adjacent privately owned forests; $25,000,000 to the Soil Conservation Service for a national program of soil conservation, and $1,215,772 for Army construction projects.

The last sum included $3,500 for a combination outbuilding and garage at the Soldiers' Home National Cemetery in Washington. The Army allotment also included $202,090 for new buildings, reconstruction and other improvements at Fort Myer and Arlington Cemetery.

Nice, Fletcher Lash New Deal In W. Virginia

Tri-County Rally in Sharp Attack on Program; Dickinson Talks.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 20.—National and State Republican leaders made a vigorous attack upon the New Deal program in a three-county (Berkeley, Morgan and Jefferson) rally at a suburban park here this afternoon, called both to lay lines for the 1936 campaign and effect a permanent Eastern Panhandle party organization. This, however, had not been completed tonight.

Under the chairmanship of Henry P. Fletcher, head of the Republican National Committee, a succession of speakers agreed in terming the New Deal futile and called for support of the Republican program which Chairman Fletcher said was for an "orderly advancement, within and under, not around or against, the fundamental law."

Dickinson Talks.

United States Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, making the principal address, called the recovery program a "complete failure" and charged the Administration is now proceeding with the expenditure of $4,800,000,000 work relief money with "virtually no plans." Dickinson predicted a move by the Administration to amend the Constitution to permit continuance of the New Deal policies.

Gov. Harry W. Nice of Maryland called for "abandonment of experimentation without regard to cost or the taking into account of the inevitable repayment. We must not be led away by the alluring but futile promises of the experimentalist or the extremist." He predicted that the present "chaos will shortly give way to orderly readjustment and that there will be no serious injury done to any one or any group." Gov. Nice said he would endeavor to have the 1936 Republican convention come to Maryland.

Free Barbecue.

Walter S. Hallanan, of Charleston, national committeeman for West Virginia; former Gov. E. F. Morgan, of West Virginia; Mayor Wertz, of Hagerstown, Md.; former Representative from the Fifth West Virginia District, Hugh Ikeshott, of Bluefield; H. G. Greer, newspaper publisher, of Morgantown, W. Va., and Mrs. Cara L. Ebert, of Parkersburg, national committee woman for West Virginia, spoke briefly. Mrs. Ebert made a bid for the woman vote, declaring it is essentially a conservative vote which should be in the Republican Party.

The speaking was the high spot of a day's activities. Music, sports contests, swimming and parading were included in the program, followed by free barbecue sandwiches. Visiting leaders were guests this evening of J. O. Henson, a county leader, at his suburban home here.

Warburg Resigns As Bank Executive

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 20.—James P. Warburg today announced his resignation as vice chairman of the board of the Bank of Manhattan Co. He will continue as a director.

He will give up his official duties with the bank June 30.

In presenting his resignation, Warburg said it was his opinion the bank would not in the future require his services as one of its chief executives and should be relieved from paying him a salary as such.

Besides his activities which made him one of the best known bankers in Wall Street, he achieved a considerable reputation throughout the country because of discussions, debates and writings on banking and economic subjects.

Lee Tracy Found On Way to Port

Film Star Turns Up After Three Days.

By the United Press.

San Pedro, Calif., June 20.—Lee Tracy, wise-cracking film comedian, who had been missing with his yacht at sea since Sunday, was found today, uninjured and proceeding to port.

Tracy and two compainons left Santa Monica, Calif., Friday on a fishing and hunting expedition to Santa Cruz Island. His yacht, Adore, a 61-foot auxiliary cruiser, was returning under its own power, according to a Coast Guard radiogram.

Two Coast Guard cutters and a flying boat started search for Tracy when friends reported he was three days overdue and that they feared an accident had occurred.

Liquor Monopoly Complete in State

Old Point Comfort Hotel Denied Exemption.

By the Associated Press.

The Virginia State retail liquor monopoly now is complete—not even Government reservations are excepted.

A Senate joint resolution concurred in by the House yesterday blotted out the last contention of the Chamberlin Hotel, at Old Point Comfort, that it by virtue of its location on a Federal reservation had a right to sell liquor in violation of the State law.

Representative Bland, of Newport News, said the House had concurred in the Senate-approved resolution introduced by Senator Harry F. Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, early in the current session of Congress. The Virginia liquor law reserves to the State only the right to the retail sale of liquor. The State must sell it in sealed packages and over the counters of State stores.

Virginia Faces Tax Increases To Pension Old

23,070 Eligibles Will Cost State $2,500,000 Per Year, Is Estimate.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., June 20.—"An increase in taxes or imposition of new taxes" in Virginia will be necessary to raise the estimated $2,500,000 annual cost of a State pension law paralleling the social security bill passed yesterday by the National Senate, Budget Director J. H. Bradford predicted today.

The two-and-a-half million estimate was made by William R. Shands, director of research, who figured on the basis of Virginia population and experience of States which already have pension plans.

Shands calculated the total annual cost of pensions to an estimated 23,070 eligibles in Virginia at $4,863,923, of which the Federal Government would pay half and the State half. Other estimates of cost to Virginia varied from $11,000,000 to $356,000.

The research director has been studying the old-age pension problem at request of Gov. Peery, who declined to comment today on enactment of the national measure except to say he did not know what further investigation was necessary in this State.

Bradford, asked if the sum calculated by Shands could be obtained from present tax sources, answered emphatically "No."

"We sincerely hope that assemblymen favoring State participation in the old-age pension plan will come to Richmond in January with suggestions as to how the money will be raised," the budget director declared.

Dozen Housewives Visit AAA And Threaten Wide Meat Strike

By the United Press.

A dozen women in house dresses and plain-cut coats walked into the Agriculture Department yesterday, told officials there that several hundred thousand families have eaten no meat for a month and threatened a Nation-wide buying strike unless meat prices are lowered at once.

The housewives said they were tired of eating vegetables alone and would call upon their sisters throughout the land to boycott butcher shops unless the Government forces down the cost of meat.

They represented the United Conference Against the High Cost of Living, at Chicago, and the New York City Action Committee Against the High Cost of Living.

Their organizations, they added, have spread to Pittsburgh, Paterson, N. J., St. Louis and Cleveland. Unless the Government stops price fixing "by the rich meat monopolies" and drops the "AAA food destruction program," they said they would crusade through the country for recruits.

Mrs. Pearl Yarris, of New York City, represented her fellow housewives in the Bronx.

"Why is it," she demanded, "that the cost of living has gone up 36 per cent since your New Deal started and the average wage has gone down 5 per cent?"

Dr. Calvin B. Hoover, AAA consumer's counsel, challenged her figures.

Mrs. Mary Kryza, of Chicago, perhaps 50 years old, represented the housewives of the Berwyn district.

"No wonder," she said, "that children steal and grow up into lives of crime. Some of them have to steal food. Their parents can not afford to buy it."

Mrs. Emma Stams, of Yorkville, N. Y., younger than most of her group, said that she and her husband had not touched one bite of meat since the first of May.

Miss Rose Nelson, of New York, acted as spokesman of the delegation. Finding Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace out of town, they called upon G. B. Thorn, chief of the AAA corn-hog section, who had Consumers Counsel Hoover and Assistant AAA Administrator Alfred D. Stedman in his office.

Miss Nelson accused the Administration of dodging the high-cost-of-living issue and said the "rich packers" were at fault.

"We wish the gentlemen who say that the farmers are receiving the extra dollar for meat, would state which farmers they are referring to. Is it the wealthy dude cattle rancher, the landlord who traveled in a Pullman to Washington to support the AAA, or the poor farmer who is on the verge of being driven from the land?"

Dr. Hoover said he was deeply conscious of the housewives' problem. He said he was anxious for incomes to increase rapidly so that citizens will have more money for food.

"I'm tremendously interested in doing anything I can to keep down exhorbitant profits," he said, "but in many respects we do not have the proper machinery."

Wilgus Advises Public Acquire Rail Ownership

Builder of Grand Central Says Systems Need to Be Co-ordinated.

By the Associated Press.

Canton, N. Y., June 20.—The belief that the public should own the railroads and that all forms of transportation should be co-ordinated under a strong directorship was expressed today at the conference on Canadian-American relations by William J. Wilgus, consulting engineer, and builder of the Grand Central Terminal, in New York.

It does not follow necessarily, Wilgus said, that the public should also operate the railroads, although he said he should like to see eventual public operation.

"Private capital refuses longer to contribute to the financing of railways," he said, "and Government ownership is the only way—but Government operation need not go hand-in-hand."

"There should be a treaty between the United States and Canada," he said, "which would create an international board which would consider matters of common interest (such as co-ordinating railways, motor transport, aerial transport and waterways) and where legislative action was needed—make such recommendations."

The conference reached its fourth day today at St. Lawrence University.

Wilgus was preceded by Leslie Thomson, consulting engineer of Montreal, who gave an extensive outline of the costs of the St. Lawrence deep waterway, and pictured it as a project that would pay economically in indirect benefits.

"It is probably true," he said, "that one of the indirect effects of the waterway would be to distribute industry more uniformly over the continent than is now the case. Most economists would agree that the intense concentration of industrial life at a few huge centers in a whole continent is not as economically sound as a more evenly distributed series of smaller concentrations — provided transportation facilities are adequate."

Hopkins Praises Virginia Setup

Sees Co-Ordination of U. S. and State Works.

By the Associated Press.

A word of praise was given the new Virginia works progress program yesterday by Federal Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

"It is a good program," said Hopkins immediately after a press conference in which he said work on secondary roads would be one of the major items of the new works progress.

The Virginia plan co-ordinates all of the Federal relief activities in the State to put to work the entire Virginia relief load. The plan was worked out with the aid of John Galleher, the new NEC director for Virginia, whose job is to co-ordinate ERA, PWA and highway relief activities. The program contemplates the expenditure of approximately $80,000,000 during the year.

U. S. Approves 24-Hour Delay In Waley Trial

Court Appoints Counsel as Kidnaper Is Confused, Asks Questions.

By the Associated Press.

Tacoma, Wash., June 20. — The Government encountered a 24-hour delay in its attempt to speed Mr. and Mrs. Harmon M. Waley to prison for life for the $200,000 ransom kidnaping of George Weyerhaeuser at the arraignment today of the red-haired former convict and his 19-year-old wife.

Both the Waleys at first waived the right to have attorneys, indicating they might plead guilty to one or more of the charges involving them and the fugitive William Mahan.

But when the husband professed a lack of understanding of one of the indictments, Federal Judge E. E. Cushman appointed counsel for them.

Solicitous for His Wife.

Stephen J. O'Brien, the attorney appointed, then requested and received a continuance until 2 p. m. tomorrow for their pleas.

Waley's rather hesitant interposition, aimed at a charge of conspiracy to kidnap, was interpreted as possibly indicating solicitude for his young wife.

"All I want," he said, "is to have the indictment explained. I want to ask where it charges we all three conspired—does that mean before or after the kidnaping?"

Wife Is Charged Alone.

His remark recalled assertions that Mrs. Waley was not as deeply involved in the crime as her husband and the widely hunted Mahan.

The Waleys each are accused in two indictments of mail fraud, extortion, conspiracy to kidnap and transporting the 9-year-old timber heir across a State line in violation of the "Lindbergh law." Another indictment charging the mailing of a second ransom note involves Mrs. Waley alone.

Throughout the proceedings Mrs. Waley clenched her hands tightly in the pockets of her checked coat and kept her head bowed low. Her 24-year-old husband appeared embarrassed, but glanced occasionally at her.

Insanity Verdict Scored by Judge

Slayer of Boarder Called Normal by Alienist.

Los Angeles, June 20 (AP).—A jury's verdict that Mrs. Gladys Carter, 28, was temporarily insane when she shot and killed 20-year-old Frances Walker, a boarder in her home, was denounced today by Superior Judge Fletcher Bowrow. Mrs. Carter was convicted of manslaughter last week and then tried for her sanity.

Judge Bowron voiced his criticism after receiving a report of Dr. Paul Bowers, an alienist he appointed yesterday to examine Mrs. Carter, that she "is sane now and always has been sane."

The jury's verdict, however, Judge Bowron pointed out, "left the law no alternative but to set her free."

Judge Bowron ordered Mrs. Carter taken to psychopathic court for final examination by the lunacy tle doubt she would escape incarcommission, but said there was litceration in an insane institution.

Two Boys Given 'Life' For Kidnaping Sheriff

Jasper, Ind., June 20 (AP).—Two Huntington (W. Va.) "kids" received life terms in the Indiana Reformatory today for kidnaping of Ed Leugers, Dubois County sheriff.

The pair, Bascum Ray, jr., 14, and Maurice Sheridan, 17, warned by Judge John L. Sumner that they faced a serious charge, declined to consult an attorney and pleaded guilty. They accepted their sentences without show of emotion. The lads admitted kidnaping the sheriff from in front of the jail here Monday after he had arrested them for illegal possession of liquor and theft of an automobile.

Train Strike Ends Today in Omaha

Pay Rise Waived in Truce Ending 2 Months' Tie-up.

By the United Press.

Omaha, Nebr., June 20. — Union employes of the Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Railway Co. will go back to work tomorrow, ending a strike of two months, during which 2 men were killed and 50 injured, Chairman John Ledwith, of a special arbitration committee, announced late today.

Eighteen hundred National Guardsmen will remain in the city under martial law for a few days, at least, Gov. Roy Cochran said.

Ledwith announced a tentative settlement of the dispute to which spokesmen for the union and company agreed.

Union demands of increased wages and full union recognition were "waived" by the arbitration committee, Ledwith said. A new committee will consider the third point of the dispute, which concerns seniority rights.

Butter and Eggs and Alimony.

Chicago, June 20 (AP).—Claiming his wife had tied up all his assets by court action, John Edward Cawkwell, butter and egg dealer, won an order today requiring Mary, his estranged wife, to pay him $15 a week "temporary alimony" pending the settlement of their separate maintenance proceedings.

Judge Refuses to Drop Frazier-Lemke Petitions

Muskogee, Okla., June 20 (AP).—Warning farm creditors to "be reasonable to stave off other radical legislation," Federal Judge R. L. Williams refused today to draw a blanket order dismissing 40 Frazier-Lemke mortgage moratorium petitions. The Frazier-Lemke act was held unconstitutional May 26.

Judge Williams vacated orders of conciliators for sale of property over the creditor's protests, however, and disallowed the findings of appraisers.

Yugoslavia Cabinet Falls After Futile Shuffling

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, June 20 (U.P.). The government was overthrown by internal political developments tonight, Premier Bogojlub Yevtitch resigning after a futile effort to save his ministry by reshuffling several portfolios.

Plane Hits Car, Kills 3, Injures 3 In Mimic War

Drags Parked Auto 75 Ft.; Fliers Hurt, Family Is Wiped Out.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, June 20.—Faltering in its take-off, an Army airplane engaged in mimic warfare maneuvers over southern California crashed into a parked automobile near here today and killed a family of three, including an expectant mother.

Three Army fliers were injured, one seriously.

The plane dragged the automobile 75 feet and crashed into a bank at the Griffith Park National Guard airport.

The dead:

Mrs. Freda L. Krauss, 23, stenographer on leave of absence because of her expectation of motherhood.

Lieut. George D. Campbell was injured seriously but only minor injuries were received by Flying Cadet T. R. Walsh, pilot of the plane, and Second Lieut. W. W. Parinis. The three are from Brooks Field, San Antonio, Tex.

Only about 2 feet from the ground and traveling some 65 miles an hour, the P-35 observation biplane suddenly swerved to the right and smashed through the top of Krauss' touring car.

Firemen discovered the building filled with frankfurters, and before they had extinguished the blaze the sausages were roasted to perfection.

Wealthy Class Of China Flees Japanese Rule

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.

Kalgan, Chahar Province, June 20.—Wealthy Chinese, fearing that Japan's relentless penetration of China soon will engulf all inner Mongolia today were leaving this outpost on the caravan route across the Gobi Desert in numbers.

They carried with them their wealth and belongings to seek farther south places of greater safety from the surge of Japan's advance into continental Asia.

Business men and Chinese officials agreed that Japan ultimately would reduce Kalgan, the picturesque frontier city at China's Great Wall; the rich Province of Chahar and probably all inner Mongolia, to the status of Hopei Province, which has come under the Japanese army's virtual domination.

In support of that belief, they cited the growing list of Chinese concessions to the Japanese army's demands and increasing evidences here of Japan's military might. These included:

1. Gov. Sung Sheh-Yuan's dismissal by Nanking as part of Japan's price for settlement of the "Changpei incident," involving the detention of four Japanese.

2. Authoritative reports that Sung's army, now the only obstacle blocking Japan's expansion, would be removed shortly.

3. A swift increase in the Japanese population of Kalgan, swelled by every train from Peiping, which clusters around the fortress-like structure housing the Japanese consulate.

4. Presence of mysterious Japanese, often in Chinese garb, at the railway station to survey arrivals and departures.

5. Chinese officials' abolishment of Chahar branches of the Kuomintang, the National government party.

6. Their action, at Japan's demand, in wiping out anti-Japanese elements in Chahar.

7. The reported granting of permission for the Japanese to construct an airdrome near Kalgan.

Though Japanese airplanes swoop low over the city and troops stationed in Manchukuo roam freely about Chahar's eastern limits, Gen. Sung's troops, warned not to provoke the Japanese, have offered no resistance and residents have grown so used to Japan's military maneuvers that they now pay little attention.

A high staff officer of the provincial government said that Chahar Province ultimately would be demilitarized on Japan's wish—which "may satisfy the Japanese temporarily," he commented, "though it is doubtful whether they will be contented in the long run with anything short of direct control."

"While we have received no instructions from Nanking," he said, "we have good reason to believe the withdrawal of Sung's army is contemplated as soon as a new garrison area can be found for it. It may be two or three months before the transfer will be possible, and, meanwhile, the army will remain here."

Lindbergh Invents Glass Lung And Heart as Aid to Medicine

the mechanical genius, which is Col. Lindbergh's contribution to the Rockefeller scientists.

It is a glass coil, set on a table which both rotates and rocks. Result, the top of the coil arcs like a Roman candle and the fluid in the coil thereby circulates, in a completely closed system, without any pumps or joints.

It is also a lung. For air is forced into the coil as desired while it whirls.

This first heart and lungs failed to do the work required. Several changes have been made. The successful one was made this year and the institute's manager said it is quite different from the first.

This new artificial heart circulates a mixture of protein-split products, hemin (a lactic acid and salt formation of blood), cystein (body sulphur), insulin, thyroxin (the thyroid gland hormone), glutathoine (which enables fats to use oxygen), vitamin A, ascorbic acid (vitamin C) and blood serum.

The fluid is colored with the dye, phenol red.

The Lindbergh pump is also a lung. It carries a mixture of gas, 40 per cent oxygen, 3 to 4 carbon dioxide, the rest nitrogen.

This heart beats 60 times a minute, regular pressure. It carries also glucose and bicarbonate—and, in order that these two may be in sufficient quantities for several days of artificial living, the original fluid has to be 2,000 times more in volume than the tissues removed from the body.

"It's ultimate purposes," the announcement states, "are manufacture in vitro of the secretions of endocrine glands, the isolation of substances essential to the growth, differentiation and functional activity of those glands, the discovery of the laws of associations of organs, the production in vitro and the treatment of organic and arterial diseases, etc."

Describing some of the 26 experiments, the authors state: "Some organs were transferred several times from apparatus to apparatus. Infection occurred twice only. This accident took place in spleens that obviously were contaminated before removal from the abdomen.

"Changes in form and volume took place in the organs from day to day. Ovaries and thyroids modified their form and grew rapidly."

In the ovaries observed, three corpora lutea formed—small organs associated with pregnancy. In both thyroids and ovaries there was considerable rapid growth (proliferation) and some disorganization.

The authors do not state whether this proliferation in any way resembled cancer.

The thyroids set free substances which markedly stimulated white blood cells, or disease scavengers. The whole life of these organs so far observed is filled with complex changes.

The idea of whole organs living artificially was proposed in 1812 by the physiologist, Le Gallois. In 1866 De Cyon kept the heart of a frog beating 48 hours. In 1858 Brown-Sequard restored partial temporary life to a decapitated head.

By the Associated Press.

Toronto June 20.—Discovery of a vitamin which may help in the further control of diabetes was credited here today to Dr. C. H. Best, professor of physiology in the University of Toronto and co-worker with Sir Frederick Banting in his insulin researches. Dr. Best declined to comment.

Collaborating with the Toronto scientist in his reported discovery, it was asserted, were Dr. J. M. Hershey, chief chemist in the university's insulin testing laboratory, and Miss M. E. Huntsman, demonstrator in physiology.

It was said reliably that the essential chemical of the new vitamin is choline, a well-known compound that dilates blood vessels. Choline was discovered in the course of insulin investigations.

Dogs that had no pancreas, the insulin-secreting organ, lived only a few months even when given insulin injections, it was reported, but lived for years when they were fed minced pancreas.

Paris May Ask Naval Pledge From England

will be sought, it was authoritatively stated, since Britain, though she wants the air pact as soon as possible, wishes to know France's views first.

The British also will assure the French that this government has no intention of departing from the principles of the Anglo-French declaration of February 3, unless it be with France's acquiescence. French spokesmen already have criticised the agreement with Germany as violating the spirit of that pronouncement.

Britain's naval conferees met the German delegation, headed by Gen. Joachim von Ribbentrop, at the admiralty again this afternoon, and it was expected the conversations, intended to smooth out working of the agreement, would be concluded Saturday.

A German spokesman said all proposals concerning the dates, of construction, sizes and types of Germany's new boats could not be definitely decided until the general naval conference was held—"that is," he added, "if we are invited."

It was authoritatively stated the Reich concurred in Britain's unchanged desire to restrict drastically, or even abolish, submarines. A supplementary agreement embodying these principles was said to be in preparation. It would be tentative pending conversations here with French, Italian and Russian authorities, in that order.

Eden, who was accompanied by William Strang, foreign office expert, was to spend two days in the French capital, and was expected to complete arrangements for the Anglo-French talks.

Clean-up Suggested For Ancient Coliseum

By the United Press.

Rome, June 20.—An unsigned letter was prominently displayed in La Tribuna today, suggesting the ancient coliseum be whitewashed immediately, or painted light green or rose.

The letter, evoking considerable discussion in historic and scientific circles, said the coliseum is being kept in a "complete state of abandonment," and suggested it be spruced up.

In addition to painting the exterior, the writer suggested the coliseum be cleaned, the cornices repaired and holes drilled during the Middle Ages to extract iron, be filled.

Throws Girl and Self Under Train; Both Die

Katowitz, Poland, June 20 (U.P.).—Frank Mak, unemployed, sentenced a year ago to 18 months in prison for the attempted murder of his sweetheart, was released for a short "vacation" today, before completing his sentence.

Mak rushed to the home of his sweetheart, Elizabeth Snesholtyszk, and suggested they take a walk, because "I have something important to tell you."

He took her to a railroad crossing and waited until a train was almost upon them. He hurled her onto the tracks and held her down.

Both were killed instantly.

Ottawa Envoy Back From Paris.

New York, June 20 (AP).—Norman Armour, recently appointed American Minister to Canada, who arrived from Europe on the liner Normandie, said tonight he planned to go to Washington immediately. He said he did not expect to go to Canada before the latter part of July.

League Asked To Remain Out Of African Tilt

Mussolini Warns Italy Will Quit if Council Intervenes.

19, which deals with territorial division.

Affari Esteri asserted these two articles were written to go together and 19 must be considered complementary to 10. Mentioning Japan's and Germany's departure from the league, it said:

"Italy is on the threshold. One thing is evident: If another great European state leaves Geneva, the league is dead."

Giornale's suggestion that Ethiopia be forced out of the league was based on allegations that the African empire had not demonstrated ability to control all the territory governed from Addis Ababa; had not fulfilled the agreement limiting arms import, and had not abolished slavery.

Invoking Article 10 of the league covenant, pledging members to respect the territorial integrity of other members, Emperor Haile Selassie's communication asserted aggression by Italy against "the independence and integrity of Ethiopia seems imminent."

"The Italian government has not ceased and does not cease," it continued, "to send to East Africa troops and munitions of war in large quantities. . . . accompanying this with inflammatory arraignments and speeches full of threats to Ethiopia's independence and integrity."

The note accused the Italian press of constantly publishing reports of frontier incidents "with the manifest intention of disturbing the relations of Italy and Ethiopia."

Benito Mussolini's government, it charged, is using these reports of frontier incidents as excuses for the vigorous defensive measures Italy is taking.

A neutral commission should be sent to the Ethiopian frontier, it was suggested, to examine the true state of affairs and report to Geneva.

a sporting offer TO EVERY FAIR-MINDED MOTORIST

We'd like you to know just how good That Good Gulf Gasoline is today. So here's an appeal to your sporting blood . . .
Get re-acquainted with Gulf. Give it a chance to prove that it's really 5 good gasolines in one. Try it for 3 weeks and we're betting you'll agree with the motorists who've already accepted our bid.*
GULF REFINING COMPANY

*"We'll Try It" said 750 car-owners—and Gulf came out on Top!

WE picked 750 motorists "out of a hat"—and made them this proposition: "Buy That Good Gulf Gasoline for 3 weeks—try it in your cars—and give us your answers."

"O. K." they said, "We'll do it."

They compared Gulf, mile by mile, with their regular brand—for (1) mileage (2) starting (3) pick-up (4) power (5) all-around performance.

Out of 750 drivers, 7 out of 10 found Gulf better on one or more of the 5 points—and many on all five.

Why does Gulf top others? Because it is 5 good gasolines in one! Controlled refining builds—not 2 or 3—but five ideal qualities into That Good Gulf gas!

Try Gulf in your car—beginning today. We're betting that you'll make a lifelong friend!

Q: What's the best way of stopping your car—to stop wasting gas?

You'll find the answer to this question in this free Gulf booklet, plus 14 other helpful hints on gasoline economy. It's packed with valuable driving secrets that can save you many dollars a year. Drive in and get your free copy today at the Sign of the Orange Disc.

Slum Clearance Vs. Made Work.

The work-relief program, now converted into a magnified CWA, offers a striking contrast to the District's alley clearance projects. In the one case, the Government proposes to spend billions to create temporary jobs, with little reference to the permanent value of the work to be performed. In the other case, a relatively small sum is required to carry on a community endeavor expected to eliminate sources of crime and disease without ultimate cost to taxpayers.

Few community enterprises launched in recent years are more significant from the social viewpoint than that which is now going forward in Washington under the capable direction of John Ihlder. Malignant sores in the District's social structure are being removed. Areas that have served to nourish pestilence and poverty and to stimulate predatory instincts are being diverted to useful purposes. It is difficult to conceive of a more highly important or desirable community project.

Ultimately the cost of this carefully planned transformation of inhabited alleys is expected to be paid through the sale of the rehabilitated property. In the meantime, however, a considerable fund of working capital is essential to finance the demolition of hovels and their replacement with modern residential or commercial structures. For this purpose Mr. Ihlder has announced that he will seek $3,000,000 from the $4,880,000,000 work-relief fund. If all of this enormous appropriation should be allocated to projects of comparable economic and social value, the works program would stimulate enthusiasm rather than grave misgivings.

Considerable work is being created by the Alley Dwelling Authority. It is well that the undertaking was begun at a time when the need for employment is acute. Nevertheless the creation of jobs is secondary to the larger aim of freeing the community from the menace of its slums. Compliance with Mr. Ihlder's request, therefore, should be taken for granted. More careful planning of the works program would have resulted in the promotion of far more undertakings of this character.

The True University.

Bids for construction of the Library of Congress annex, which were opened March 1, have at last resulted in the contract being awarded. Although the foundation of the annex was completed in February, increases in building construction costs since 1930, when the project was authorized, made it necessary for Congress to appropriate an additional sum. It is now possible for work to begin on the superstructure, which is planned to eliminate the present confusion resulting from the necessity of storing books of one classification in separate stack levels and certain other valuable collections in the cellar.

Some idea of the crowded conditions making this extension expedient is conveyed by the 1934 Annual Report of the Librarian. This notes that during the past year it was necessary to redistribute 686,000 volumes in an effort to gain more space. This was done, says the report, "at a considerable expenditure of time and labor with much embarrassment to the service, not taking into account the damage to binding and physical content of books in consequence of frequent handling."

Extensive use of the library by research students of every State and many foreign countries has raised it to an international ranking that can only be maintained by provision of facilities comparable to its wealth of information. As Carlyle wrote, "The true university of these days is a collection of books." It is, therefore, gratifying to those who take pride in their local institutions that the Library of Congress will soon be able to carry on its splendid service to the public with a minimum of hampering congestion.

Outmoded Street Cars.

What with all the bright lights and gay bunting about the city, our attention was momentarily distracted from the new, pastel-green and slick-running street cars that have made their appearance in Washington. They are vastly superior to their creaking predecessors, but still they do not seem to be the final solution to the District transportation problem. There is more hope of developing a modern transportation system in the pending plan to substitute buses on the northern reaches of Connecticut avenue.

Fortunately, it now develops that buses can offer transport almost, if not equally, as cheap. More than that, buses offer quiet, speed and comparative comfort. In addition, buses need not be operated on the dull, plodding schedules which street cars necessarily must follow. Having no need for tracks, a bus can be driven as a local or an express, depending on the demands of the patrons, a point already proven in an eminently satisfactory manner on the Takoma Park route. And, finally, buses do much to lessen traffic congestion since they do not require preemptory rights to the middle of the street.

It is some years now since the last "tram" was seen in the heart of either London or Paris. As well as in art galleries, we might seek to emulate the older capitals in transportation efficiency.

A Two-Edged Sword.

A month after passing the Senate, by a vote of 63 to 12, the Wagner labor disputes bill has been successfully steered through the House, without a record vote. Unfortunately the ease of passage provides no indication of the problems to which this legislation will give rise. From the constitutional viewpoint it is unquestionably of dubious legality. And the difficulties confronting its administration are almost infinite.

It is important to realize that passage of the bill has been greatly aided by a circumstance which has nothing to do with its merits as legislation. As Representative O'Connor expressed it, in the final debate on the measure, "this labor-disputes bill becomes necessary chiefly because of the Supreme Court decision which disposed of the main part of the NRA, including section 7(a), which provided for the settlement of labor disputes."

There is, however, a vast difference between the general indorsement of collective bargaining, "free from the interference, restraint or coercion of employers," provided by the now defunct NIRA, and the complicated machinery "to promote equality of bargaining power" which the Wagner bill establishes. In the present legislation the emphasis is diametrically opposite to that of section 7(a). It concentrates on applying interference, restraint and coercion to employers as a means of safeguarding employes from those tactics.

Unfortunately there are still some powerful employers in this country who give only lip service to the desirable device of collective bargaining. On their recalcitrant and feudal attitude some of the responsibility for the Wagner bill must be placed. But the remedy provided is far more desperate than a disease which is well on its way to elimination through the normal growth of social enlightenment. Trade unionism in this country has not yet reached the stage of unselfish and constructive purpose where "unfair labor practice" can be arbitrarily attributed to employers alone. That this is the case is the fundamental and fallacious assumption of the Wagner bill. And on this false assumption it makes the development of trade unionism a responsibility of the Federal Government in every locality and in every occupation "affecting commerce."

Even if it were true that trade unionism were a distilled essence of sweetness and light it would still remain an improper function of the Federal Government actively to promote its development. Between the protection of the right to organize and the promotion of organization as a duty of government there is a distinction which advocates of the Wagner bill fail utterly to grasp. And together with this failure is the inability to see that this unwarranted extension of Federal powers is a dangerous two-edged sword. For none is the unseen cutting edge more dangerous than for organized labor itself.

This bill establishes for trade unionism unprecedented rights. It must in the long run follow that unprecedented responsibilities will be exacted by the state as the counterpart of those rights. A House amendment to the Wagner bill, prohibiting strikes during the operation of a collective bargaining agreement, was lost by a narrow vote. If this legislation endures, this logical counterpart will in time be added. Moreover, infliction of legal damages on trade unions for the acts of their members is now thoroughly in order, unless the bill is thrown out on constitutional grounds.

If the Wagner bill, as now written, is inscribed and remains on the statute books, American trade unionism will find, as has happened in Russia, Italy and Germany, that promotion by the state implies subordination to the state. The day when wage rates will be set by government action, on the basis of national income rather than on that of labor's bargaining power, is now in sight.

Somewhat Liberalized.

The House sub-committee engaged in rewriting the holding company bill has struck out one of its most controversial features, that decreeing unconditional dissolution of all except first-degree holding companies controlling "one integrated public utility system." The revised bill would permit the Securities and Exchange Commission to make exceptions to this general rule if it finds that the limitation in question is "not necessary to the public interest."

Although the rewritten section contains plenty of safeguards against the abuses of pyramiding, President Roosevelt has let it be known that he is unalterably opposed to any lightening of the death sentence contained in the original bill. His opposition is difficult to understand in view of the drastic character of the regulatory provisions which are left. Moreover, the House bill, as revised, provides for the imposition of the ordinary income tax now applicable to corporations to 15 per cent of all dividends received by a holding company from its subsidiaries. So long as intermediate holding companies remain in existence, this tax would be cumulative, and have the effect of hastening reorganization. In any case, it amounts to about 3 per cent upon the total income of a first-degree holding company.

Despite the defects of the liberalized House measure, it is hopeful to discover that a strong opposition to destruction masquerading as regulation has developed in the House. The Senate has already shown signs of revolting against the drastic measure which was eventually passed at the urging of the Administration. There is still hope that the bill finally adopted will not necessitate wholesale forced liquidation of holding companies, and thus bring undeserved losses to investors in their securities.

Simplification of the holding company structure and reasonable regulation would provide necessary protection against future exploitation of both investors and consumers of power. The issue is still undecided but the friends of moderation have at least scored a preliminary and not unimportant victory.

It's A Long Trail.

With the close of the fiscal year only a few days away, and Congress engaged in a struggle to complete a heavy legislative program before the end of the summer, President Roosevelt has unexpectedly sent in a so-called tax message. The name is a misnomer. For the proposals are not designed to produce revenue, but primarily to redistribute wealth, by using the taxing power to break up large estates, cut down large incomes, and increase the taxes upon large corporations.

If the President had stated that budgetary deficits make it necessary to place heavier tax burdens upon the wealthy and if he had suggested methods of securing additional revenue from other classes in the community, through extension of income taxes or a general sales tax, his message would have deserved analysis as a tax program. As it stands, however, it sounds like a demagogic appeal designed to steal the thunder of "share-the-wealth" spell-binders. Undoubtedly the people of the United States have it in their power to effect an extensive redistribution of capital and income by means of the taxing power. If they wish to break up large estates or limit the size of a man's income they can place confiscatory levies upon the transfer of property or the receipt of income. But "prudent government" will first make sure that in using the taxing power to achieve these ulterior ends, it is not discouraging essential capital accumulation and thereby impoverishing the country instead of benefiting the working classes.

Similarly, before employing the right to tax to force the dissolution of holding companies or to penalize large corporations merely because of their size, it would be well to ask whether the large corporation is efficient, whether it deals fairly with labor, whether it has rendered positive services to the community. The assumption that bigness as such is anti-social; that taxation should be punitive is the main theme of the President's message. Hence it is not surprising that his words have been a fresh shock to business confidence, and place still another obstacle in the way of recovery.

The President stated at the beginning of his message that our taxing policies should be based on the "broad principle that if a government is to be prudent its taxes must produce ample revenues without discouraging enterprise." Apparently he has forgotten that prudence is incompatible with a spending program that is piling deficit upon deficit. The first requisite of a sound fiscal policy is to reduce expenditures as rapidly as possible to amounts that can be covered from tax receipts without placing unbearably heavy burdens upon industry just as it is about to be loaded with the social security program.

In the tax message no reference is made to the need for budgetary economies. Is it any wonder that Senator Harrison counsels delay in putting the President's suggestions into effect, while Senator Long beams proudly, as becomes one whose doctrines have received executive indorsement?

Trained Men For Government.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Secretary of Commerce Roper has an idea for creating "a national reserve corps of men and women equipped for local, State and Federal public service" on the plan of the Army Reserve Corps which is certain not to meet with the approval of his fellow Cabinet officer, Patronage General Farley. He proposes that the schools and colleges train students for this purpose and make up lists that would be available to city, State and national officials. To his mind it would mean as much for civil government as West Point and Annapolis now mean for external defense.

It is strange that such a proposition should come from a leading member of the present Administration, but on more than one occasion Mr. Roper has had the courage to differ with the men who are now in control of his own party. They believe in a training school for officeholders, too, but it is confined to the city, State and national committees of the party. Their idea of eligibility is that a man shall carry his precinct.

The Roosevelt Administration has shown little sympathy for the merit system, and the Roper prescription may be looked upon by the New Dealers as too reasonable to be practical.

Concerning The General.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Gen. Hugh Johnson's acceptance of his conge as the head of NRA was one of the most graceful in the history of bureaucracy. He smiled his way through that painful experience in defeatism without a murmer of protest, after a long stretch of the most arduous, nerve-racking labor against great odds any official ever undertook. No sulking and no resentment. It won the plaudits of the people.

He just slid down those greased skids, the dreaded props of the Administration playhouse, without loss of dignity and came up smiling. But latterly the general seems to have changed a little, judged from his public utterances. His style of expression, always picturesque, has become somewhat strained and extravagant, and too hurried, maybe because of the radio, or he may have been infected, caught this disease in speech in his "Long" debates. His utterances don't have a deliberate, predigested ring to them. His magazine article is similarly hall-marked.

"We need," he says, and again and again says "We need," but never essays to tell what it is we need—aside from that announcement of a definite policy—never a contribution of a single concrete thing to be administered and performed under such policy, forgetting that one pennyweight of remedy is worth a ton of diagnosis. Maybe the matter of remedy is "caviar to the general."

The general knows from bitter experience that even a definite policy will go bad on its sponsor against insuperable unforeseen contingencies. It must have very seriously disrupted the President's policy to have the same court that erased the famous gold clause in the interest of expediency, declare the NRA another recovery expedient unconstitutional, known by all as such from its inception, and that, too, after it had been tested and was in full function as a factor in commercial recovery.

One would like the general's talent for analytical criticism tried out on that with all its implications, industrial and political, including the discharging of all three barrels at once into the Administrations' midriff. GEORGE E. GARY.

Blue Ribbon Suckers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We Americans are the most gullible of all peoples, the blue ribbon "suckers" of the world who swallow the fish pole along with bait, hook, sinker and line. They say, "One is born every minute," which means in America that one swindler is born every minute to make swarms of simpletons happy by lifting the shirts off their backs.

The American people have yet to learn the great truth that the enemies of mankind are those who praise, flatter and cajole men, and dangle gold bricks before their eyes, whereas the friends of mankind are those who chastise men's sins and follies because they love men, as a father loves the small wayward son whom he flogs with a slipper. CHARLES HOOPER.

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, June 15.

The Leviathan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am much impressed by an editorial in your columns of June 19 regarding Leviathan expenses. Just after the World War, one of the experts called for reconditioning liners gave his views as to the Leviathan—the great cost and her real uselessness as she was then about out-of-date.

MRS. M. L. M.

Washington, June 19.

Will Exalt Long.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Huey Is Hazed by Colleagues Over Filibuster." Indeed a very well-worded headline to attract attention to Senator Long. And may I suggest a perusal of the contents of the article will not produce the desired effect? Instead it will increase Mr. Long's popularity.

I can easily imagine Mr. Ashurst being rather a bit disappointed in the event of "curved telescope" gazing but not Huey Long. The telescope would reflect to Senator Long the image of a wise, resourceful man who has the courage of his opinions in the face of plutocratic opposition as well as the opposition of a few of his colleagues whose "polished and learned 'discoveries'" are not, maybe, especially directed toward relieving the thousands of the "iron sacrifice" they are enduring through this dread depression. Evidently such speeches are intended to sound well and mean little.

Inexcusable Errors.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Just what is a "visscount" anyway? I had never heard of this strange creature until a few days ago when listening to a radio talk by someone whose name I do not now recall, but who was, I am certain, presented as a professor of economics, hailing from somewhere on the great plains. The reference was to Viscount Brice, that friendly English Ambassador whose title I had always heard pronounced as "vicount," with a long "i" and a silent "s."

On listening a few days later to another radio talk by some Government official, whose name I also fail to recall, I observed a reference to "Visscountess" Somebody-or-Other. As this second shock was more than my sensitive ear could bear, I consulted two dictionaries—the Standard and Webster's—but could not find recorded any such pronunciations as "visscount" or "visscountess." Apparently these words are still properly pronounced just as they were when I first learned them in my youth.

While minor slips in pronunciation are inevitable even with the best of speakers, it does seem that so gross an error in connection with words which are by no means uncommon is inexcusable, and particularly on the part of those who undertake to instruct the public through the broadcasting facilities of the country.

CHARLES H. PROBERT.

Washington, June 12.

The Court And The Constitution.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There appears to be a disposition on the part of some persons, including high officials of the Government, to question the authority of the Supreme Court to declare acts of the Congress unconstitutional. In support of this right and duty of the court permit me to submit the following brief argument and illustration:

Judges and all other officials and employes of the Government are required to take an oath to protect and defend the Constitution of the United States. Section 1, Article 3, of the Constitution provides that "the judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court and in such inferior courts as the Congress may, from time to time, ordain and establish."

Section 2 of said article provides, among other things, that "the judicial power shall extend to all cases, in law and equity, arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made, or which shall be made, under their authority," etc.

Article 6 of the Constitution provides that "this Constitution and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof; and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land; and the judges in every State shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding."

In the foregoing we find three provisions of fundamental and controlling importance, namely, the oath of the judges to support the Constitution; the constitutional duty of the courts to exercise the judicial power of the Nation in support of the Constitution, which is something apart and different from the jurisdiction of the courts, and which necessarily implies the authority and duty of the courts to maintain by their decisions the supremacy of the Constitution over the legislation of the Congress; and lastly, the binding and controlling authority of the Constitution over all as the supreme law of the land. The courts derive their judicial power from the Constitution just as Congress derives its legislative power from the same source. Congress can no more interfere with the judicial power of the courts than the courts can interfere with the legislative power of the Congress, when exercised by the Congress pursuant to the Constitution.

Now for a single illustration of the judicial power and duty of the courts to nullify an unconstitutional act of the Congress: Section 3 of Article 3 of the Constitution provides, among other things, that "No person shall be convicted of treason unless upon the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act."

Suppose Congress should pass a law requiring the testimony of only one witness to an overt act for conviction of treason, and a citizen was convicted of treason under such an act, and appealed his case to the Supreme Court. The court, in the exercise of its judicial power, and under the oath of office of the judges, would necessarily have to hold the law to be not in pursuance of the Constitution, and therefore void, for otherwise the law, and not the Constitution, would be the supreme law of the land.

If it be otherwise, and Congress can enact laws without regard to the Constitution, there is then no need of a Constitution, and it would exist only in name, and the citizen would be subject to the despotic will of the Congress; and there would be no protection whatever to minorities, which is one of the distinguishing characteristics of our form of government, and the greatest safeguard against violent revolution.

On The Sunny Shenandoah.

Post-Office, Friday.

JAMES HARRISON, of Alexandria, joins the S. R. A. His subscription reached us this morning—and we are relieved to note that it takes the form of a postal money-order; some of the checks received for the Sandwich Restoration Administration have been returned to us by the banks on which they were drawn.

* * * *

Mr. Harrison, however, makes the cashing of his money-order contingent—as a matter of honor—upon our publishing a piece which he incloses therewith. He says he likes sandwiches. But he says there is one kind of ham that shouldn't be wasted on bread and should never be brought into degrading contact with mustard.

"What," he asks, "is required in order to do it justice? A strong stomach? Obviously," he decides, "justice can not be done it by such creatures as the alleged gentleman in Lucius Apulius' story, who nibbled rosebuds. We need, it seems to me, the palate of a Pater and the digestion of a Rabelais.

"Well I recall the day when these were the prized possession of a group of Washington authors and artists of whom I—even I—was one. For what light it casts upon the question, let me tell this tale."

"We were," he says, "secluded in a warmish shack on the banks of the Shenandoah. Here, more than anywhere else, we felt a splendid isolation. There was a Van Gogh madness in the vibrant color and heat of the meadow. In the sunlight, the swift water was turgid, imparting to the flesh a material languidness, as the fragrance of the hot fields and the woods imparted a spiritual languor to the mind.

"So we were long prone to discuss many things, not in our accustomed vehement manner of the metropolis, but with a stoicism more closely resembling the beautiful ease of an Eastern religion. Stimulated by certain draughts, therefore, we talked . . .

"Yet at last our youth asserted itself and was all the more clamorous because of its lengthy repose. We were hungry. We were ravenous. We must eat!

"Eat? All very well—only, eat what?

"We had brought no food with us. There was none indigenous to the shack. And on this side of the water there was not one human habitation, still less a hot-dog stand, within possible trudging-distance.

"Well, rumors we had once heard of farmers on the other bank. We knew nothing of these natives' nature, tame or savage. Nevertheless, starvation drove us. We decided to dare.

"In an oarless skiff which we discovered, we crossed the river. And we poked at the boulders after a manner to arouse jealousy in the hearts of those brave warriors who thus once traversed the Delaware—though during a cooler season.

"Unlike those Revolutionary Fathers, we suffered but a single casualty. At midstream, one member of our party attempted to place a fragile flask in a nonexistent hip-pocket of his bathing-suit, lost his balance and fell overboard. Warning this comrade against the risks of lying face downward in the indifferent Shenandoah, and of attempting to wade back to Washington without either supper or compass, the rest of us pushed resolutely on our course—and made, at last, the distant shore.

"Right soon our adventuring was rewarded.

"We spied the tepee of an aborigine (if 'aborigines' have a singular). We found him to home. And we found that he had food, had meat—though, said he, 'only ham.'

"Only ham?

"We induced him to slice a few pounds. We induced him to add certain vegetables and grains.

"We returned to our humble shack—and ate.

"After many years I remember that night. Nor is it the rice, the potatoes, the poke-weed stems tenderly cooked and creamed, or the corn-pones, which I supremely remember. The ham and the ham alone remains as a symbol of that evanescent beauty and langor imparted physically and mentally by the perfection of form and essence surrounding us. Why, even our shipwrecked comrade was enticed ashore by the mere suggestion of eating, in so lovely a place, so lovely a piece of meat!

"'Nor further seek their merits to disclose.' I can but trust that the Post-Impressionist and his fellow epicures will understand how hard it is to give worthy tribute to such flesh as should never be spoiled by mustard. They will realize why even a confirmed Summer-vegetarian would break his dietary vows when confronted with Virginia-ham-on-the-Shenandoah."

F. D. and Huey.

"DIDN'T I tell you, didn't I tell you," demanded Pete, the taxicab driver, "didn't I tell you that Huey Long was right? Yes sir, here he has been right all along and they kept laughing at him. Then all of a sudden Mr. Roosevelt comes out and admits he was right. Well, I guess the laughers won't laugh so much now.

"I could tell it from the first. I used to go up to the Senate when I wasn't making much money with this here cab. Well, one day, you know, I was on strike and I spent the whole day up there and Huey was telling about his share-the-wealth plan then. But the few Senators who were on the floor dozed and paid no attention to him. Well, they didn't doze yesterday. No sir, there he was making another speech and there certainly was a change on the part of the Senators. They were listening to him attentively because now they know when Huey says something he knows what he is talking about.

"Not only that, but on account of the President having come out and said he was right it sort of makes him close to the President, one of the President's advisers or something like that. The fellows who won't get any attention paid to them now are those Senators who we used to think were close to the President, like Senators Pat Harrison, Joe Robinson and Jimmy Byrns. I would say the situation is reversed and that they are the new Hueys and Huey is them, would'nt you?

• • • •

"What I can't understand is why it took Mr. Roosevelt so long to admit Huey was right. Now, he's a smart man and you'd think that after Huey announced his share-the-wealth program just once or twice Mr. Roosevelt could have seen right then that it was the program to have.

"But for some reason that I suppose I don't know about, he just wouldn't admit Huey was right. Instead of that they've been hounding him about his income taxes and taking away his patronage and being just as mean to him as they could possibly be.

• • • •

"Just think of all the bitterness it would have saved. For two years Huey has been saying unkind things about Mr. Roosevelt and I'll bet in private Mr. Roosevelt's been saying a lot of unkind things about Huey. Then come to find out they think just the same. I guess life is a caution, don't you?

"Well, one thing you've got to hand it to Mr. Roosevelt for. He was big enough to admit that Huey was right and that he had been wrong. It takes a big man to admit his mistakes and particularly after he's been mistaken for so long. You take some Presidents who were not as big as Mr. Roosevelt, they never would have admitted Huey was right. They would have gone on fighting him to the last ditch. But I guess Mr. Roosevelt figures the public weal is the most important thing and whatever is best for the public weal is what should be done whether it comes from Huey or not. Believe me, if all our Presidents were like that we wouldn't always get so stirred up on the question of changing them.

"You take a lot of people, they say, oh, don't change the horses in midstream or don't change the horses at all because business will be upset until they find out what the new President is going to do. Well, if we could count on all new Presidents doing only what was good for the public weal like Mr. Roosevelt did in admitting Huey was right then we wouldn't have the business uncertainty at all and we could change Presidents whenever we wanted to. We could change them just for the fun of it. And that's what we should really change them for.

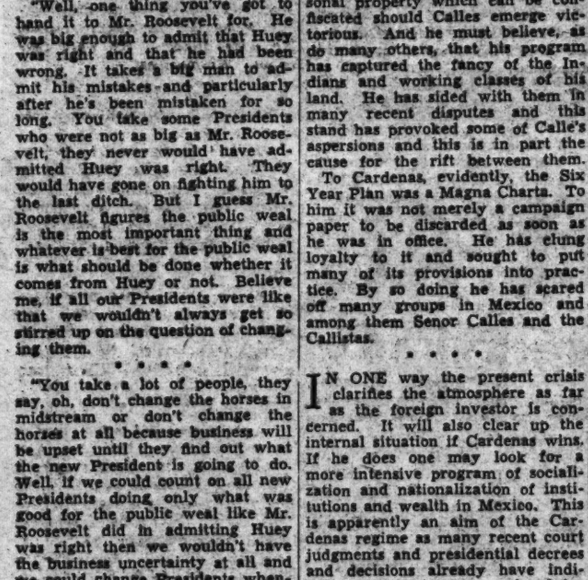
"Gosh, but they sho' will have to do a lot of things now to make amends to Huey, won't they? They'll have to give him back his patronage and quit hounding him on his income taxes. They'll have to take him into the family. I expect they'll run him as their vice presidential candidate next year, don't you? F. D. and Huey, that would make a nice sounding ticket.

• • • •

"You can say what you want to but you gotta hand it to a man with Huey's persistence. I'll bet many a man would have given up long ago with people laughing at him like they was. But day after day he kept getting up on the floor and the other Senators would squirm in their seats and then Huey would tell them about socking the rich and sharing the wealth.

"Well, they won't squirm in their seats any more. They will perk up and listen to him because he may be announcing some new plan and by listening closely to his new plan they can tell what Mr. Roosevelt is liable to have in mind. Because they think so much alike.

"Well, here's where you get out."



"Great Scott! I forgot that Dr. Reamer was still in there!"

Crisis in Mexico

By Paul Vanorden Shaw.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

PLUTARCO ELIAS CALLES, former President of Mexico and strong man of that nation, exploded a bombshell when he delivered his recent speech criticising certain trends of the Cardenas regime. President Lazaro Cardenas, Mexico's youngest President, leader of the left-wing group of the National Revolutionary Party, friend of the Indian and workingman and author of the six-year plan which he adopted as his platform when he became President last December has refused to be intimidated by his friend and former protector. Troops are moving into Mexico City and the issue is joined.

Calles and his followers, the Callistas, are now the moderate, bourgeois members of the National Revolutionary party in which not long ago, they figured as the most radical leaders. Up from nothing they are wealthy and powerful today. It is probable that the Callistas paid lip service to the six-year plan, in the belief, or hope, that it would remain simply a written program of intentions to be forgotten as soon as the election was over and Cardenas was in power. In this they were apparently mistaken.

Calles must be worried. He would hardly run the risk of losing his popularity by flaunting a president, even one of his proteges, whom many in the masses have come to admire and respect. He would hardly measure his lance with Cardenas unless he felt either sure of himself or so desperate that he felt that he had nothing to lose in either case. He knows that if Cardenas wins he will lose much more than his power and prestige; he, too, will have to submit to the program of socialization which Cardenas has inaugurated. And if Calles is one of the richest men in Mexico, as many claim, his stake in challenging Cardenas is great.

• • • •

WHAT has happened in Mexico is a repetition of what has taken place in many other revolutions. The revolutionary leaders of one day become the conservatives of the next and if in the course of time fortune has smiled kindly on them and they become enormously wealthy too, their revolutionary ardor tends to cool and to become more academic than vital. Carleton Beals believes that the Callistas betrayed the revolution; Dr. Eyler N. Simpson, another authority on Mexico, does not agree. He does not deny their wealth but does believe that at heart they still are socially-minded.

It would seem, from this recent crisis, that President Cardenas believes that the Callistas forgot the "forgotten men" of Mexico. He is willing to stake his own position and his prestige by measuring lances with Calles himself. He too must feel sure of his position. In any case he has far less to lose. Certainly he has little or no personal property which can be confiscated should Calles emerge victorious. And he must believe, as do many others, that his program has captured the fancy of the Indians and working classes of his land. He has sided with them in many recent disputes and this stand has provoked some of Calle's aspersions and this is in part the cause for the rift between them.

To Cardenas, evidently, the Six Year Plan was a Magna Charta. To him it was not merely a campaign paper to be discarded as soon as he was in office. He has clung loyalty to it and sought to put many of its provisions into practice. By so doing he has scared off many groups in Mexico and among them Senor Calles and the Callistas.

• • • •

IN ONE way the present crisis clarifies the atmosphere as far as the foreign investor is concerned. It will also clear up the internal situation if Cardenas wins. If he does one may look for a more intensive program of socialization and nationalization of institutions and wealth in Mexico. This is apparently an aim of the Cardenas regime as many recent court judgments and presidential decrees and decisions already have indicated. His primary emotional interest seems to lie in the Indian and in Mexico, his native land. To improve the lot and fate of both he is willing to trample on the toes even of those who have helped him up the ladder.

The outcome will depend in large part on whether the army swings to Cardenas rather than to Calles. If it splits it is not impossible that a civil war might result. But there is too much prosperity in Mexico just now for either side to prefer war to peace. But if Calles should win and succeed in pushing Cardenas out there will be a Roman peace over a smouldering volcano. Cardenas has done too many things to capture popular fancy for his retirement not to cause rancors and recriminations.

Fortunately the Mexican Army of today is not the partisan, personal and unprofessional army of yesterday. It is a highly-trained, well-equipped body of troops led by men who have risen from the ranks and who were loyal to the revolution. Many of them may be Callistas or Cardenistas, but in most cases they are not the mercenary leaders of old who changed sides according to the number of pesos dangled before their noses. As a result the decision of the army will be in part popular and national, in part, partisan, i. e., either to Calles or Cardenas who represent two wings of the National Revolutionary Party.

• • • •

THE break between Cardenas and Calles does not come as a surprise. One of Cardenas' first acts was to close the gambling houses which, it is alleged, were owned by wealthy Callistas. On the other hand the phenomenon as a whole is rather unique in Mexican history and seems to have few parallels in Latin American evolution. For one thing, the matter has been ventilated first in speeches and in the press. In the second place, Senor Calles used moderate rather than demagogic language in stating his views. In the third place, no use of soldiers has been made as yet. And in the fourth place, the whole proceeding has the flavor of a cabinet crisis in France rather than the old revolutionary atmosphere of early Latin American crises of this sort, where violent action and speech inflamed heated emotions to the bursting point.

But it is doubtful whether the breach can be permanently healed between the two. Former President Calles is no longer a young man and though he is extremely strong still Cardenas has the advantage of youth and a clean and clear record. He is relatively poor and democratic to a fault. He gave up the big palace for a more humble home and consorts with common folk on a basis of equality.

But the rift is deeper than that. Cardenas has a burning faith in his program and a consuming love for the Indian. It is doubtful whether he can ever be convinced that he must give in or give way because his program hurts vested interests. That accusation perhaps has made him see red. And once he sees red it is difficult to know where he will stop.

Artificial Legs

By

Wm. Lyon Phelps.

IT may be well known to the majority of persons, but it certainly was not part of my own stock of knowledge until last week, what enormously remarkable improvements have been made in the replacement of lost arms and legs by mechanical limbs. It is surely curious to wear a hand made by hands, rather than one formed before birth by nature.

One of the most useful results of the World War has been the almost magical work of surgery; and I knew of course that the orthopedists had done much for feet, legs and arms. Yet having no necessity for any of these substitutions on my own body (I am still carrying everything I started with) I did not have occasion to look into the matter.

• • • •

But last week in Munich, in the course of conversation with a surgeon, Dr. Walter Perls, he spoke of a large establishment in Munich, where are made legs, arms, hands, and every kind of artificial substitution for nature. Accordingly, I paid a visit with the surgeon to this place.

And I will say now, for the benefit of Americans who may be traveling in Germany this summer, and have the misfortune to lose a leg or an arm or some other portion of their anatomy, that they will be much more fortunate in getting substitutions than if they had lived 30 years ago. Habermann, Lindwurmstrasse 88, is the name and address of this establishment of orthopaedy, that I visited in Munich.

The young man, one of the staff, not only took us to rooms where the whole historical progress in making legs was set forth by successive illustrations, but introduced us to a patient who was trying on a new leg, and finding it for the first time in her life satisfactory. This was an intelligent young woman, who when a child had been run over by a truck and lost an entire leg from the torso down. Only that morning she had put on the new leg and was walking around the room, getting used to it, so to speak. It bent naturally at the knee, it gave her no pain; her crutches, on which she had arrived early that morning, stood in a corner. She will never wear them again. It would be impossible to guess, if she had not proudly exhibited her brand-new leg, that there was anything about her that was not normal.

• • • •

Then the young man showed us arms that bent easily at the elbow, and allowed the owner to move all the fingers! This is a good deal better than the old hook, which we associate with piratical gentlemen.

I was amazed at what I saw; and while I may not be saying anything new to surgeons, I believe that the majority of my readers will share my astonishment and my pleasure.

I remember my schoolmate at the high school in Hartford, who lost both legs in a railway accident, and the terrible difficulty he had with the artificial ones, which were the best substitutions then known. I wish he could come back to earth and wear a pair of these that I have just seen. It is sheer magic.

No End of Books

By

Theodore Hall

Rainbow in Hand.

I CANNOT begin to tell you the joy and affirmation, the sudden surprises and the hearty chuckles of recognition, which I have had from John Cowper Powys' "The Art of Happiness" (Simon & Schuster, $2). No doubt it is something of a personal matter—Mr. Powys himself has given fair warning that "minds inimical to his" may go reeling back from these pages with hands upraised. But let me be counted, at least for a good long length, among the Powysians. I have scant patience, and less respect, for that reviewer in a New York paper who remarked rather snippily that she wished Mr. Powys had written this book for someone in addition to the unique Mr. Powys. Well, unless I am totally blind, there must be half a thousand people in Washington who will understand and relish this book from cover to cover, and that puts an oddly loose meaning on the word "unique."

Now Mr. Powys, I grant, is a curious old gentleman. Take only his very literal earth-worship, his pantheism. Theodore Dreiser was once visiting the New York State farm of Mr. Powys, and the two were walking over the fields. They came to a large rock, before which Mr. Powys paused significantly. "Now what the hell, John," exclaimed Mr. Dreiser, "is that?" Mr. Powys lifted his shaggy head and cried in his high, rich, sing-song voice: "That, my dear The-o-dore, is the Magic Stone of Og! Touch it, my dear The-o-dore, touch it It will bring you great good fortune!" The fact is that every stone and tree and meadow about that Columbia County farm held a personal deity for Mr. Powys. "I was accepted," he once wrote candidly, "by my neighbors as something of a freak."

And though in the de-hydrated skepticism of our time that sort of thing does seem a bit queer, let me advise prospective readers of "The Art of Happiness" right now that Mr. Powys does not press his personal Stone-Worship upon them, that in all conscience, though he touches on very subtle matters, he deals with them in plain, simple, and most gratifying reasonable terms.

• • • •

BECAUSE I especially want this book to be read, and not taken merely in a three-ounce tincture of "No End of Books," I decline to pluck out the pith and heart of his maxims for happiness. The approach, though, is on these grounds—that in all the universe, as Socrates noted, all we can control is ourself; that in the light of any man's experience we can control, at least summon or dismiss, our thoughts; that we are made happy or unhappy by our thoughts, since all other things work out as equal; and that "the noblest, greatest, highest, deepest obligation we have, our one grand piety, our supreme return to the cosmos for giving us consciousness, is to heighten our mental life from moment" and to carve our own high, unselfish, and wholly aware happiness.

For, says Mr. Powys in exhilarating contradiction to all the other "good books," happiness is not a by-product. It is, in the best sense, our human duty. And indeed he goes on to show that happiness, as a result of the conscious use of human intelligence, is so far as we can see it (without arrogating to ourselves a cosmic eye) the very apex and spear-edge of our evolution on this earth.

• • • •

AND you're going to think, I'm afraid, that Mr. Powys is all very general and all very vague. Not a whit! For he tels us, in light-of-day words, the mental and ritual tricks with which he himself attacks the megrims, those dull sinks of misery, apathy and worry into which we all fall whenever we feel the "sickness of the world," the "illusion of the commonplace," or whatever you care to call something you know as well as you know the shape of your thumb.

Then he goes on to the scarcely considered problem (D. H. Lawrence never touched it, for example) of how men and women are to get along after the first fine flush of being in love has waned. And here are some of the sharpest-eyed observations on the differences between the sexes which I have ever read. They left me, curious but really complimentary result, literally chortling out loud with delight. And then in the final chapter he takes up the deepest and least-mentioned matter on earth, our day-by-day living within ourselves.

It would take me 5,000 words to get anywhere near the true scope and quality of this extraordinary book. But you must take my word for it that, unless you are fortunate enough already to be utterly and completely armored against the stings and arrows of outrageous fortune, you are going to find Mr. Powys' "The Art of Happiness" pretty close to a mundane Bible.

CCC Camp Will Give Veterans Preference

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 20.—War veterans on relief rolls will be given preference in the future enrollments of CCC camprs, according to A. M. Starling, manager of the Clarksburg branch of the National Reemployment Service.

Starling announces that calls for enrollees will be issued about June 25 for approximately 150 men. A second call will be issued in August for 500 additional men from Harrison County.

Sunday Schools Of D.C. Sponsor 3-Day Sessions

Administrative Officers, Young People to Meet in Maryland.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Westminster, Md., June 20.—The twelfth annual administrative officers' and teachers' conference, and the eleventh annual young people's conference, of the District of Columbia Sunday School Association, will convene for a three-day session at Western Maryland College tomorrow.

The two organizations will hold several joint sessions. Dr. Albert Norman Ward, president of Western Maryland College, will welcome both groups at the opening session Friday. The Rev. Thomas Guthrie Speers, pastor of Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, will be the principal speaker Friday night.

Saturady morning group conferences will mark sessions of the administrative officers and teachers. "Administrative Problems" will be discussed by the Rev. Rufus D. Bowman, pastor of the Washington Church of the Brethren; "Young People's and Seniors' Work," the Rev. Theodore E. Miller, pastor, First Baptist Church, Baltimore, and "Junior and Intermediate Work," Mrs. E. H. Cox.

The Rev. Mr. Miller will make the principal address at the evening session. The program for the Young Peoples Conference Saturday will include an address, "The Use of Leisure Time," Norman A. Lufburrow, Baltimore, vocation and employment secretary, Central Y. M. C. A.; discussion groups led by the Rev. Milton B. Crist, the Rev. M. P. German, the Rev. J. Raymond Mills, the Rev. Harry V. Porter, Mrs. John A. Patterson, jr., Mrs. Francis S. Brown and Miss Ruth Stuart, and an address by the Rev. A. Lamar Wills, rector of Our Savior Episcopal Church, Washington.

Saturday night at a joint meeting a Biblical event will be portrayed. Group conferences will be continued by the administrative officers and teachers Sunday morning, while a business session will be held by the young people. The sermon Sunday will be delivered by the Rev. Mr. Bowman, and the Rev. Mr. Speers will address a joint closing session of the groups Sunday afternoon.

Habitual Robber Sentenced to Life

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Weston, W. Va., June 20.—When he pleaded guilty to two robbery indictments in the Lewis County Circuit Court yesterday, William Sprouse, 42, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

He was prosecuted under the habitual criminal act which permits the court to impose a life-term after three proved felonies. The indictment against Sprouse listed two previous felony convictions.

Similarly charged, Clarence Sprouse, 40, is expected to stand trial, while William R. Sprouse, 25, implicated in the robberies, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve eight years in the State penitentiary.

All three men were formerly residents of Mount Clare, Harrison County.

County Will Vote On Courthouse

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Front Royal, Va., June 20.—The board of supervisors of Warren County has requested Judge Philip Williams of the Warren County Circuit Court to set July 8 for a county-wide election on a bond issue and grant not to exceed $50,000, for the construction of a new courthouse here.

At an election on January 8, 1935, the voters by an overwhelming majority approved such a bond issue but the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia in a recent decision gave an opinion that the election was invalid due to technical irregularities, following an appeal from the opinion of attorneys for the purchasers of the bonds as to the legality of the election.

Thirty per cent of the cost of the proposed courthouse will be a grant from the Federal Government.

A grant of $18,000 has been approved for the construction of a new eight-room primary school building and a gymnasium in Front Royal and a four-room elementary school building in Riverton, and arrangements are in progress for borrowing an additional $30,000 from the Literary Fund of Virginia, supplemented by an additional $12,000 from other sources.

Baltimore Area Picks Layman For Moderator

Synod at Frederick Sets Precedent to Honor L. Irving Politt.

By the Associated Press.

Frederick, Md., June 20.—For the first time in its history, the Baltimore Synod of the Presbyterian Church, organized in 1854, today elected a layman as its moderator.

The synod, composed of the Baltimore, Washington and New Castle, Del., Presbyteries, named L. Irving Politt, of Baltimore, to this high position. Politt at once appointed the Rev. J. Paul Rout, of Princess Anne, Md., as vice moderator.

The new moderator, long outstanding in church affairs, twice has been vice moderator of the synod and in 1933 was vice moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States. He is general presbyter of the Presbytery of Baltimore and an elder in Brown Memorial Presbyterian Church, Baltimore.

The Rev. Mr. Trout is from the New Castle Presbytery and is pastor of the Manokin Church at Princess Anne. This is one of the churches in the area organized by the Rev. Francis Makemie in 1683.

The Rev. Edwin L. Shekking, of Darlington, was elected temporary clerk; the Rev. George W. Cummings, of Washington, and the Rev. A. Drown Caldwell, of Baltimore, had been elected stated clerk and permanent clerk, respectively, last year for three years.

The elections and reports were the principal items of business coming today before the synod, which, with the Synodical Missionary Society, is meeting at Hood College.

The report of Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, of Washington, dealing with national missions was given by the Rev. Mr. Caldwell in the absence of Dr. Sizoo, who is in England.

Outlining the "critical" financial problem faced by the board, the report said the board, nevertheless, had met responsibilities on the much decreased income with courage and high accomplishment.

The budget last year was listed at $2,500,000 in contrast with $5,000,000 three years ago and the salaries of home missionaries and the office staff were reported "cut to the bone." Largely due to a newly acquired shepherd fund which realized $170,842, the board closed the business year with a surplus.

Knights Templar Install New Leaders Today

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 20.—The West Virginia Grand Commandery, Knights Templar, will be convoked here tomorrow night for the installation of Dr. E. H. Bitner, as senior grand warden.

Past Grand Commander Thomas C. Bowling, of Charles Town, assisted by Past Grand Commander Fred P. Spillman and other members of Palestine Commandery, Martinsburg, will conduct the rites. At the conclusion of the grand commandery session Palestine will assemble for installation of its officers.

Maryland Man Dies Under B. & O. Train

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., June 20—William Wood, 65, was killed yesterday by a west bound Baltimore & Ohio freight train at Bartholows Station near here.

Officials said Wood apparently disregarded signals from the engineer of the approaching train. Coroner Walter E. Sinn gave a verdict of accidental death. Wood was the last of his immediate family.

Writ Is Sought To Save Slayers

Hostility Cited by Counsel for Convicted Pair.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 20.—"Inadequate representation by counsel" and "intense hostile feeling" in Spotsylvania County toward John Shell and Joe Jackson, condemned to die for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Coleman, are two points on which counsel will apply to the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia for a writ of error.

E. A. Norrell, colored attorney, of Richmond, counsel for the convicted pair, said that these contentions were contained in the application for a stay of execution approved by Gov. Peery Monday and would form the basis for his petition to the Supreme Court.

Gov. Peery granted Shell and Jackson reprieves to July 26 to allow sufficient time for applying to the court for a writ of error. They had been sentenced to death in the electric chair on June 21 for the well slaying of the aged Coleman couple on April 2 after trial by jury in Spotsylvania Circuit Court on May 14.

3 Die, 3 Injured As Trucks Hit Coupe and Burn

Wreck Fatal to 2 Youths From Richmond and 1 From Norfolk.

By the Associated Press.

Norfolk, Va., June 20.—Three men died and three more were injured—one probably fatally—in a three-car crash on Suffolk highway near here last night.

Two light trucks and a coupe figured in the crash and fire which claimed the lives of two Richmond youths and a young Portsmouth resident.

The dead: William Hill, 18, and James Urban, 18, both of Richmond; O. G. Vinson, 18, of Portsmouth.

Seriously injured was Richard J. Kee, of North Emporia, while W. P. Sigmon, 47, of Craddock, and Wilson Manley, Negro, 23, of Emporia, were less seriously hurt.

H. C. Worrell, a witness, said that two light trucks collided after one of them had struck the coupe occupied by Sigmon. He said the trucks burst into flames as the occupants of one were pinned under it. Worrell, with Charles Hanabaugh, of Norfolk, pulled Kee from the flames. They were unable to help the Richmond and Portsmouth men.

New Trails Planned At Skyland Parley

Delegates to Hear Reports on Appalachian Paths.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Skyland, Va., June 20.—Plans for trail improvement and maintenance and for the opening of new side trails will be the chief consideration before the seventh Appalachian Trail Conference meeting at Skyland in the Shenandoah National Park Saturday and Sunday. Two hundred delegates from Maine to Georgia will hear reports by the sponsors of each section of the Appalachian Trail, the 2,000-mile crestline footpath extending the length of the Eastern mountains and now complete except for some 40 miles in Maine.

Delegates to the conference will hear a number of prominent outdoors men tell of recreational developments in the East. Among these are Arno B. Caemmerer, director National Park Service; R. M. Evans and Joseph C. Kircher, regional foresters of the United States Forestry Service; the supervisors of Pisgah, Unaka, Monongahela and Mountain Lake National Forests, and Monroe W. Smith, president of the American Youth Hostels Association. Maj. William Welch, president of the Trail Conference, will preside.

University Museum To Show Paintings

Grand Central Galleries Lends Exhibits.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 20.—Two dozen paintings by leading contemporary American artists, loaned by the Grand Central Galleries in New York, will be on exhibition in the University of Virginia's new Thomas H. Bayly Memorial Art Museum during the two week session of the Institute of Public Affairs, which opens here June 30.

The collection is one that is being exhibited in the South under the sponsorship of the Southern Art Projects. The work of the Southern Art Projects and art education will form a phase of an institute round-table conference on educational issues, led by Prof. George B. Zehmer. Lelia Mechlin, projects director, and Clara Saunders, both of Washington, will discuss the development of fine arts in the South at one of the meetings of the forum.

Martinsburg Masons Elect Clyde F. Laise

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Wilentz on Way to Hear Hauptmann's Appeal

Attorney General David T. Wilentz, second from right, of New Jersey, leaping his office at Trenton with members of his staff on their way to the Court of Errors and Appeals, where Bruno Hauptmann entered an appeal on his conviction in the Lindbergh kidnaping case enemy No. 1 of the world," Wilentz told the court vehemently, "and I say it again now, for all the world to know. He was an alien who sneaked into this country and now he wants to invoke the Constitution of the United States."

Frederick A. Pope, of defense counsel, asserted all the evidence showed the Lindbergh nursery window had never been opened on the night of the kidnaping. He said Hauptmann could not have climbed into the window.

Quotes First Lady.

"No wonder," commented Pope, "the First Lady of the Land said, 'I should hate to think what would happen to any innocent man charged with the kidnaping of the Lindbergh child."

(Mrs. Roosevelt commented on the case at a press conference shortly after the verdict was rendered.)

The former German army machine gunner was deprived of a fair trial by due process of law, Defense Attorney Egbert L. Rosecrans contended, laying the groundwork for appeal to the United States Supreme Court should the New Jersey high court deny the appeal.

He said that Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, who presided at the Flemington trial, did not adequately protect Hauptmann even though defense counsel made no objections at the time.

"Why, the prosecutor could try me for violation of the election law and he could say I was a crook and the biggest criminal in the State and that I had gone to his office and tried to bribe him," said Rosecrans. "If I had counsel who sat supinely by and did not object, that still would not waive my fundamental right and the trial judge would be required to protect me."

"Hasn't the prosecutor a right to comment on the evidence?" asked Justice Bodine, in one of the many questions interposed by the judges today.

"But not to give his personal opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant," Rosecrans protested. "He must confine himself to the evidence."

The fiery little attorney general had an answer for that later in the day.

"The State of New Jersey," cried Wilentz, "is entitled to a fair trial, too. Hauptmann got a fair trial and it's no answer to say today that 'I was ignorant and not doing my duty.'

"Everything was all right with the defense lawyers until the score was put up. When they saw the score was 'guilty' they began to squawk and squeal."

Pope, associate defense counsel, ridiculed the whole verdict.

"Your Honors," he said, "it just doesn't make sense—it doesn't add up."

"Bruno Hauptmann or nobody else climbed down that ladder, went into the room, stole the baby and carried it down again.

"The State changed its theory of how it happened because it had no proof of how, when or where the baby met its death."

The proceedings today were in marked contrast to the excitement prevailing at the Flemington trial. A limited number of spectators were present and none was permitted to enter or leave the courtroom during the hearing.

The defendant's wife, Anna Schoefler Hauptmann, was turned away at the doors by State troopers, presumably on the theory she might interrupt the arguments with an outcry.

Hagerstown Death Indicates Murder

Aged Night Watchman Dies of Fractured Skull.

By the Associated Press.

Hagerstown, Md., June 20.—James R. Nicodemus, 70-year-old night watchman, died at the Washington County Hospital today of injuries sustained in what police believe was a felonius assault.

Nicodemus, whose skull was fractured, died without regaining consciousness. He was found at the warehouse of J. W. Myers & Co. where he was employed, last Saturday morning.

Justice John D. Dunn, acting coroner, will confer with State's Attorney Martin L. Ingram regarding a formal investigation by a coroner's jury.

Dead Man Listed as Opponent Of P. R. R. in Service Dispute

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 20.—A man who has been dead for several years was listed as a complainant today against the Pennsylvania Railroad in a case set for hearing by the public service commission for July 2.

He was Lorie C. Quinn, jr., the late president of the Eastern Shore Newspaper Corporation. He protested in 1928 against a petition by the Pennsylvania to change its station at Costen in Somerset County from an agency to a nonagency station.

After a hearing, the public service commission upheld Quinn's protest and ordered the Pennsylvania to continue Costen as an agency station. The railroad has now made application to the commission for a modification of its order dated August 30, 1928, so as to permit the change which Quinn protested.

The commission knows that Quinn is now dead. In order to take the decision of 1928 under consideration again, however, it must revive the case as it existed at the time the previous order was handed down.

It is not known if other Somerset County interests will appear as spokesmen for the deceased publisher.

Dr. Corder Will Head Board of Education

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 20.—Dr. J. W. Corder will succeed A. P. Morrison as president of the Harrison County Board of Education when the board organizes July 1. Dr. Corder, one of the new members, received the highest number of votes at the November election and, as provided by the county school unit law, automatically becomes president on that date.

John A. Jackson, former superintendent of the Clarksburg city schools and the last two years assistant county superintendent, is said to be slated to succeed Wade H. Coffindaffer as county superintendent. Coffindaffer has served 12 years in that post.

EXPERTS MARVEL AT GIN FLAVOR CONTROL PROCESS

Hiram Walker's "Controlled Condensation" Revolutionizes Gin Distilling!

How "C. C." Process Takes the Guess Out of Gin!

If you've ever had gin go fuzzy in a fizz, cut capers in a cocktail, or forget its obligations to Tom Collins, here's good news! After 300 years, there is a way to make gin flavors behave!

When Repeal came, Hiram Walker was ready—with the secret of flavor control in gin! Hiram Walker's "Controlled Condensation" is the only process in the world that assures absolutely smooth, uniform flavor from the numerous and tricky herbal ingredients of gin.

This unique "C. C." Process, in use since the opening of Hiram Walker's Peoria distillery, a year ago, distills the various flavoring ingredients into the grain spirits at different proofs. The flavor of the individual ingredients—not just the quantity—is scientifically regulated according to the exact requirements of the Hiram Walker formula.

Smooth! — from Still to Shaker to You!

The results are amazing! No flavor can come through too strong—no flavor can come through too weak. Everything is under control! Juniper berries, coriander seeds, sweet orange peel, and other elements used act in complete unison under Hiram Walker's "C.C." Process. Each contributes the exact difference and degree of flavor essential to a gin that is perfectly balanced, consistently smooth, invariably uniform . . . and remember: Hiram Walker's London Dry Gin is made exclusively from grain spirits.

Extra Satisfaction — But It Costs You No More

Get a bottle today and taste the difference. The revolutionary "C.C." Process, which has made Hiram Walker's London Dry Gin the most popular gin in America, gives you complete satisfaction at no extra cost to you.

Fire Engine's Crash Blamed On Motorman

Committee Files Report on Accident May 8, Injuring Four.

A street car motorman was blamed yesterday for last month's street car-fire engine crash which injured four firemen. The motorman, George H. Williams, 35, was criticized by Commissioner Hazen's special investigating committee.

The committee filed its report with the assistant corporation counsel's office at Police Court. Williams is scheduled to face charges of failing to give the right of way to a fire engine before Traffic Court Judge Ralph Given next Tuesday.

Appointed soon after the crash, the committee included Assistant Corporation Counsel Elwood Seal, Police Inspector B. A. Lamb and Fred A. Sager, chief engineer of the Public Utilities Commission.

The committee's report read in part:

"The street car was being operated at an excessive speed when approaching an intersection while fire apparatus sirens were sounding; the street car was not under proper control under conditions existing; the motorman failed to give the right of way to the fire apparatus; the operator had a clear view for at least 173 feet and should have been able to see the fire apparatus had he been alert."

The accident occurred May 8 at Eleventh and V streets northwest. Four firemen injured in the crash have recovered and will appear Tuesday.

Sirovich Art Bill Hits a Snag As Actors Back U. S. Theater

Argument Fails to Budge Equity Chief and Actress.

The plan of Representative William I. Sirovich (Democrat), of New York, to establish a Department of Science, Art, Music and Literature in the Federal Government, struck a snag yesterday in committee when Frank Gillmore, president of Actors Equity Association, and Frances Starr, actress, declared they intend to support Senate bill 2642, which calls for incorporating a National Theater and Academy.

Although the bill carries no author's name, the committee learned it was introduced by Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), of New York, May 31.

Both Gillmore and Miss Starr said they heartily favor the Sirovich bill; that it is "on a grander scale and much larger in scope" than bill 2642, which already has passed the Senate and been reported favorably out of the House committee on the judiciary. The Equity chief and the actress maintained, however, they could not see how the incorporation of a national theater and academy would conflict with advantages of legislation proposed by Representative Sirovich. They knew no reason, they said, why the theater and academy could not be absorbed later by the department.

Representative Sirovich said he knew plenty of reasons why the establishing of a National Theater and Academy would wreck his proposed bill.

The Representative from New York intimated the Nation was in danger of being overrun by national theaters and academies should bill 2642 pass.

"Who are the people back of this thing, anyway?" he asked, as he glanced over the bill. He saw among other names those of Leopold Stokowski, Philadelphia Symphony conductor; Mrs. George H. Lorimer, wife of the publisher of the Saturday

MISS FRANCES STARR,

Evening Post; Mrs. Stanley McCormick, of Chicago; Ann Morgan, John Hay Whitney, Arthur Woods John H. Finley William Rhinelander Stewart, Edward M. M. Warburg, all of New York; Mrs. Felix du Pont of Wilmington Del.; William Green, Mrs. Larz Anderson, Mabel Boardman and Mrs. Charles Hamlin, of Washington.

"I recognize some of these names from their association with the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York," said Representative Sirovich. "The Metropolitan is constantly in financial difficulties. How then," he asked Gillmore and the actress, "do you expect this same group to keep your national theater and academy going? You'll be passing the hat asking for contributions, begging for gifts. Now, my plan provides for subsidy by the Government. It includes not one of the arts, but all of them."

When the hearing adjourned, both Gillmore and Miss Starr indicated they were still unconvinced they should withdraw support from bill 2642.

The hearing was enlivened by an impassioned plea from Lillian Evanti songstress, in behalf of the proposed Department of Science, Art, Music and Literature. Miss Evanti prefaced the dramatic reading of her sentiments by telling the committee she is "the only native Washingtonian who has sung in grand opera in Paris and Milan."

Mrs. Edward Lee Edmundson, in a thick Southern accent, which evidently charmed the committee, said she had been sent by the Beethoven Club of Memphis, Tenn., to state the club's approval of the Sirovich plan.

"We're 2,000 ladies strong," she said.

Miss Mary Alsop Cryder, voice teacher, and Paul N. Turner, counsel for Actors Equity Association, also indorsed the plan.

Baker's Estate $135,000, Court Told in Petition

Widow of Former Chief Asks Palmer Be Made Administrator.

Raymond T. Baker, former Director of the Mint, left an estate valued at more than $133,000 it was learned yesterday when his widow, Mrs. Delphine Dodge Baker, filed a petition in the District Supreme Court asking that A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney General in the Wilson Administration, be appointed administrator because no will has been discovered.

Baker, who died April 28, had $56,396 in an account at the American Security & Trust Co. The rest of his estate was made up of stocks, bonds and other securities.

Mrs. Baker asked that Palmer be made administrator with the proviso that if his nomination be rejected she be appointed. Her petition named herself, a daughter by a former wife, Gloria Baker, 14, who is now with her mother in Palm Beach, Fla., and her own infant daughter, Anna Ray Baker, 2, as the only heirs at law and next of kin.

Mrs. Baker said that her health and that of her daughter made it necessary for her to stay abroad and for that reason she wished Mr. Palmer appointed to manage the estate. The law firm of Palmer, Stellwagen, Scott & Boggs and William J. Neale represented Mrs. Baker.

Mrs. Woodward Takes New Post To See Women Share in Works

Assistant Looks Like Flutter Matrons of Billie Burke Roles.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

She looks like the flutter matrons portrayed by Billie Burke and she speaks with the neighborly drawl of Mississippi, but she's head woman of the entire new Works Progress Administration with responsibilities which might weigh many a man down. But to Ellen S. Woodward, of Jackson, Miss., her appointment as assistant works progress administrator represents a challenge rather than a difficult job.

"It gives me opportunity for broader service which should mean something to all women," said attractive, red-headed Mrs. Woodward yesterday, the first day on her new position. For several days she has known she was to receive the appointment from Administrator Harry L. Hopkins. Announcement was made yesterday.

Immediately she was surrounded with newsreel cameras, reporters, newspaper photographers.

Thinks of Powder Puff.

"They didn't even given me time to powder my nose," laughed Mrs. Woodward after she had returned to her office for a conference with State administrators.

But she was used to being in the limelight. For the last year and a half she had been in charge of women's work under the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. She complained that most of the publicity has been about her instead of about the work the women have done.

"I've found," she said, "almost all persons think women on work relief are engaged in one of two things—sewing or canning. They don't seem to realize we've planned 250 different projects which range from pulling weeds out of municipal golf courses to giving violin lessons.

"My problem is quite different from that of the administrators who must put men to work. They can usually find something for the unskilled laborer. But unskilled women are my greatest difficulty. It keeps me mighty busy thinking up new things for them to do.

Job Equality Her Goal.

"You can depend on one thing. I shall do all I can to keep the ratio equal between the number of employable men and women who receive jobs. Women are going to get a square deal. Sometimes I think the greatest sufferers in the depression have been women."

Under the new setup, according to Mrs. Woodward, each State will have a director of women's work, who will be on the staff of the State administrator. Each director will be appointed by the State administrator. Mrs. Woodward will pass on the appointment.

"This will assure the women on work relief of having an understanding member on the State staff. Do I think a woman is better than a man at understanding women's problems? Of course, I do."

MRS. ELLEN S. WOODWARD.

She began her public life when she entered the Mississippi Legislature in 1926, the second woman to hold similar office in the State. Her husband, the late Albert Y. Woodward, had been a member of the Legislature. She declared yesterday she had no ambition for another political office.

"This job I have now will keep me busy for quite a while," she drawled. "I haven't made any plans beyond that."

She has made plans, however, for a tour of the country, July 1 she will set out for a round of regional conferences.

Shoe Cleaner Ignites, Man Painfully Burned

Trapped by flames which leaped from a can of shoe cleaning material that ignited in his hand, Joseph Ingred, 38, of the 1200 block of K street northwest, an employe of the Forsythe Shoe Co., in the 1300 block of F street northwest, suffered second-degree burns on his leg yesterday.

Utilities Group Would Replace Car With Bus

Meet With Commissioners on Connecticut Ave, Plan Today.

Substitution of motor buses for street cars on upper Connecticut avenue was approved by the Public Utilities Commission yesterday.

The plan, advanced by the Capital Transit Co., is to be considered at a joint meeting of the utilities commissioners and the District Commissioners this morning.

The plan calls for an express service and a local bus service from Chevy Chase Circle down Connecticut avenue, across Taft Bridge, to the downtown section. A second local bus line is to run to the east end of the Calvert Street Bridge where passengers will be transferred to and from the street car line ending there.

Details of the plan are to be worked out with the District Commissioners.

The original downtown route proposed by the company has been changed, it is understood. The commission agreed with merchants on Seventh street that the buses should carry passengers to their neighborhood. The modified line was worked out by F. A. Sager, commission engineer; William A. Van Duzer, director of traffic, and officials of the transit company.

Fares on the local lines would be the same as street car fares. A 10-cent cash fare would be charged on the express line.

Kensington Fights Plan for Bus Line

Trade Body Carries Battle to State Commission.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, June 20.—The Kensington Chamber of Commerce notified the Maryland Public Service Commission today it opposes the plan of the Capital Transit Co. to substitute bus service for street car service between Chevy Chase and Chevy Chase Lake unless the bus service also includes Kensington and Garrett Park.

The transportation company has entered a petition with the regulatory body for authority to make the change.

If the present plan is amended to give Garrett Park and Kensington bus service by way of Connecticut avenue to Chevy Chase and then to the City of Washington, the commerce body requests that the petition be granted.

L. L. Dye, chairman of the committee on public utilities of the Kensington Chamber of Commerce, said the present plan would force residents of the town to use several means of transportation, and loss of through transportation, in order to reach Washington.

Camp Simms Asks $61,800 for Repairs

A request for $61,800 for necessary repairs at the National Guard Camp at Camp Simms in Washington is included in the $1,314,792 applications filed by the Quartermaster General's Office of the Army, according to provisions of the works program revealed yesterday.

Of the amount asked, $42,000 is for artillery sheds, while the remaining $19,800 is for the Administration Building, extension and repairs to target range and butts, and grading and drainage at the camp.

On the Air Today

By Katherine Smith.

NBC announces a "new deal" for promising auditioners with unusual possibilities. Facilities for coaching talent, telling prospective stars what to do and not to do, are provided by the Auditions department, with the advice and assistance of NBC's engineers.

Once a month the auditions director will display his best "finds" before the company's executives, the candidates' possibilities will be weighed in view of sustaining and commercial radio programs, movies, vaudeville local station bookings, concert and theatrical engagements. If the amount of talent justifies, "super-auditions" may be held more often. Emphasis is on quality of performance, not quantity of candidates.

Here and there: Margaret Speaks, third Firestone singing feature, follows the footsteps of the other two to Hollywood. Nelson Eddy has starred in movies, Gladys Swarthout is now working on "Rose of the Rancho." . . . Tony Canzoneri and James J. Braddock recently acted as judges for Ray Perkins amateur show . . . Lanny Ross is signed in a new show to start for NBC July 21. Howard Barlow, able CBS symphonic conductor, is loaned for the occasion . . . Goodman Ace, of "Easy Aces" is writing a play based upon the radio show which will appear on Broadway in the fall. In spare moments he is working on scenarios for RKO.

On Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday, at 11 p. m. they will advertise for a motor company.

Temperature to Rise Slowly Again Today

Washington enjoyed a touch of pleasant, moderate summer weather yesterday, with low humidity and a maximum temperature of 82 at 4 p. m.

The District was cooled by slight winds, which shifted from southeast to southwest. Yesterday's minimum was 61 at 5 a. m.

Today will be fair, with slowly rising temperatures, the Weather Bureau predicted.

Let the "Guest Test" tell you what price to pay for Whiskey

Don't take our word or anyone's word! Find out about whiskey—in your home, with the "Guest Test."

Match Seagram's Crown with any other whiskey. Offer both to your guests. And notice which they choose!

We're confident Seagram's will win. Most people prefer Seagram's Crown . . . it is America's favorite.

But still we say . . . "Test it yourself." If your friends really prefer a more expensive (or a cheaper) whiskey—by all means buy it. But if the "Guest Tests" in your home show that Seagram's is the winner—then Say Seagram's and be Sure. The difference in price is slight—the difference in taste is great.

HOW TO MAKE THE "GUEST TEST"

1. Offer guests two whiskies—Seagram's and any other.
2. Notice carefully which one they prefer.
3. The whiskey that wins is the whiskey to buy!

Takoma Park Pump Station Removal Asked

Sligo Citizen Group Opens Drive on Hazard to Children.

The Sligo Park Hills Citizens' Association opened a campaign for removal of the old pumping station on Mississippi avenue, Takoma Park, Md., at a meeting in the Jesup Blair Community Center, Silver Spring, Md. The new president, Harry L. Trainor, announced that this would be the first of the three major projects he hoped to accomplish during his term of office.

Termed as a "death trap" for children in the neighborhood, the president and members of the association pointed out the hazards of the place and its accompanying dangers, including a high empty cement tank and an uncovered manhole. The tank is unguarded and children can easily fall in while playing about the abandoned property. It is owned by the Washington Sanitary Commission. Vernon H. Brewster, chairman of the safety committee, will appeal to the commission to remove the station.

Beautification of the parkings and vacant lots in the park and the improvement of transportation for the residents to the District of Columbia are the other two projects Trainor plans.

It was voted to hold an outdoor fete this summer. Albert T. Coumbe was appointed chairman of the event. Eleven committees were appointed by the president. They are: Membership, Joseph Phelan, chairman; Stewart Lashley, Louis A. Yost, Mrs. Harry Shaw and Mrs. Joseph Phelan. Home grounds beautification committee, Talman Richard Barker and Mrs. Richard Barker and Mrs. Gilbert Wiley. Entertainment committee, Mrs. George Webster, chairman; Mrs. Kenneth Bayes, Mrs. Henry Porter, Mrs. Thomas Amatucci and Mrs. William Wright. Sanitation and public health committee, Harry Shaw, chairman; Sidney Hartsfield and Robert Pullen. Police facilities committee, Kenneth Bayes, chairman; Thomas Russell and Henry Porter. Membership and action committee, Francis McDevitt, chairman; Milford J. Zimmerman and Gilbert Wiley. Publicity, Betty Ruth McDevitt, chairman; Mrs. Talman Barker. School facilities committee, Mrs. Vernon Brewster, chairman; Mrs. Vincent Freihofl. Mrs. William Dahl and Dr. Arthur Barwick. Streets and paths, George Webster, chairman; Mrs. Louis A. Yost and Mrs. Robert Pilgrim. Police and fire protection, Albert Coumbe, chairman; Talton Dahl and Sidney Trundle. Transportation and public utilities committee, Richard Barker, chairman; J. A. Denison and William Wright.

Stream Pollution Fought by Warden

Maryland Official Asks Aid of Sportsmen in Talk.

By the Associated Press.

New Windsor, Md., June 20.—E. Lee Lecompte, State game warden, returned to Baltimore today after addressing approximately 70 members of the alert Rod and Gun Club of Union Bridge.

Lecompte urged the sportsmen to cooperate with his department in its attempts to clean up conditions which are polluting Maryland's streams. He said he was cooperating with the State health department in assisting to enforce installation of machinery to neutralize refuse from manufacturing industries before it is permitted to enter creeks and rivers.

Other speakers at the meeting, which was held at the Clearview Inn, were Swepson Earle, former conservation commissioner; Talbot Denmead, of the United States Bureau of Fisheries; C. M. Lefevere, president of the Taneytown Sportsmen's Club, and Harry Berwager, president of the Forest and Stream Club, Westminster, and register of wills in Carroll County.

11 New Tutors Are Appointed In Alexandria

Aim to Relieve Congestion in Schools; Sixteen Named All-Told.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU
207 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 223.

The School Board of Alexandria have named 16 teachers for the next school year, Eleven of them are additional teachers to relieve congestion.

The teachers named are for Jefferson School, Beatrice B. Franklin, Margaret Lee Cox, Grisby Peck, Anna Wood Inge, Virginia Lee Thompson and Jessie C. Smith; for Lee School, Mildred F. Councilor and Mrs. W. H. Brown; Washington School, Dorothy J. Greenman; Mount Vernon School, Margaret R. Bell, Mary L. Cowles, Catherine E. McAllister and Iva L. Jones; Parker Gray School, for colored, A. L. Walker and Virginia A. Hilton; Lyles-Crouch School, for colored, Carry M. Crouch Brooks.

The board at its meeting Tuesday night confirmed the appointments made for summer school by Superintendent T. C. Williams. It was reported that the 40-day summer term will cost $1,480. The board authorized the superintendent to advertise for bids for furnishing coal for the schools. It is expected that 1,150 tons will be needed to meet the needs of the various schools.

The school board will meet again on June 26 to open bids for the furnishings of the George Washington High School. Samples of the furnishings needed for the building will be placed in the Jefferson School.

The board also made several appointments of janitors and helpers.

The regular monthly meeting of the local Forty-and-Eight Society will be held tonight at 7 p. m. in Gadsby's Tavern. A dinner will be served by members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Alexandria American Legion.

For the second time within three weeks a jury in the corporation court of Alexandria has been unable to reach an agreement in a law suit and has been discharged by Judge William P. Woolls.

The suit was a damage action brought by Wilbur Peyton against Melvin Barnett for the sum of $25,000 for injuries sustained in an automobile accident on the Mount Vernon Highway near St. Mary's Cemetery.

Members of the jury which deliberated about three hours without agreeing on a verdict included C. Aubrey Callahan, L. F. Dyson, C. L. Folmer, G. K. Brawner, Raymond Blumenfeld, J. B. Collins, P. E. Clift, G. H. Hufford, R. M. Wright, A. L. Ladd, C. P. Heisley and E. S. Goodloe.

Board Is Split as Fusionists Force Montgomery Tax Levy

Hagner Says He Will Refuse to Sign Checks for New Employes.

As an aftermath to descent of the Fusion ax on 23 Democrats yesterday, County Commissioners Richard H. Lansdale and Robert D. Hagner, Democrats, refused to sign the annual levy for Montgomery County, Md. It became legal, however, without their signatures.

In addition, Commissioner Hagner served notice that he would refuse to approve pay checks for any employes appointed by the Fusion commissioners which would be charged to his suburban fund.

Ira C. Whitacre, clerk to the board, said the question would be put to Edward Peter, board counsel, to give an opinion on whether the county commissioners can appoint Fusion supporters and pay salaries out of the suburban fund. It was not clear yesterday whether this could be done. Hagner declared that his signature must be on all orders for payment from the administrative account of the suburban fund.

Refuses to Sign Checks.

"I'm not going to sign a thing to pay any of them," Hagner said. "If the Fusion commissioners are going to run my suburban fund they are going to do it on their own responsibility. There isn't anyone going to dictate to me how I spend the suburban fund. I was elected the same as Coughlan."

Lansdale stated for both that the tax levy and tax rate "are their baby and we aren't going to be responsible for either of them." He charged that the Fusionists had usurped the administrative functions of the county and that he felt they should have the credit or discredit attached to their actions.

Hagner declared he would not sign the levy because the tax rate "is entirely too high." He attacked the work of William Aud, county assasser, a Fusion appointee, as inefficient and lacking in activity.

Charges Tax Assessment.

"If a proper assessor had been appointed and all the new building had been placed on the assessment books it wouldn't have been necessary to have such a high levy," Hagner said. "A man with a new brick house which must be valued at $6,000 or $7,000 came up here this morning to find out about his assessment and it hadn't been placed on the books. Due to the inactivity and inability of the assessor, many houses have not been assessed.

Lansdale declared that Montgomery County has been placing about $2,000,000 additional property on the assessment books each year for the last four years and that, in view of the building boom, it should have nearly $5,000,000 additional this year instead of the $2,000,000 added by Aud.

After Lansdale and Hagner both had declared they would not vote for or sign the levy, County Commissioner Paul M. Coughlan, Republican Fusionist, moved that the levy, amounting to $1,501,407.68, and the tax rate of $1.50 per $100 assessed value be adopted. His motion was seconded by Commissioner Charles E. King, Democratic Fusionist and the levy was signed by Commissioners Frank H. Karn, Coughlan and King.

23 Democrats Ousted.

The day's fireworks began in the morning when Commissioner Coughlan presented the names of 23 Democrats for dismissal July 1. The motion was seconded by King who, according to the Democrats, had made an agreement to vote with them only to switch back to the Republicans when apparently his demands for a share of the State roads patronage had been granted by the Republicans.

Those dismissed were Harry Shaw, county engineer; Raymond D. Stevens, assistant county engineer; Mrs. Mary O'Brien, Mrs. Lucile Mullineaux, S. M. "Boots" Hamilton, Charles I. Israel, Wilson Stewart, employes in the county commissioner's office; Harry Lee Miller, janitor at the Silver Spring County Building; Harry Miles, janitor at the Rockville courthouse; Kelly Magee, police desk clerk at the Silver Spring substation; Lieut. Dunbar Padgett and James Nichols, police desk clerks at the Bethesda substation; William Talbott, D. W. Milstead, Russell Wright, William Bolten, William Evans, Ossie Williams, O. Johnson, Albert Elliott, M. L. Butcher, J. J. Lacy, Otho Butcher, road maintenance suburban employes.

War Veterans Ignored.

The commissioners also suspended county contributions to the salaries of Thomas E. ("Bert") Shaw, Andrew Newman and Frank W. Ricketts, State roads supervisors, whose salaries are partly paid by the county.

Miss Margaret Dronenburg, Clarksburg, secretary to Edward Peter, counsel to the board of county commissioners, was appointed a clerk in the county commissioner's office, effective July 1.

Lieut. Dunbar Padgett, one of the police desk clerks who was dismissed, had served in France, beginning as a private and leaving the Army with the rank of lieutenant. He was permanently disabled while on active police duty in April, 1931, and had been given the desk job after his injuries made patrolling impossible. All veterans' organizations in the county had asked the commissioners to retain him.

D. C. Bank Bid Wins.

The commissioners approved sale of $200,000 in tax anticipation certificates at par to the Hamilton National Bank, in Washington. The bank offered a bid of 2¼ per cent interest, which was very much lower than offered by county banks. They also approved sale at the rate of 3¼ per cent, the same as paid for the first group of $331,000 refunding bonds purchased by Nuveen & Co., of Chicago, of a second batch of like bonds totaling $47,000, which inadvertently had been left out of the first sale.

Installation of a signal light to halt traffic in front of the Chevy Chase firehouse and at East West Highway and Connecticut avenue, a block away, when fire-engines are leaving the house was approved. The lights will cost $634.96 to install, and have a weekly cost of $2.50 for rental, besides the current consumed, estimated at $1 a month.

Midshipmen Given Late Commissions

Two Capital Youths Pass Physical Tests.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 20.—Of the group of 66 midshipmen graduated from the Naval Academy June 6 whose commissions were withheld pending physical re-examinations, 26 have been found qualified, it is announced today by officials of the academy.

Twenty-five of them have been commissioned ensigns in the regular line of the Navy, and one a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps. Most of the others will be given another examination at the end of a probationary period of two years and the resignations of a group of 13 will be delayed until September 1, subject to recommendations of examining officials.

Among those who qualified for commissions now are Henry C. Gearing 3d and James W. Whaley, both of Washington, D. C. The two-year probationary group includes John J. Becker, Newport News, Va.; George S. Fuller, Winchester, Va.; William T. Samuels, Severna Park, Md., and Emory D. Stanley, jr., Washington. Ray Cox, Severna Park, Md., is among those whose resignations will be held up until September.

New Rotary Club Will Get Charter

300 to Attend Ceremonies at College Park.

Approximately 300 representatives from 40 Rotary clubs in this district are expected to attend a dinner in College Park, Md., next Monday night when the newly-formed Rotary club is granted its charter.

Milton Patterson, of Cumberland, retiring governor of the thirty-fourth district of the national organization, will preside at the function and Arthur May, past president of the Washington Rotary Club, will be the principal speaker. It was largely through the influence of Patterson, a member of the University of Maryland board of regents, that the local club was given a charter.

Officers-to-be include: H. C. Byrd, vice president of the university, president; George C. Clark, of University Park, vice president; George F. Pollock, of College Park, secretary, and Harvey Casbarian, of Hyattsville, treasurer.

Funds Sought ForCourthouse In Arlington

County Will Ask U. S. to Defray 45 Per Cent of Expense.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 500. Clarendon, Va.

The Arlington County Board last night decided to ask the Federal Government for 45 per cent of the funds needed to build the proposed annex to the courthouse. The action was taken on motion of Christopher Garnett, one of the county supervisors.

The board instructed Lawrence W. Douglas, Commonwealth's attorney, to prepare an application to be submitted to Col. James A. Anderson, Virginia State director of the work relief fund. The Federal Government makes an outright grant of 45 per cent of the total cost of such construction.

Bids originally asked for the work ranged from $59,500 to $72,000. The plans on which these bids were made will be revised by the architects, Upman and Adams, of Washington, and will then accompany the application for the Federal money. B. M. Smith, chairman of the board, pointed out that the Federal aid would result in a material saving to the county.

The Arlington County Bar Association holds its annual field day, banquet and dance today at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

Field events including golf, tennis and pitching horseshoes will begin at 8 a. m., continuing well into the afternoon.

Emery N. Hosmer and George Groves will be in charge of the golf and tennis, while Albert M. Jones will direct the pitching of horse-shoes. Prizes for each of the events will be awarded at the banquet at 7:30 o'clock.

The arrangements for the banquet are in charge of Henry Klinge and Arthur C. Stickley 2d.

The evening program will include dancing from 9 until midnight.

The honor guests will be Judge Walter T. McCarthy of the Circuit Court and Judge B. M. Hedrick of the County Court.

To give candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for county offices an opportunity to express their views and platforms, the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County announce that three special meetings have been arranged during the month of July.

The first will be held on Tuesday evening, July 2, at which time Sheriff Howard B. Fields and H. J. Odenthal, for sheriff, and Lawrence W. Douglas, John Paul Jones and Emery N. Hosmer, for Commonwealth's attorney, will speak.

Tuesday, July 16, Ralph E. Remington, Lyman M. Kelley, I. C. Buchanan and Benjamin C. Laycock, for county clerk, and Charles T. Jesse and Harry A. Fellows, for county treasurer, will speak.

Tuesday, July 30, George M. Yeatman, W. E. A. McShea, Leo Lloyd, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Magruder, Thomas R. Mechem, C. W. Lee, Edward Duncan, F. Freeland Chew and J. W. Watson.

Places of the meetings will be announced later.

In accordance with the contract for the collection of trash beginning July 1, County Manager Roy S. Braden announces that all trash will be collected from the rear of the homes and not on the street line as in the past.

Citizens are requested to place all trash to be removed in an accessible spot.

The ways and means committee of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Washington Lee High School will sponsor a lawn party on the school grounds this evening beginning at 8 o'clock.

License Given For Beer Sale Despite Pleas

Mount Rainier Groups Fail to Block Permit With Petitions.

Despite vigorous opposition from the mayor and town council of Mount Rainier and numerous church organizations, the board of license commissioners of Prince Georges County, Md., yesterday granted an on-sale beer permit to Carl N. Klein, of Rhode Island avenue, Mount Rainier.

A delegation of 20 residents of Mount Rainier appeared before the board, with Bird H. Dolby, town corporation counsel, as spokesman. The group held that the recent referendum held in Mount Rainier, favoring the "dry" side by a large majority, was sufficient cause for the board to refuse the license.

Petitions opposing the issuance of the permit were presented to the commissioners by the mayor and council, the Men's Bible Class of the Christian Church, the Loyal Bereans Bible Class of the Christian Church, the Eleanore Nordeen Bible Class of the Christian Church, the Men's Union Bible Class of the First Methodist Episcopal Church South, the Mispah Bible Class of the Baptist Church, the Men's Bible Class of the Baptist Church, the Young Ladies' class of the Baptist Church, the Young Men's Bible Class of the Baptist Church, the Triangle Bible Class of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, the Star Bible Class of the Methodist Episcopal Church South and the Semper Fidelis Bible Class of the Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The application of Klein had been held over by the board since the June 6 meeting.

A special license to sell beer on-sale on July 3 and 4 was granted to the Capitol Heights Volunteer Fire Department.

Three applications for licenses were received by the board and will be advertised before action is taken July 11. They were Mrs. Naomi J. Hoile, of Oakland, on-sale beer and light wine; Philip Earl Dykes, of Fairmount Heights, on-sale beer, wine and liquor, and Daisy Newton, of Brentwood, on-sale and off-sale beer and wines.

Volga Boatman Name Selected For Night Club

Place Likely to Open in September With a Flair for the Russian.

By Kay Ware.

Start with a rumor—that Club Michel, alias Pilgrim Club, will reopen in September with the title "The Volga Boatman." The idea is to be Russian, but further news about it is still under cover. Let you know later.

Last week's big moment was at the Powhatan, when after a miserably hot evening, Ramon's smile appeared at the door, several considerate breezes followed, and last, but not least, Pete Macias came over and started a description of Cuban long, cool drinks. This drifted into simple supper recipes—and what tempting ones. Then a few dances, interrupted by giggles at Marty Rubin's special singing.

Among the "air-conditioned" spots—with guaranteed comfort is the Arlington Roof, where Moe Baer and boisterous boys hang out. Odd contrast—the serious workmanship of the orchestra during broadcasts, and the immediate reversal to foolishness afterward. Particularly funny is the pianist, who howls loudly when music is "hot."

Shoreham's Terrace is roofed with stars these nights, and the Reyes continue to pack them in. Mimosa and d'Armon furnish the tangoes and waltzes; Will Lacy cycles on one wheel.

If you wish a sip after tennis, or between pink teas, the Mayflower is the spot. For here, informality and formality go hand-in-hand. You'll glimpse golf togs chatting with top-hats at 7 in the evening, while sports oxfords dance with silvered slippers to Sidney's music. As for the younger set, they're always on display.

Show at Childs Gingham Club: Myron and Evelyn, with ball room and acrobatic dances; Roberta Petley, specialty dancer; Mary Jo Hamilton, who sings numbers in the show, introduces the acts. And receives flowers several times weekly from admirers. Sammy Richardson, one of the boys in Jimmy Santmyer's band, sings in both show and dance groups.

There are four shows Saturday, three other days. The last Saturday event is at 1:15 Sunday morning to take care of late arrivals.

The Washington Association for the Advancement of Night Club Advertising met last night at Maryland Club Gardens to decide what was what. To quote Member Walter, "Several decisions of momentous importance were discussed before the board, including night spots for next meeting place."

If you're at the Dude Ranch and see Paul Whiteman wandering around, be assured that it's bandsman Ralph Garren, who looks more like Whiteman than Paul himself.

Temple Graduates Hear Rep. Quinn

65 Receive Diplomas and Awards at Exercises.

Sixty-five students of the Temple School received diplomas and awards at graduation exercises last night in the ballroom of the Kennedy-Warren Hotel.

Representative James L. Quinn of Pennsylvania, addressed the graduates and presented diplomas. Miss Earlene White, postmaster of the United States Senate, also spoke.

In addition to the diplomas, 137 certificates for 100, 120 and 140 words a minute in shorthand were awarded. Forty-six students received certificates in typing, and 22 H.G.B. degrees were presented.

Scholarships were awarded to Miss Ruth Shields, graduate of George Mason High School, Alexandria, Va.; Miss Nellie Mooney, Washington and Lee High School, Clarendon, Va.; Miss Adele Owings, Immaculata Seminary. Another scholarship will be awarded to the outstanding man in the U. S. Military Camp, Third Corps Area.

Woman Reports Theft Of $5,600 From Home

Five thousand six hundred dollars in cash was reported stolen yesterday from the home of Sylvia Weinstein, 2801 Belleview terrace northwest.

She told police that thieves forced entrance to a cellar door and took a large envelope containing the money. The loss, it was reported, included three $1,000 bills, two $500 bills and 15 or 16 $100 bills. The house is also occupied by a local bondsman, police said.

Gingham Club Loses Liquor License 2 Days

A two-day suspension of its license to serve liquor was meted out to the Gingham Club by the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board for selling liquor to an intoxicated man on last Thursday.

The suspension became operative yesterday. It ends tonight. The club may resume serving drinks tomorrow. Members of the Beverage Board said such punitive action was usual in such cases.

Probe Continued In Fatal Plunge

J. A. Yates Killed in Fall From Window of Home.

The District coroner's office is continuing its investigation into the death of John Avery Yates, 24, assistant engineer at the Ambassador Hotel, early yesterday morning after a three-story fall from the bathroom window of his home at 1730 L street into a paved alley.

Two firemen, Henry A. Stieb and James B. Morrison, saw the engineer slipping through the window. They summoned the rescue squad ambulance and Yates was pronounced dead on arrival at Emergency Hospital.

William Carrigan, a roommate, said he and Yates had been out together Wednesday night. On returning home early yesterday morning, Yates went into the bathroom and locked the door. A few minutes later he fell through the window.

Forty Boys Apply to Join Band.

Forty boys have applied to join the band which is being organized by the Boys' Club of the Metropolitan Police, it was announced yesterday. The band will have its headquarters at 472 I street southwest, with Clinton J. Brown as its director.

Occoquan Trip Slated Sunday By Hiking Club

Itinerary of Wanderbirds Includes Rockledge, Colonial Mansion.

By Robert Shosteck.

The Wanderbirds Hiking Club will go on a pilgrimage Sunday to Occoquan, Va., a region rich in Indian lore and likewise known for an old colonial grist mill, the ruins of which still stand at the foot of the Falls of the Occoquan. This tour is of particular interest at this time since the hikers will have an opportunity to view a fine show of mountain laurel and also see the beautiful rhodedendron, just coming into blossom. Also on the itinerary is a short stop at Rockledge, a famous colonial mansion, and a swim near Davis Beach on the Potomac.

Readers of the Post and club members planning to go on this easy 4 or 5-mile hike will meet in front of the Post Building at 9:30 a. m. for the 28-mile bus trip to Occoquan. The round trip fare is 70 cents and reservations must be made in advance at National 4200. Bring lunch, a drinking cup and a swim suit.

The first stop will be at Rockledge, the old mansion now occupied by Mr. Barnes. The hikers will inspect the many interesting historic books and antiques, and make the acquaintance of the venerable custodian of the property. The route then will follow the crumbling millrace for one half mile to the falls, passing the old gristmill on the way.

Pirate's Cove Visit Included.

Lunch will be had at the falls near a spring in an exceptionally scenic area. Retracing our steps to Occoquan Village, the group will again board the buses for Davis Beach on Occoquan Bay. The second part of the trip will include a visit to the Indian country and also the famous Pirate's Cove. This region was once the domain of the Tauxenants Tribe, a member of the Powhatan Confederacy. The name Occoquan is of Indian derivation and means "curved expansive waters"—referring to the gentle curvature of Occoquan Bay.

The fertile land about the bay probably was thickly populated since thousands of stone implements have been found there in the last several decades. Arrow heads and stone axes often can be found in freshly plowed fields in this vicinity, particularly after heavy rains.

Bath House Privileges Available.

The dirt road to Davis' Beach passes Pirate's Cove, a small inlet of the bay. A slab of sandstone upon which is chiselled a much-weathered skull and crossbones has been found nearby. Beneath it Dr. Titus Ulke has deciphered the date "17—" and a blurred "Capt. ———." It is believed that a buccaneer chief probably lies beneath this weather-beaten tombstone.

The hikers will spend several hours at Davis Beach in the warm waters of the Potomac, here over a mile in width. Rustic bathhouse privileges will be available to the group at a nominal charge. The hikers should be in Washington by 7 p. m. Dr. Ulke will lead this trip, and hikers are expected to refrain from straying off on private hikes because of the stopovers.

The schedule of summer hikes will be off the press by next week and are so planned as to include swimming on each trip. The trips will be somewhat shorter than usual because of the hot weather anticipated. Copies may be obtained on hikes or through the writer, care of The Post.

The annual Appalachian Trail Conference will be held this weekend at Skyland, Va., in the Shenandoah National Park. Over 200 delegates from Maine to Georgia are expected to hear reports on trail maintenance and extension of side trails. Speakers include A. C. Cammerer, director of the National Park Service, and R. M. Evans and J. C. Kircher of the United States Forest Service. Several short hikes are planned. Visitors are welcome.

Belgium Nabs "Spies" Photographing Forts

Brussels, June 20 (AP).—Two men accused of spying for Germany were caught today photographing Belgium's new forts under construction at Battice, north of Liege.

They were arrested after motorists joined in their pursuit and overtook them near the frontier. A miniature camera containing 30 pictures was seized.

CONTRARY to the present plan of spending, another so-called "economy drive" is in the making and probably will break in the next session of Congress, thus affecting Government employes, E. Claude Babcock, president A. F. G. E., has predicted.

Mr. Babcock explained:

"Certain powerful interests are intent upon spreading propaganda against the Government and against Government workers. There are various reasons for their attitude. In the first place, they want to keep the Government's activities at a minimum, so that their own may be interfered with as little as possible. In the second place, they want to keep the tax rate as low as possible, for the take of their own pocketbooks. But the most vital reason is their desire to smash wages and working standards, not merely for the Government service but for the working class as a whole."

Another hearing on the Sirovich bill will be held at 10 a. m. today in the Civil Service committee room, Old House Office Building.

Father of Children 'Lost' Here Returns

Amnesia Blamed for Leaving Youngsters in Zoo.

Apparently dazed, Frank Henry Nuttall, civilian employe at the Edgewood, Md., Arsenal, whose two children, Dorothy May and John Henry, jr., were found abandoned in the Zoo last Sunday, has returned to his home, it was learned yesterday.

Now under the care of a physican, Nuttall told the children's grandmother, Mrs. Mary Purcell, he had wandered as far as Pittsburgh, after the children became lost, and "did not come to himself" until he was in the Pennsylvania city.

A veteran of the World War, Nuttall is said to have been gassed and to have suffered frequent lapses of memory since. The children were returned to their home in Edgewood, Tuesday, after spending the night in the Receiving Home here.

Nuptial Fete Is Attended By Notables

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The Ambassador of France and Mme. de Laboulaye were among the company of distinguished guests who attended the reception following the marriage of Mlle. Fanny Camille Bunand-Sevastos, daughter of Mme. Paul-Louis Couchoud-Sevastos, of Paris, and M. Antonin Bunand, of Lyon, France, to Mr. Norris Bowie Chipman, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bowie Chipman, of Washington.

The marriage took place yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church, the Rev. Ernest Smith, D. D., officiating in the presence of a small group of relatives and friends.

The bride, who was escorted and given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Theodore Greppo, of New York, wore a gown of white mousseline de soie fashioned on simple lines with a wide circular collar, no sleeves and a brief train. Her voluminous veil of tulle fell from a coronet of rose point lace held on either side with tiny chaplets of gardenias. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Gregory Only Attendant.

Miss Angela Gregory, of New Orleans, a cousin of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore a summer frock of blue mousseline de soie, with a large garden hat, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and delphinium.

Mr. Chipman was best man for his son, and the ushers were Mr. Langdreth Harrison, Mr. Bernard Gunter and Mr. Warwick Keegin, all of whom are Foreign Service officers attached to the Department of State.

After the ceremony there was a large reception at the home of the bridegroom's parents on Woodland drive. The bride's mother was unable to come from Paris. Other distinguished guests included the Ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Mme. Troyanovsky, the Minister of China and Mme. Wu, Senator and Mrs. Augustine Lonergan, Senator and Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, the Solicitor General and Mrs. Stanley Reed, Gen. and Mrs. Benjamin D. Foulois, the Counselor of the Swiss Legation, Mr. Louis Micheli; the Chief of the Division of European Affairs of the State Department, Mr. Robert F. Kelley; the Director General of the Pan American Union, Dr. Leo S. Rowe; Dr. and Mrs. James Brown Scott, Miss Doris Stevens of the Pan American Union; Miss Anne Randolph and Miss Mary Randolph.

The mother of the bridegroom received with the newly married couple, wearing a gown of hyacinth blue crepe with a large hat of natural colored straw banded with blue velvet. Mr. Chipman and his bride left later for a wedding trip, the latter wearing a costume of powder blue with a hat to match and white accessories. On their return they will spend the remainder of the summer at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chipman, sr., and in the autumn will move to a home of their own.

Bride Educated in Paris.

The bride, who was educated in Paris, is a niece of the late Antoine Burdelle, French sculptor of world repute with whom she studied for several years before coming to Washington. She has exhibited in the Salon des Tuileries, in Paris, at the Arts Club here, at the Charcoal Club of Baltimore, and in the independent art exhibit in Washington.

During the last five years she has held the position of executive secretary of the Inter-American Commission of Women in the Pan-American Union, in which capacity she has attended international conferences at Havana, The Hague, Geneva and Montevideo on behalf of equal nationality. Her mother was the owner and editor of La Revue de la Femme and comes of a very old and distinguished French family.

The bridegroom was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1925 and received a degree from the School of Oriental Languages at the University of Paris in 1933. Since entering the Foreign Service of the United States in 1928 he has specialized in affairs in Soviet Russia.

Mr. Chipman was assigned to the division of eastern European affairs at the State Department in 1934, and his last post was at Riga, Latvia, where he held the position of third secretary of the legation. He is a member of the Chevy Chase Club.

Home Called Key to Future

Cornell Expert Holds Ideal Family Life Promises Children's Success.

IT IS GENERALLY conceded that homes furnish the background for success—or failure—in whatever occupation the individual may take up. A writer in the current issue of The Parents' Magazine offers scientific evidence to prove that successful families are harmonious ones. Mildred Thurow, Ph. D., of Cornell's State College of Agriculture, declares that in a recent survey of the families of 200 college students it was found that students were dissatisfied when conflict existed between members of the family in the home. After citing a number of individual reactions, Miss Thurow concludes that there are 12 characteristics necessary to success as a family. Here they are:

(1) Little or no conflict between parents, parents and children, between children in the home.
(2) Much affection expressed between family members.
(3) Friends and relatives entertained frequently in the home.
(4) Children's friends entertained frequently in the home.
(5) Husband and wife making a practice of attending social functions together.
(6) High school education at least for the parents.
(7) Agreement between parents on matters of discipline and family control.
(8) Little or no dominance of the father in the home.
(9) Family members counseling together frequently.
(10) Minimum amount of discipline in the home.
(11) Medium supervision of children's activities by parents.
(12) Children confiding in their parents.

Social Barriers Broken Down By Beauty Craze of Women; Standardization Is Penalty

By Malvina Lindsay,

FIFTEEN YEARS of the beauty craze—what has it netted American women?

Fifteen years ago, according to the Women's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor, the great commercial pursuit of beauty got under way. The World War was over; bobbed hair was in. Bobbed hair meant youth. So did marcels, permanents, facials, manicures, et cetera. Beauty shops blossomed on every corner, in every hotel and department store. A major industry was born.

• • • •

Not that women had failed to seek beauty before. Not that they hadn't brewed creams and used curl papers. But they had done these things surreptitiously and in their boudoirs. They had stoutly maintained the pretense that their curls were natural, their complexions heaven-sent. Now in 1920, with a new social freedom opening to them, they were to go after beauty publicly and synthetically.

• • • •

What of their quest? Men have laughed at it, foreign visitors marvelled at it, moralists deplored it, but undoubtedly it has brought them many gains. The commercialization of beauty has saved women time and energy—lessened their home work. It has lifted the veil of secrecy from the boudoir. It has made them neater and better groomed. It has inspired them with a greater zeal for preserving their bodies and their youth.

IT HAS AIDED democracy in that it has helped to abolish class lines. It has made rouge respectable and has obliterated the outward distinction between a debutante and a shop girl, between a school teacher and a tap dancer. It has given the so-called "nice" girl a break and rescued her from drab gentility. And—because men have never been keenly alive to the nuances of intangible feminine charm—it has saved many a plain girl from social annihilation.

• • • •

To men, alas, it has not been so kind. For it has wrested from them their supremacy in the field of age. It has taken away their traditional advantage of years. Men of today may think they look younger than their wives, but thanks to the beauty shop, they no longer do. No more does a woman have to marry a man 10 to 15 years older than herself to avoid looking like his mother at 40. In fact, since 1920 women have made such gains on appearance over men that even the most self-assured, fat, bald gentlemen are beginning to question their own pulchritude.

• • • •

Its greatest service perhaps has been in the new self-assurance it has given women. Whether od not they have fooled any one else through their practice of beauty—or more accurately, cosmetology—they have fooled themselves. Powdered, permanented grandmothers have looked into their mirrors and decided to join new clubs, start on new journeys. Tired housewives have come from facial booths feeling as irresistible as Peggy Joyce. Timid maidens, fortified by wave sets and manicures, have set forth ready for conquest of beaux or jobs.

ON THE OTHER side of the ledger, it must be admitted that the commercial beauty craze has standardized women. Also, unfortunately, it has increased their dependence on material values. The old copybook maxim, "Handsome is as handsome does," has died an unseemly death. The non-beauty no longer feels the need of being good. Worse still, she no longer feels the need of being interesting—or even polite. A new wave set, an indelible lipstick, she naively believes, will make her socially invincible.

• • • •

Costmetology and Hollywood have combined to put feminine beauty on a too material and obvious basis in the last 15 years. As a result, the intangibles of social charm have been neglected. Many of the pleasant graces of our grandmothers' day have been allowed to lapse. But recently there have been signs that the beauty business was widening its scope beyond cold creams and wave lotions. Beauty salons are including in their programs rest, exercise, health, diet. They are reaching into the fields of posture, grace, voice and manners. They are emphasizing individuality rather than conformity.

• • • •

They need to make much further development along this line and women who patronize them need to demand more of this type of service. In the last 15 years the material side of feminine beauty has been thoroughly explored. The next 15 should be marked by feminine adventure into the realm of inward grace.

Club Support For Calendar Change Sought

Pennsylvania Federation Official Leads Drive for Reform.

INTENSIVE efforts to line up the club women of the United States to work for calendar reform are under way, according to Mrs. Margaret Kulp, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Kulp has issued a 24-page outline of calendar reform programs. It contains a study of the history of the calendar and includes indorsements of the proposed study by such prominent women as the late Jane Addams, Miss Mary E. Woolley, Representative Virginia Jenckes, Miss Grace Abbott, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, Miss Eleanor Rathbone, member of the British Parliament, and Mlle. Rosat, professor in the University of Paris.

Calls Calendar Defective.

Club women, Mrs. Kulp believes, are not yet awakened to significance of the calendar reform moment. She says:

"They are unaware, for the most part, that there is a growing conviction throughout the world that the old Gregorian Calendar which we are still using in the twentieth century is defective, awkward and cumbersome, and that the time has come to consider seriously a calendar of balance and permanent regularity. They do not know that the matter of calendar revision is of such importance to the nations of the world that the League of Nations has been considering the subject and will discuss it again in a plenary session at Geneva in 1936.

Likened to Sun Dial.

"Clubwomen who are in business and professions will appreciate the fact that some of the confusion existing today in the economic and professional worlds would be lifted forever if the defects of the present calendar were remedied. All clubwomen will be interested to know that the movable dates of Easter and other holy days have been matters of great concern to the churches, and they will no doubt approve a plan which would stabilize these holidays and prevent Easter from wandering over a period of 35 days. Clubwomen who are homemakers and mothers will approve the simplification of calendar revision in home management, and clubwomen who are teachers will be intrigued with a simpler school calendar and a simplified system of teaching the days and the months of the year to the child in the school."

Day of Warring Feminist Past, Judge Bullock Says

Underwood & Underwood.

Although she admits women have "lost ground" the past few years in public life, Judge Georgia Bullock, of the Superior Court in Los Angeles, does not believe the odds are all against women. "We can retrieve our former position," she said, "by cooperating with men in business and in the professions and by establishing ourselves, not as troublemakers, but as real contributors to public welfare."

Cooperation With Men Will Achieve More Equality Than "Warfare," Los Angeles' Charming Woman Jurist Asserts.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

PERSONS who visualize a woman judge as a square-jawed, hard-boiled female whose fists are as firm as her decisions, should have a glimpse of Mrs. Georgia Bullock, who is visiting in Washington. Mrs. Bullock is judge of the Superior Court in Los Angeles.

A glance at her would dispel the theory that "no woman can succeed in a man's profession and retain her womanly charm." Velvet-voiced and feminine as the brown silk bow beneath her chin, she sat at breakfast in the Mayflower yesterday and discussed the position of women in public life, expressed some opinions why women had "lost ground" in the past few years and gave a formula for woman's success in fields formerly reserved for men.

Like all feminists Mrs. Bullock advocates an equal chance for men and women in business and the professions. But unlike the militant feminists, she does not insist "rights" can be won or retained by combative tactics.

"Time for Contention Is Gone."

"Women in the past have won some concessions—suffrage for example—by 'warfare,'" she said. "But the time for contention is gone. Now our only hope for survival in public life is to cooperate with men and to work toward proving our merits and establishing ourselves, not as trouble makers, but as real contributors to public welfare."

She is convinced that in the last few years women in the United States have had their wings clipped, have lost caste to a certain extent in business and the professions. She does not know whether this is the result of world changes, or the influence of the situation in Europe, but she feels, "The only way we can retrieve our former position is to prove we have unique ability and can work with, rather than against, men."

The chief obstacle in doing this is that women have difficulty in regarding their public activity objectively, she explained. "The personal, subjective attitude is what women have to fight," she said. "They also have to combat their personal prejudices. Whether these are more numerous than man's preconceived ideas does not count. They are more noticeable, more nearly a convenient target for criticism, because women are still 'on trial' everywhere except in the home."

Hits High-Handed Feminists.

Mrs. Bullock's successful career in the legal profession has taught her, however, that odds are not all against women. In fact, while she admitted countless evidences of discrimination against women, she explained that this was not due so much to "man's prejudice as to the attitude of women themselves."

Developing this theory, she said she often had noticed how women in high positions set out to execute their ideas, regardless of the opinions of men with whom they worked. Such action, she said, was enough to prejudice men against all women who sought self-expression outside the home. "But I have yet to see the man who resented working with an intelligent woman who knew how to cooperate with her associates and who didn't try to take over the reins completely."

She believes women could accomplish much more if they were strongly organized, "not as a third party but as a unit that could be counted on to help, rather than antagonize, men in public enterprises." She thinks women have a unique contribution to make to human welfare because "no matter what their interests, they can always be depended upon to defend the fireside, the family life of their country. That's where the maternal instinct works itself into the life of a woman—even a business woman who has no family of her own."

This BUSINESS of LIVING

Is It Reasonable to Expect a Girl to Remain Faithful to One Man When Six Years Must Elapse Before Marriage?

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I have been reading your articles rather constantly but I never dreamt I would ever have reason to write you. However, something has turned up which perhaps I should have foreseen. Or should I have foreseen it? That is my question.

I am 23 years old and have been keeping steady company for four years with a girl who is a year or so older. Two years ago we were ready to be married. At that time, however, I received an unexpected opportunity to attend a service school which requires six years of unmarried life.

• • • •

When I was younger, the though of this school occupied first place in my mind; but the opportunity to enter it, coming at that time found me undecided. However, consideration of the future and certain special circumstances led me to accept the opportunity. I have studied and worked hard the past two years.

• • • •

The girl and I pledged ourselves to each other then, and during those times we could be together since, we have had wonderful times. I did not foresee any break. I avoided all contact with other girls, but her work brought her in contact with many persons.

• • • •

She broke the news to me just recently that she has fallen in love with someone else, but that she still cares some for me. I cannot see her very often and my future life in the service will require long stretches of isolation. My question is: can I reasonably expect a girl to be true to me for six years before marriage? And if this threat blows over, what guaranty is there it won't happen again in the future?

• • • •

I have constantly cared for this girl and still do. My love for her has been intensified by the companionship which develops through years of friendship. I care for her enough to want to be fair to her, and not to try to hold to our pledge if it should cause her sorrow later in life. Another thing that bothers me is that my sister and friends in general have always been distasteful to her. She does like my mother and father, however. Yours truly, F. F.

Long Engagements Risky.

DEAR F. F.: Since youth cannot hope to build a happy, successful and enduring marriage in the absence of mutual love, I think you have no choice but to free this girl from her pledge given you two years ago inasmuch as she has subsequently yielded her heart to someone else.

In telling you she still cares for you "some," I believe it was not her intention to extend any hope of your recapturing and holding her love, so much as it was her way of tactfully conveying the information that henceforth she can regard you at most only as an old and dear friend.

• • • •

With regard to your question, "Can I reasonably expect a girl to be true to me for six years before marriage?" I think the answer is "No," and a most emphatic "no" when the girl is only 20, separated from her fiance almost continuously, and thrown constantly in the society of many other persons.

• • • •

It has been said a woman isn't capable of feeling a mature, sustained emotion until she is at least 23, and that any romantic attachement she may have entered into prior to that age is, in the very nature of things, subject to possible revision. Aside from that, long engagements are practically guaranteed to wither the flower of romance for even the truest, most steadfast of mature lovers.

• • • •

Don't brood over such spilled milk as the fact that the girl has never particularly cared for your sister and friends, while liking your father and mother. Such incidental prejudices and preferences have no real bearing on the issue; that she has found it possible to care for another more than she has cared for you.

• • • •

And be very careful not to assume a martyr-like attitude in giving her up. After all, it is as much to your own interests as to hers to let her go if her heart is elsewhere. M. H.

Treatment of Alcoholism.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: In answer to a letter written your column last week, you gave the names of several doctors who treat persons afflicted with "dipsomania." At the time, I neglected to make a note of these names and I would appreciate it greatly if you will publish them again in your column. K. L. S.

• • • •

DEAR K. L. S.: Replying June 13 to "Housewife," a resident of Maryland, I listed the names of four persons to whom she might properly apply for advice and assistance in helping her husband overcome his addiction to alcohol. They were Dr. George H. Preston, associated with the Maryland State Board of Mental Hygiene, 330 North Charles street, Baltimore; Dr. Ralph Truitt, executive secretary of the Mental Hygiene Society of Maryland, whose office and clinic (the latter conducted in connection with the University of Maryland) are located at 622 West Lombard street, Baltimore; Miss Beulah Smith, director of the Washington Life Adjustment Center, 1410 Columbia road northwest, Washington, D. C., and Miss Charlotte Wilcox, attached to the Hyattsville, Md., branch of the Emergency Relief Administration.

• • • •

I do not mean to imply, however, that the two doctors named "treat" alcoholic addicts. They may or they may not. It is more probable that they refer such persons to those who can and do treat them. And, with the exception of Miss Smith, they could give audience only to such appeals as came to them from residents of Maryland. I suggest you call Miss Smith, ADams 7979, to obtain the names of whatever institutions or persons in Washington specialize in treating alcoholic cases. M. H.

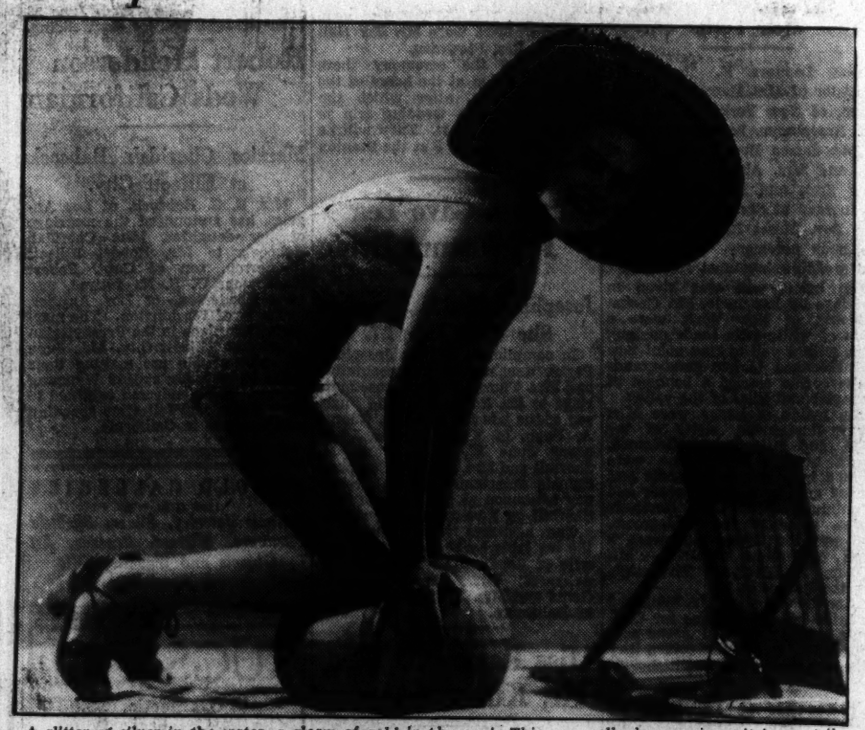
Cellophane Swim Suits Are Here!



A glitter of silver in the water, a gleam of gold in the sun! This new cellophane swim suit is as strikingly beautiful on the beach as in the surf. La Bourrasque is its name. Marcel Rochas, the designer.

Sheen Gives a Glamor; They Are Cool and Snug Fitting.

By Frances Mangum.

IT'S A CELLOPHANE season, yessir! Take a trip to the beach and see. Here young women are outshining the mermaids by taking to the surf in cellophane suits.

Don't be alarmed. The suits are not transparent, nor do they melt away. They are made of a brand-new fabric—in fact, the latest contribution of the synthetic industry to the textile world.

This gleaming, glossy, glittering fabric is produced by depositing a nontarnishable metallic finish on one side of a sheet of cellophane. Two such sheets are then laminated together so that each side is metallic coated. This is then slit into narrow widths which are woven into a solid piece of material.

There's no denying the glamour of cellophane suits! When you wear them in the water they glitter like silver. In the sun they gleam like gold. Extremely becoming to sun-kissed skins!

Cool and Snug Fitting.

Besides the flattering way they have about them, cellophane suits recommend themselves for other reasons. First, they are cool. They do not cling like silk, and some cottons, nor stick like woolens. Second, they fit snugly and do not stretch out of shape. The tiny cellophane slits are woven to a lastex foundation with sufficient elasticity to adapt itself to the figure—and, to some extent, restrain wayward curves.

While all these suits have a similar metallic sheen, they come in several colors, silvery white, soft green, blue, pink and other pastel shades. For the most part, they follow traditional swim suit styles, being made in plain one-piece, sunback fashion.

While cellophane is by far the most novel fabric which has appeared in the swim suit realm, there are a variety of styles which have kept the fashion world agog. One of these is a variation of the two-piece bandeau and panty style which shows by the draped folds of the bandeau a bit of classic influence. In this style, the "bra" fastens in back by means of two long straps which loop around the waist and tie in a front bow.

A New Style From Paris.

Paris has contributed one of the most conservative swim suit styles. This is a one-piece suit which falls in full, skirtlike folds around the bottom. It is sleeveless with a brief suntan back, but is finished off with a Peter Pan collar.

Already a general favorite is the Tahitian swim suit made of a bright cotton print and consisting of bandeau and shorts. For loafing around on the beach there is usually a full, native-looking skirt to complete the costume.

A great many of the suits, usually of cotton, follow rather closely the little boy and little girl romper styles. Some even have little short sleeves and slit backs. Others have halter tops and decollete backs, better for basking in the sun.

The "fish net" suits have provided an amusing and striking innovation. These are woolen and covered over with a wide mesh fish net. Fish net slippers complete the picture.

Paris Club Shuns Dieting, Aims to Enhance Curves

Paris, June 20 (AP).—All that worry over diets to keep thin is out of date with the smart set here. They have an eating club to put on curves and they are working hard at it. The club's name is "The Gourmettes," the Marquise de Ganay is one of the leading spirits and several Americans are included. Members meet for week-end luncheons where at least eight dishes are served and almost as many wines. Nobody thinks about figures and everybody eats all she wants. They all love it.

'Off With Their Chins!' Now Cry Of the Experts

Chinettes Will Mold Your Face With Minimum of Trouble.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

"OFF WITH their heads!" cried the Duchess in "Alice in Wonderland."

"Off with their chins!" decree beauty experts who everywhere are urging women to restore the youthful contours of their faces. Twin and triple chins have no place in the beauty picture and they should be banished entirely.

All very well, you might say, but how, pray tell us, can we do this?

First of all, have you a minimum of patience? Will you make a determined effort? If you answer yes, the battle is half won for the means of putting chins in their place is right at hand. You'll find them in the toiletries section of a downtown store. Chinettes, they're called.

They are made of the finest French elastic and sturdy net. The elastic part fits directly under your chin. The net, in the shape of a cap, goes over your head. Thus, while you are molding your face into shape, you are keeping your hair in place.

Chinettes lift those dropping muscles and refold them into the firm, youthful lines by a painless type of face-lifting. This latest innovation into the beauty mart really does five worthwhile jobs, all in one. 1. It reduces double chins. 2. It fills out hollowed cheeks. 3. It eliminates tell-tale lines. 4. It helps to preserve a perfect contour, giving you a happy, attractive, youthful expression. 5. It keeps your hair from becoming mussed up, and helps you set your waves. What more could anyone ask?

It's a pleasure to use a chinette because there's none of the intricate adjusting here, tying there, and loosening somewhere else. You simply slip the cap portion of the chinette over your hair, put the rubber section well under your chin, and tie the two ribbons in back into a bow. This done, you may take your afternoon siesta, or retire for the evening in perfect assurance that your chinette is busy about its beauty job while you rest or sleep.

Deodorant Prevents Waste.

A deodorant with the fragrance of pine needs only to be tried to be given first place on your shopping list. It comes in a large bottle with a glass-stemmed cork. A little sponge on the end of the stem is there for a very precise purpose. It will hold the proper amount of liquid for one application, thereby doing away with the extravagant waste attendant on cotton dabs.

After this excellent deodorant has been well applied, it may be rinsed off as soon as it has dried. You'll find it does a thorough job, checking both odors and perspiration.

Fastidious men as well as discriminating women will enjoy this anti-odor liquid because of its prompt and dependable action—and because of its faint, refreshing pine scent.

"Cabana" New Cologne.

"Cabana" is the name of a new sports version of a trio of floral colognes. They come to you in a high round box with a shallow base.

As you twirl the cover around, a breezy seascape unfolds itself. Black sketches of palm leaves, fish, seagulls, clouds, bubbles, waves, sailboats, waves, liners, seashells, a girl tearing past on a bicycle, a romantic couple and a cabana. These sketches were done by artist Frank McIntosh in his inimitable light style.

The whole package is amusing and gay in an airy, summery style. The vacation spirit is captured in the delightful fresh fragrance of the three colognes.

Here's the ideal gift to freshen and brighten your dressing table during the golden summer months. And what a sparkle of pleasure it would bring to your hostess as a week-end gift!

Don't Bleach Skin Now.

Query. Please send me the name of a good bleach. My face is covered with freckles and I want to remove them. D. E. L.

Answer. This is a very bad time for bleaching your skin. As soon as the old skin cuticle peels off a new and sensitive skin is exposed. This will freckle and burn very quickly. Why not wait until fall to bleach and now try a good foundation cream or lotion which will help conceal your freckles and protect your skin at the same time?

Also use a darker shade of powder. Powder and foundation will serve to hide those freckles almost entirely.

Shampoo Rinse.

Query—Whenever I shampoo my hair at home I find it virtually impossible to rinse all the soap out. What can I do about this? MARGARET.

Answer—Use a table to two tablespoons of vinegar in your rinse water. If your hair is blonde you might use lemon instead. If possible use a spray for rinsing purposes.

What TODAY Means

"Cancer."

IF JUNE 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 11 a. m., from 1 to 3 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 to 9 a. m., from 3 to 5 p. m. and from 9 to 11 p. m.

If June 21 is your birthday, you were born under the Zodiacal sign Cancer. You probably prefer to listen, rather than talk, and dislike boisterousness and also ostentatious display. Life will never be dull for you, if there is any truth about variety being its spice. You are likely to be a firm believer in the old saying: "Discretion is the better part of valor." Your determination and energy will help you to realize your dreams. You may have almost uncanny powers in anticipating the thoughts, as well as needs of those with whom you are in close contact.

You are liable to come into possession of property or money through a will or as a gift. You most likely have a vivid imagination. Your birthstones are the ruby and emerald. Your flowers are the iris, lily and white rose. Married and engaged couples and sweethearts will display good judgment if they refrain from being overly critical this day.

If a woman, and June 21 is your birthday, you will advance your interests in proportion to the degree you develop self-confidence. Perhaps only by being aggressive will you be able to attain a desired end. Count more on your own efforts, rather than on those of others. Journalism, teaching, lecturing, designing, selling, and clerical work are among the lines of employment to which you should find no trouble in adapting yourself. You should make an excellent housewife, a devoted mate and mother. If you aspire to social position you should find little difficulty in achieving it, providing you have the financial means.

The child born on June 21 may, during its preparatory school days, be inclined to suffer from bashfulness. Its parents should do everything possible to discourage this characteristic in a tactful way. Fussing, nagging or teasing methods are a great mistake.

If a man, and June 21 is your natal day, success should crown your efforts if you assert yourself, and at all times take the initiative in the formulating of business policies. Your qualifications may become substantially recognized through literature, printing, law, engineering or some commercial line of activity.

Freezing Care Decides Value Of Ice Cream

Unclean Methods Impair Nutrition in Delicacy, Cutter Warns.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

FROZEN milk pudding, now called ice cream, is consumed in larger quantities than any other milk preparation. The annual per capita consumption of ice cream in the United States is somewhat in excess of 3 gallons, or approximately one-half pint per person per week.

As a rule ice cream is not kept for a long period of time. This is fortunate, because we can not depend upon a freezing temperature to kill all disease-producing bacteria. It is only through cleanliness of manufacture, "untouched by human hands," and the pasteurization of the mixture before freezing that it is kept a relatively safe product. Whenever poisoning from ice cream does occur, it is usually traceable to foul utensils, contaminated hands, or insanitary conditions surrounding the manufacture of the product.

The industry started in a small way. In 1851 Jacob Fussell, a Baltimore milk dealer, manufactured the first ice cream sold at wholesale in the United States. He found himself with more cream on hand than could be disposed of and conceived the notion that by freezing cream he could preserve it from spoilage and market it in iced containers. About ten years later mechanical refrigeration came upon the scene and with it the manufacture and storage of ice cream on a large scale.

The ice cream cone was first used at the St. Louis World's Fair. About the same time a machine called the homogenizer that broke up the globules of cream fat into very fine particles was invented by Gaulin, of Paris. This device not only assisted in preparing a smoother "mix," but prevented the churning of cream into butter during the freezing process.

Years ago ice cream was condemned by medical and lay authorities alike as a possible source of intestinal disease. There was a good reason for the warning. In 1894 examinations were made of samples of ice cream sold in London, with the startling result that the number of bacteria found practically equaled those contained in ordinary sewage. The water in which ice cream dishes were washed was also examined and found to be alive with organisms.

Before pasteurization came into general vogue in the manufacture of this popular food, numerous outbreaks of typhoid fever were traced to ice cream. In all, more than 30 epidemics, one of which involved 1,800 persons, came from this source.

All of this has changed. Under city, State and Federal health regulations the manufacture of ice cream, for the most part, is now carried out under sanitary conditions.

Ribbon Mold Gives Dinner Chilly Touch And It Costs Only a Few Cents to Serve

For sparkling beauty and piquant flavor there is nothing so effective as a ribbon mold. Its appearance will create an impression of expensive luxury, but in reality it is a dessert that can be made for only a few cents.

By Dorothea Duncan.

LET'S do as much of our Sunday cooking as possible on Saturday during this warm weather. Here is a light fruity flavored dessert that will add a chilly touch to the Sunday dinner. It is one of those delectable dishes with a company manner although it costs but a few cents to serve. The recipe makes ten generous servings so there is always enough for seconds or plenty if unexpected guests drop in and remain for dinner.

Ribbon Mold.

2 packages fruit-flavored gelatin
2 pints warm water and fruit juice

Dissolve fruit-flavored gelatin in warm water and fruit juice. Fresh fruit juice or canned juice may be used. Pour 1¾ cups dissolved mixture into loaf mold. Chill until firm. Place ¾ cup remaining gelatin mixture in bowl of cracked ice or ice water and whip with rotary egg beater until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Turn into mold and chill until firm. Top with remaining gelatin mixture (about 1¾ cups). Be sure that the last gelatin added is cool. Chill until firm. Turn out on a platter and cut in slices. Serve with whipped cream if desired.

For a more elaborate dessert make the mold of strawberry or red raspberry flavored gelatin, and top each slice with sweetened whipped cream into which has been folded a few fresh strawberries or red raspberries according to the flavor of the gelatin used.

The raspberry omelet is merely your best fluffy omelet made in the usual way. Before turning to serve, place slightly crushed and sweetened raspberries on one side and fold the other side over to top the berries. Dust the surface with powdered sugar and serve at once.

The chicken a la king for Sunday's dinner may be prepared from leftover chicken. If the chicken is freshly cooked this preparation may be done Saturday morning. After the chicken has cooled, cut it from the bones and cube. Keep it in the refrigerator overnight and add to the sauce which is made on Sunday.

Chicken A La King.

2 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 cup cream
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup quartered mushrooms
1 green pepper, minced
1 pimiento, cut in narrow strips
2 cups cooked diced chicken
2 egg yolks
½ teaspoon pepper

Make a white sauce of the fat, flour, milk, cream, salt and pepper. Add the mushrooms, green pepper, pimiento and chicken. Cook until the meat is heated through. Just before serving stir in the egg yolks, slightly beaten and cook for a moment, stirring constantly. Serve at once on points of hot toast.

Lindbergh Leads In 'Who I Want to Be' Vote of Boys

The popular idea that American boys all want to be President has been exploded. The boys of today want to be Charles A. Lindbergh, and the girls want to be Shirley Temple, a Nation-wide survey made by The Boys' and Girls' Newspaper reveals Admiral Byrd ran second to Lindbergh, while Amelia Earhart ran a close second to Shirley Temple. In the vote of the boys President Roosevelt ranked sixth, while in the vote of the girls Mrs. Roosevelt ran third.

A tabulation of the vote of the boys showed the following ranking: Charles A. Lindbergh, Admiral Byrd, Babe Ruth, Dizzy Dean, Will Rogers, President Roosevelt, Tom Mix, Jackie Cooper, Eddie Cantor, Henry Ford, Charles E. Hughes, Johnny Weissmuller, John D. Rockefeller, Albert Einstein, Herbert Hoover, Walter Damrosch, William Tilden, R. G. Tugwell, Gen. Pershing, Bobby Jones, Max Baer.

Many of the girls wanted to be men, but only Amelia Earhart and Mrs. Roosevelt drew any of the boys' votes. Admiral Byrd, Lindbergh, Walter Damrosch, Johnny Weissmuller and President Roosevelt received many votes from girls. Seven times as many girls as boys wanted to be Walter Damrosch.

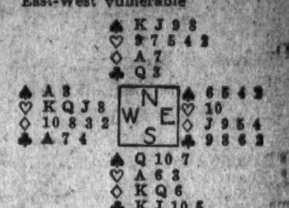
CULBERTSON on BRIDGE

A WELL-KNOWN Bridge teacher, who was in New York last week to attend the convention of the Culbertson National Studios, an organization of 4,000 Bridge teachers, told me a good story on herself.

She was coaching a beginner in the fundamentals of the game; and her pupil was taking to Contract enthusiastically, studying avidly and playing in tournaments as often as possible. In the course of one of the lessons, teacher and several pupils were playing and the beginner made an opening lead of the Ace from A Q 6 4 2, against a three-notrump contract. The teacher pointed out that from such a holding the proper lead against notrump contracts is the fourth-highest card.

The following night both were playing in a tournament. The teacher and her partner, also a fine player, were pitted against the pupil and a novice partner on the following deal:

East-West vulnerable



The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♣(1)	1♡(2)	1♠(3)
Pass	1NT	Pass	2NT
Pass	3NT	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—The correct distribution for an opening one-trump bid, but not quite strong enough in honor-tricks.
2—The four-card suit is so strong that West is justified in over-calling, even vulnerable.
3—North should have doubled; it is worth more to set a vulnerable team two tricks, doubled, than to make a game not vulnerable.

The Play.

The final contract of three notrump by South having been settled, West unhesitatingly led the eight of hearts. She remembered the advice concerning fourth-highest openings, and the teacher had not yet taught her the rules governing sequence leads.

The eight of hearts defeated the contract; no other lead in West's hand could have. Had West made the conventional opening lead of the heart King, it would have dropped East's singleton ten, giving dummy a second heart stopper after South took her Ace.

The teacher is inclined to be rather mournful about the entire matter. I sympathize with her. It is quite discouraging to have a misinterpretation of one's own teaching lead to one's downfall.

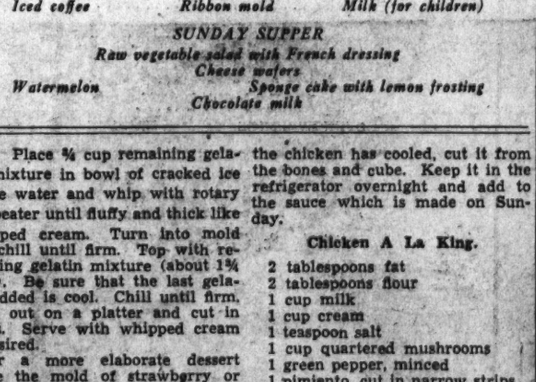
Arbiters of Fashion to Meet in London

London (AP).—Fashion leaders are meeting in London this year, as they previously met in Paris, to select what they consider to be the most striking styles of the moment. On these they will base trends for months to come. On account of the many Palace parties and other select functions being held here, London, the Jubilee City, has become the rendezvous of best-dressed women.

Poppy Sets Off Dress.

Paris (AP).—Mistinguett, veteran star of French music halls, wears a bright red poppy on the shoulder of one of her white summer frocks. The dress is sleeveless model of white crepe with a square yoke and a white crepe girdle which ties in the back.



THIS is the first really remarkable advance in the wheat-cereal field. Kellogg has at last found a way to insure crispness in a delicious new whole-wheat food. Kellogg's Wheat Krispies actually remain crisp and crunchy in milk or cream!

BLENDING is a Kellogg achievement. Just enough rice is blended with whole wheat to accomplish a new delicious crispness and flavor. Enjoy Wheat Krispies often. Nourishing and popular. Sold by all grocers in big economical packages. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Parks Man Tells of U.S. Survey Goal

Wirth Describes Plan for More System at Skyland Parley.

Needs of Population in States Will Be More Closely Studied.

By the Associated Press.

Skyland, Va., June 20.—Conrad Wirth, assistant director of the National Park Service, today outlined before delegates to the national conference on State parks plans for an extensive Federal study of State parks.

The study, which, he said, will be made if requested funds are forthcoming, will be intended to locate the definite boundaries of State conservation areas; to determine the recreational needs and demands of the people, and to discover new suitable parkland.

"We are on the threshold of maturity as a nation," Wirth said. "We must give careful consideration to our finer senses which will desire an atmosphere for our leisure time such as can be provided only by park conservation areas."

Location Points Stressed.

Parks should be near enough to population areas to allow people who receive small salaries to visit them, he said.

Tom Wallace, editor of the Louisville (Ky.) Times, warned the conference against politicians, landscape architects and local historians.

The unrestricted landscape architect, devotees of local history of minor importance and politics, he said, should be kept out of park systems.

"The politician, seeking to serve political ends, and landscape architects seeking a job are about on a par morally," he said. "The local history fanatic may be sincere and well meaning, but each is an obstacle to the creation of a practical park system."

Ohioan Directs Session.

H. S. Wagner, general manager of the Akron (Ohio) metropolitan park system, presided over the meeting, the general theme of which was "What Constitutes a Park System, or Factors That Govern Selection of Areas for a Park and Recreational System for a State."

"Park areas," Wallace said, "should be, more largely than some of them are, made up of wilderness areas of not less than 1,000 acres, possessing in each case some outstanding attraction of recreation and publicity value, but offering other attractions to various classes of outdoors men and outdoor women."

He asserted that an "ill-chosen" park site "may become a drain upon the State treasury and, therefore, an impediment to the movement to create a Nation-wide system of State parks."

Conference Keeps Officers.

Delegates this morning reelected officers, including Richard Lieber, of Indiana, president; William Welch, of New York State, vice president, and Ernest W. Smith, of Washington, treasurer.

Mrs. Beatrice Ward Nelson, of Charlottesville, Va., resigned as secretary, and Col. Lieber said her place will be filled by Miss Harlean James, of Washington, secretary of the American Civic Association.

Tribute Paid by Elks To Mary Washington

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 20.—Elkdom paid impressive tribute to the memory of Mary Washington yesterday afternoon when representatives of the Grand Lodge of Elks and a committee from Fredericksburg Lodge, No. 875, placed a wreath on the grave of George Washington's mother.

The Grand Lodge representatives, F. P. Boland and Happy Stanley, stopped here on their transcontinental tour from Tallahasse, Fla., to Columbus, Ohio, where the seventy-first Grand Lodge convention will be held.

They were greeted here by Mayor R. J. Payne, W. Marshall King, exalted ruler of the Fredericksburg Lodge, and W. B. F. Cole, Kuszner Bauman, William M. Jackson, Benjamin T. Pitts, Judge Henry Dannehl and Lem W. Houston.

$100,000 Goal For Advertising Scenic Virginia

Tourist Business Facing Strong Competition, Hall Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., June 20.—Impressing upon his listeners the warning that Virginia faces "strong competition in the tourist business," Chairman Wilbur C. Hall, of the conservation and development commission, today urged civic groups represented at a meeting here to support the commission's proposed request to the General Assembly for a $100,000 advertising fund.

While stressing the returns which he said would flow from the proper expenditure of an advertising appropriation, Mr. Hall pledged that "these funds will be used equitably and without any trace of partial or biased interest" as regards the sectional attractions of the State.

The conservation chairman's bid for State-wide support of his group's project was delivered at a rally held under auspices of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce. Officials of local chambers of commerce and other civic bodies throughout the State composed his audience.

Held Justifiable.

In justification of the contemplated appeal to the General Assembly, Mr. Hall declared: "When we consider that the tourist industry of Virginia annually amounts to approximately $73,000,000 an amount equal to the annual industrial pay roll of the State, and it is yet in its infancy, it would seem that the proposed appropriation of $100,000 annually to advertise the resources of Virginia would be clearly justified."

Presidents, secretaries and directors of the chambers of commerce throughout the State will hold a one-day conference in Charlottesville the first week in October to discuss problems of management and other matters of mutual interest, Robert Nelson, of the State Chamber of Commerce, announced today.

The night meeting was preceded late yesterday by another parley at which chamber and other civic leaders from different sections of Virginia approved proposals for an autumn festival and authorized Jay Johns, president of the State chamber, to name a committee to plan the event and to prepare a budget for the consideration of participating communities.

Handle Conference.

Plans for the Charlottesville conference were placed in the hands of Vernon Kemp, executive secretary of the Virginia Chamber of Commerce; Randolph Perry, secretary of the Charlottesville organization, and Robert Ramsey, secretary of the Lynchburg chamber.

Among those present at the meeting last night were Dan Hollenga, of Petersburg; Judge Clifton Curry, of the Highland County Tourist Association; C. M. Mark, secretary of the Virginia Peninsula Chamber; H. V. Knight, field secretary of the Shendandoah Valley, Inc.; F. E. Turin, of Norfolk; I. C. Munt, of the Richmond chamber; Mr. Johns, Mr. Kemp, Mr. Ramsey and Mr. Nelson.

Harry Grove Dies; Caused Prison Probe

Many Tales of Wealth and Philantropy Were Spread.

By the Associated Press.

A disease of the liver ended the hectic career of the man who began as an amateur baseball player, later allegedly turned to bootlegging and left a trail of sensations.

Once after serving a year and a day in the Atlanta Penitentiary he told a story of spending months of pleasure in the prison, including an expenditure of $2,000 for golf and other sports equipment. His assertions aroused a Federal investigation and brought vigorous denials from the penitentiary warden.

An aura of philanthropy hung over him in his palmy days. There were many tales of his charities to the needy. There were also stories of his wealth, his diamonds and of other displays of opulence.

Grove first sprang into the headlines 11 years ago in the notorious Horsey Distillery conspiracy case. When officers intercepted him driving a truckload of liquor away from the distillery at Burkittsville, he asserted he had certificates for possession of the liquor with him and had a right to move it.

Later, prohibition agents raided Grove's premises here and reported they found parts of a still in a shed near his home. Grove pleaded guilty in court at Baltimore and was given two years in prison in this case.

Since repeal, less had been seen of him in Frederick. His illness kept him largely indoors during the last months of his life.

Surviving him are his wife and three children, Gloria R., Phyllis, Gertrude and Jacob Grove. He also is survived by a large number of nieces and nephews. Most of his relatives live at Frederick.

Brooke Gochnauer Buried at Upperville

Banker and Merchant Was Civic Leader.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Upperville, Va., June 20.—Funeral services for Brooke Gochnauer, 60, prominent merchant of Upperville, and brother of Dr. Fred Gochnauer, of this town, who died Tuesday at his home near here, were held this afternoon at 4 o'clock from his late residence. Mr. Gochnauer, who was a life-long resident of Upperville, had been ill for several months. He was a former bank director, and active in the civic affairs of the community.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Virgie Gibson Gochnauer, and one brother. Interment was in the Upperville Cemetery.

Virginia Jurors Find Strange Will Genuine

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Danville, Va., June 20.—A corporation court jury decided this afternoon that the last will and testament drawn by Thomas G. Jones, Danville Negro butcher who died leaving an estate worth $100,000, was his true will. Under that decision Susie Jones Reynolds, Elizabeth Jones and Fannie Jones, three of his children, eventually will get a third each, while five sons will get $1 and a sixth son $10.

The jury by its verdict ruled that two previous wills which had disposed of the estate more evenly had been canceled and that Jones, despite cardiac asthma, had the necessary testamentary qualifications when he drew his last will. Testimony in the suit revealed that during his final illness in a hospital he demanded his iron safe be placed beside his bed.

Hagerstown Delegation and New State Firemen's Leader

Attempt Made to Force Her Into Marriage, She Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

Cumberland, Md., June 20.—What a 19-year-old girl termed an attempt to force her into marriage ended here today with the detention by police of three Johnstown, Pa., residents.

The girl is Widet Hyder, also of Johnstown, daughter of Abe Hyder, a grocer. Those held by police and sent back to Johnstown at request of police of that city were:

Fred Curry, 20, the would-be bridegroom.

Sam Curry, his father.

Mrs. Selma Curry, a cousin by marriage.

The party appeared at the courthouse here today and asked for a marriage license for Miss Hyder and young Curry. The girl told the license clerk that she did not want to get married and Cumberland police were notified by the clerk.

Police here had been asked by Johnstown officers to be on the lookout for the party, and Sergt. Raymond A. Johnson was sent to the courthouse to take them into custody. Sergt. Johnson said the girl told them she had been kidnaped.

The officer also quoted Miss Hyder as saying she was inveigled from her father's grocery store Wednesday and taken away in an auto.

Trust Concerns Urged to Seek Faith of Public

Virginia Bankers Told to Bare Financial Responsibility Fully.

By the Associated Press.

Hot Springs, Va., June 20.—Trust institutions should try to build up public confidence by giving full information as to their financial responsibility and by helping newspapers to obtain stories of semi-feature character, Henry E. Sargent, of New York, secretary of the trust division of the American Bankers Association, told Virginia bankers here today.

The speaker said principles of trust institutions allow them to engage in promotional efforts through addresses and contact work by officers and field men, but that a large group of conservative people cannot be contacted in this way. Since this group does read newspapers, Mr. Sargent said, bankers should encourage accounts dealing more with developments in the banking world and matters of policy than with "spot news."

Virginia Figures Given.

He gave figures showing there are 70 trust houses in 42 Virginia centers with total banking resources of $34,848,134 and employing 123 men. Virginia is ninth among the States in the number of centers with trust institutions, tenth in the number of institutions maintained, thirteenth in the number of employes and fourteenth in the amount of aggregate resources.

Robert V. Fleming, of Washington, president of the Riggs National Bank and first vice president of the American Bankers Association, is expected to speak tomorrow.

The greater part of the session was taken up with committee reports, in which it was urged that a large State police force aided by a State-wide police radio system replace the custom of paying rewards after bank thefts.

John Randolph Tucker, of Richmond, association president, said several recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court may bring about "a complete return to sane constitutionalism" within the near future.

The secretary, C. W. Beerbower, of Roanoke, said banks must find new sources of income, and recommended that "additional service charges be applied so that every banking transaction will not only pays it own way, but yield a fair margin of profit to the bank." He said money is leaking away through the payment of interest on time and savings deposits "at a rate in excess of the revenue derived from investments available to the employment of time money."

The committee on taxation, headed by F. R. Savage, of Williamsburg, reported that "no real demand now exists for altering the method of taxing Virginia banks."

A conference on bank management tomorrow morning will include talks by G. C. McCall, of Norton; Giles H. Miller, of Culpeper, and Thomas Blanton, of Bowling Green. A golf tournament is scheduled in the afternoon and tomorrow night Ashton Dovell, of Williamsburg, member of the House of Delegates, will speak at the annual banquet.

An address by Senator Carter Glass will mark the Saturday session.

Suspect Jailed In Hagerstown Slaying Case

Race Track Follower, 27, Denies Beating Aged Man to Death.

By the Associated Press.

Hagerstown, Md., June 20.—John Francis "Reds" Burke, 27-year-old Philadelphia race track follower, today was committed to jail without privilege of bond on a charge of murdering David L. Buchanan, aged Hagerstown rooming house proprietor.

Justice C. Edward Heard ordered Burke to jail following arraignment today.

Burke did not take the stand and has consistently denied any knowledge of the murder.

Police officers and others testified to the circumstantial evidence which, they believe, links Burke with the murder of 80-year-old Buchanan on the night of June 1. A blood-stained shirt, which officers testified was found in a rooming house in Martinsburg, W. Va., in a room adjoining one occupied by Burke, was offered in evidence. The shirt, similar to others found in Burke's possession, was located eight days after the Philadelphian left the Martinsburg house.

Glass' Praises Sung in Senate

McKellar Cites Honorary Degrees Given Virginian.

By the Associated Press.

A doctor five times this commencement season, with three of the honorary degrees conferred upon him this week, Senator Carter Glass yesterday heard his praises sung in the Senate.

"This week, two of our greatest universities, Yale and Princeton, and Tuft's College, of Massachusetts, have seen fit to confer degrees of doctor of laws upon our esteemed colleague, the senior Senator from Virginia, Mr. Carter Glass," said Senator Kenneth McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, in an address to the Senate.

"These honors have been worthily bestowed. These two great universities and this great college in New England have honored themselves in thus honoring Senator Glass."

This year Glass was named the recipient of honorary degrees also at the College of William and Mary, in his native State, Virginia, and Wesleyan. Besides these, in other years, honorary LL.D. degrees were conferred upon him by Lafayette College, Washington and Lee University, University of Virginia, and the University of North Carolina.

Fire Group Picks Head In Maryland

Frank Shaeffer Chosen as President by Convention.

Hagerstown Is Selected as Town for 1936 Meeting.

By Clyde Dubose.

A Staff Correspondent.

Oakland, Md., June 20.—Following a parade of fire trucks and uniformed firemen, led by the Westminster (Md.) Band, delegates to the Maryland Firemen's Association convention here tonight elected Frank T. Shaeffer, of Westminster, president. Shaeffer was victorious over J. Millard Tawes, of Crisfield, by 100 votes.

Rivaling the race for president, Western Shore firemen outvoted the Eastern Shore contingent almost 3 to 1 as Hagerstown was chosen as the town for the 1936 convention over Easton.

George Wiseman, of Bladensburg, was swept into office of senior vice president over Fred Imrie, of Bethesda. Frank W. Truitt, Ocean City, running for reelection, defeated Elmer Kight, of Frostburg.

Earlier, Mrs. Mary Baker, of Hyattsville, was elected president of the Women's Auxiliary.

Mrs. Charles A. Long, of Owens Mill, was chosen senior vice president; Mrs. Louise Ganner, of Herald Harbor, junior vice president, and Mrs. Annie A. Burnette, of Branchville, was retained as chaplain.

At the conclusion of the business meeting the firemen were given an outline of the Federal housing program by Robert A. Jones, of the Baltimore office. The Fire Chiefs Association held its meeting this afternoon.

Benefits Increased.

Noble Rushe, president of the State Firemen, advocated last night the securing of a pension for volunteer firemen who have had a substantial number of years of service. A recommendation that the newly elected president investigate this possibility was tabled.

The firemen early tonight approved the increase of the widows' pension from $20 to $40 a month; the pension of the orphans and children of permanently disabled firemen from $5 to $12 a month, and the pension of disabled firemen from $30 a month to $40 a month.

They also approved the raising of benefits for firemen injured in action from $15 a week to $20 for the first week, and $3 a day thereafter.

A fund of $8,089 was set aside for the education of orphans and for unforeseen expenses pertaining to the disability of firemen and pensions. The death benefit for firemen killed in action was increased from $500 to $750.

T. W. Venemann, of Riverdale, chairman of the fire college committee, reported that the fire college would be held again this year at the University of Maryland. He said the attendance had increased nearly 400 per cent since establishment of the college in 1930. The firemen also decided to sponsor a fire prevention week and a clean-up week.

"Becky Sharp," Photographed in New Technicolor, Is a Gorgeous Film Spectacle

Vivid Realism Is Lent Story By New Method

Capacity House at Opening; Sylvan Theater Novelty; Theater Notes.

By Nelson B. Bell.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

"BECKY SHARP." Pioneer Pictures dramization of the stage play by Langdon E. Mitchell, adapted from Thackeray's novel of "Vanity Fair," executed entirely in Technicolor and starring Miriam Hopkins, with Alan Mowbray, Frances Dee, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Billie Burke, Alison Skipworth, Nigel Bruce, G. P. Huntley, jr., William Stack, George Hassell, William Faversham, Charles Richman, Doris Lloyd, Pauline Garon, Temple Pigott, Elspeth Dudgeon and scores more. Directed by Rouben Mamoulian. Color designs by Robert Edmond Jones; Technicolor direction by Natalie Kalmus. Released by RKO-Radio. Reviewed Wednesday night at RKO-Keith's Theater.

The stage story of "Becky Sharp," adapted on more than one occasion and under various auspices from William Makepeace Thackeray's novel of "Vanity Fair," is, of course, both dated and familiar. No more dated however, than the semi-historical fictions made known on the screen through the medium of such film productions as "The House of Rothschild" and "The Iron Duke," to name only two, dealing with the same troubled period in European affairs.

The great advantage enjoyed by the story of "Becky Sharp" revealed for the first time in Washington upon the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater last night is that it makes the most distinguished use of natural color photography that has, as yet, found its way to public attention.

This may not have been the ideal vehicle for the introduction of both Pioneer Pictures and the new three-tone Technicolor process of recording all the colors of the spectrum, but it is sufficiently impressive to mark at least the beginning of a new era in the production of photoplays.

A Capricious Drama.

There is, needless to say, none of the thunder of significant historical pageantry in "Becky Sharp." As adapted from the Langdon Mitchell dramatization of the Thackeray novel, which once served as a successful starring vehicle for Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fiske, it is the audacious recital of the adventurous career of an incorrigible flirt, an avaricious money-grubber and an unconscionable schemer, who spanned the social chasm from orphanage to Court of St. James and then slipped into gradual eclipse among the squalid tenements and back-street cabarets as a droll and inescapable sort of restributive justice slowly overtook her.

There are the vivacity, breezy humors and romantic charm of capricious drama here in abundance, but not that great, authentic surge of commanding events that might have lightened Technicolor's burden as the infallible Messiah of a new epoch in cinematography.

That color is a tremendous asset to this film there can be no denying. It lends the picture's perspectives new depths, movement and effectiveness. It compounds an increased measure of dramatic effect, especially when the Duchess of Richmond's gorgeous ball is broken up in a sudden swirl of terror and pandemonium by the approach of Napoleon and his troops, by dissolving ballroom scenes dominated by the pastel shades of the women's costumes into the flaring carmines, reds and scarlets of war as symbolized by the uniforms of the British officers.

Color Enhances Realism.

Color proves itself further valuable in its new Technicolor manifestation by lending a vivid realism to interiors, from the unadorned garrett rooms in the tenements to the ornate chambers in the palace of the king. Woodwork, carpets, bric-a-brac, paintings, fireplaces, all of the appurtenances of human living take on a richer, fuller, more illuminating meaning than ever before has been the case in even the best-made of the black-and-white films.

Physically, emotionally and temperamentally, Miriam Hopkins was an inspired choice for the title role of the vixen who twisted men around her little finger, out-generaled those of her own sex in her conquests and finally defeated her own aims only by exercising her duplicities against the two men of greatest power in her life—Rawden Crawley and the Marquis of Stayne. These important male roles are played with their characteristic polish by two admirable English actors, Alan Mowbray and Sir Cedric Hardwicke, respectively.

There are so many others in the cast who acquit themselves with a complete and satisfying skill that to single out any few for especial commendation must be a form of specious injustice.

Cast Is Brilliant.

The fact, nevertheless, remains that it would be difficult to accord "Beck Sharp" adequate appraisal without some small mention of the superior work contributed to its impressive ensemble by Alison Skipworth, as the irascible Miss Crawley; Frances Dee, in the ingenuous role of Amelia; Nigel Bruce, as the puffy, bibulous, garrulous and ineffectual Joseph Sedley; G. P. Huntley, jr., and Colin Tapley, the two juvenile officers, and such veterans as Billie Burke, Doris Lloyd, William Faversham, Charles Richman, Elspeth Dudgeon, George Hassell and Tempe Piggot in minor assignments.

While the new Technicolor is immeasurably the superior of any color process that has gone before, it still stands in need of further perfection. In scenes of fast action the colors do not even yet always "track" properly, with a resultant haziness of outline and lack of definition in objects in rapid motion that creates an occasional fleeting, but very actual blur. Flesh tints, too, still are deepened almost to the tones of heavy midsummer tan—probably a defect of make-up rather than any fault of Technicolor.

A new "Screen Snapshots" was the only auxiliary presented at last evening's premiere performance to supplement an epochal achievement that was enthusiastically greeted by a capacity house—as it richly deserved to be.

This department's friendly suggestion that the Roadside Theater's production of Dion Boucicault's durable old melodrama of "After Dark," the first offering of their second season, which opened last Monday night, would be tremendously helped by being speeded up, evidently was shared by the Roadsiders themselves. At Tuesday night's second performance of the week a full 20 minutes was lopped off the running time of the 3 acts and 14 scenes, without sacrifice of lines or stage "business." Running at this accelerated tempo, the attraction playing that "big, red barn" out on the Rockville pike, the other side of Bethesda, Md., will afford anyone plenty of fun and money's worth for the trip.

Three-for-One at Sylvan.

Next Monday night, for the first time in the history of the Sylvan Theater, down on the Monument Grounds, a series of short plays will fetaure a summer festival program, sponsored by the Community Center Department and the Office of National Capital Parks.

This unique bill for the Capital's al fresco theater will consist of a slight revision of the "Three Short Plays" recently presented by the Washington Community Players in the auditorium of Roosevelt High School. The first, a substitution since the first presentation, will be "Moon Maiden," by Edward Dowson, to be followed by Dusany's "The Gods of the Mountain" and Philip Moeller's "Helena's Husband."

Reserved seats will be priced at 50 cents each, with general admission to the chair section 25 cents. Tickets will be available tomorrow at the A. A. A., the Willard and Washington hotels and Franklin Administration Building, Thirteenth and K streets.

Reverting momentarily to the premiere of "Becky Sharpe," at RKO-Keith's last night, the capacity audience was thickly sprinkled with distinguished representatives of Washington's official, social and business life. Members of the President's Cabinet and secretariat, the Senate, House of Representatives, District government, Diplomatic Corps and the press were invited guests of Manager Hardie Meakin to view one of the most spectacular films ever shown on a Washington screen.

Keith Batting for Appleby.

David Appleby, formerly of the Belasco Theater Art Society, wired the National Civic Theater Society yesterday that he would be unable to accept a part in the cast of "A Murder Has Been Arranged," the society's first production, scheduled to open in the Odeon Theater on the grounds of National Park Seminary at Forest Glen, Md., next Monday night.

Mr. Appleby has been cast in a New York production and will remain on Broadway.

Upon receipt of this word, tryouts were immediately held and Isham Keith, well known in Capital theatrical circles given the part. Mr. Keith has been a member of the Civic Theater Society since its inception.

Incidentally, it would be interesting to know how Glen Echo buses happened to be mentioned in this space yesterday when Forest Glen buses are the ones that must be boarded if any hope is entertained of ever reaching The Odeon.

Ozzie Nelson, that personable young orchestra conductor is coming back for a one-night stand in the Capital. The Inter-Fraternity Cotillion Club, in conjunction with Lambda Sigma Fraternity, will hold its June dance in the Willard tomorrow night, with Master Nelson and his lads providing the music—and what music! The orchestra features the singing of Harriet Hilliard and will be personally directed by Ozzie. Picking them up and laying them down will be permitted from 9 p. m. until 1 a. m.—enough for anybody these humid nights.

Tip-in-Advance Note.

Only figuratively, I trust.

Pierce Hall

"Waiting for Lefty," Clifford Odets' widely discusseed drama, still current in New York, had its local premiere last night in Pierce Hall, where the New Theater Group of Washington staged the propaganda play.

A tense drama of the seamy side of life, the play offered David Lyons, Jack Bowden, Sam El, David Goldfarb and John Carroll particular chances to display with force the drama inherent in a union meeting when grave question is about to be decided, when men speeak from the shoulder, throwing caution and euphemistic vocobularies to the winds.

As curtain raisers, "Dance of the Blue Eagle," created and presented by Harry Skoop, and "Upsurge," a dramatic reading of Robert Gessner's poem, by Rita Castille, were offered.

The bill will be repeated tonight.

They Star in Technicolor Drama

Although the flat tones of gray photography do it scant justice, this is one of the vivacious scenes in "Becky Sharp," the first feature-length picture to be filmed in its entirety by the new three-tone Tchnicolor process. Miriam Hopkins appears in the title role of this dramatic adaptation of Thackeray's "Vanity Fair." With her above appears Sir Cedric Hardwicke. "Becky Sharp" was given its premiere presentation in the National Capital at RKO-Keith's Theater last night at 8. It will continue throughout this week and next.

New Week Will Afford Worthy Entertainment

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

Eva Le Gallienne, distinguished actress-producer and founder of the Civic Repertory Theater in New York, will headline the new week's stage bill, beginning tomorrow at Loew's Fox Theater, in the balcony scene from Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," a genuine innovation for a house dedicated primarily to motion pictures. The feature film for the new week will be "Charlie Chan in Egypt," starring Warner Oland, supported by Pat Paterson, Frank Conroy, Thomas Beck and Rita Cansino. Three additional vaudeville acts will be presented by Larry Rich, jester; Johnny Lee and the Three Lees, in a comedy skit, and Chappelle and Carlton in a novelty. The bill will be completed by Fox-Movietone News and Phil Lampkin's orchestral contributions.

• • • •

Kay Francis and George Brent, who scored so emphatically in "Living on Velvet," again will be the co-stars on the screen at Warners' Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow, in "Stranded," based on Frank Wead's story of "The Lady With a Badge." Patricia Ellis, Donald Woods and others of note support the principals. On the stage, the chief attraction of the new bill will be Hal Kemp and his orchestra, nationally known for their radio broadcasts. Specialty artists with the organization are Skinny Ennis, Saxy Dowell, Maxine Gray and Bob Allen. The bill will have a new issue of the Universal News, with Graham McNamee, short shound subjects and orchestral prelude, conducted by C. Frederick Clark as its foremost supplementaries.

• • • •

Joan Crawford and Robert Montgomery are cast in their most amusing and most believable screen roles to date, as co-stars of the sprightly screen version of the Broadway stage hit, "No More Ladies," coming to the Palace Theater as chief feature of the bill beginning tomorrow. Charles Ruggles, Franchot Tone and Edna May Oliver lead the supporting cast, thus clinching the picture's claim to superlative comedy. The play is in Author A. E. Thomas' liveliest vein. Laurel and Hardy in a new short-reel comedy, "Fixer Uppers," a Silly Symphony, "Golden Touch;" Metro Oddities and a new issue of the Metrotone News will complete the bill.

• • • •

Charles Ruggles and Mary Boland, a comedy duo that has done yeoman's service in many an amusing screen play, will be the pictured stars at the Metropolitan for the week beginning tomorrow, in "People Will Talk," a comedy tailored particularly to their measure. Leila Hyams, Dean Jaggers and Jack Mulhall lead the supporting company. The film reaches its climax during an hilarious charity wrestling match. A new installment in the historical series, "See America First," and a full 15-minute newsreel will round out the entertainment.

• • • •

"Public Hero No. 1," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's contribution to the growing list of screen melodramas glorifying the work of the Department of Justice agents in running down crime, will renew its downtown run on the screen at Leow's Columbia Theater for a week's engagement, beginning tomorrow. Chester Morris, Joseph Calleia, Lionel Barrymore and Jean Arthur appear in the pivotal roles, supported by Paul Kelly, Lewis S. Stone, George E. Stone, Paul Hurst and others. News events, comedy and the fourth release of "March of Time" will be added.

• • • •

The National Civic Theater Society will inaugurate its first Washington season next Monday night by presenting the thrilling, "A Murder Has Been Arranged," in the Odean Theater on the grounds of the National Park Seminary at Forest Glen, Md. The principal roles will be played by Robert Pitkin and Margaret Hatfield, with an able cast in support. The play is being directed by John Mann.

• • • •

The second week of the Roadside Theater's production of Dion Boucicault's famous old melodrama, "After Dark," will begin next Monday night in the new "red barn" playhouse out the Rockville Pike, 4 miles beyond Bethesda, Md. Ralph Fowler, Carey Lucas, Thomas M. Cahill and Eugene Kressin head the cast.

Now in the eighth week of its summer season, Glen Echo Park is meeting every demand made upon it for days of fun and nights of gayety. With more than 50 amusement devices in full operation, hardly an amusement taste but can be satisfactorily catered to within the walls of the huge, free-admission park. Foremost among the favorites are the Crystal Pool, Spanish Garden Ballroom, with dancing nightly, except Sunday; the Pretzel and the other thrilling rides.

Movie Boners.

Hollywood, June 20.

THE most popular movie boner of the month . . . Practically every one who works in an office building and saw the sequence in which Margaret Lindsay comes out of Robert Armstrong's office, walks down the corridor, and meets James Cagney. Here, writes George Joyce, one of the many complainants, Miss Lindsay leaves Cagney and practically races down the corridor to the elevators. In fact she walks directly into an elevator, whose doors open just as she arrives there.

Miss Lindsay did not ring any bell to summon the elevator; no one got out of the elevator on that floor and there wasn't any indication for the elevator to stop on that floor. But there it was, waiting.

"Even when I push the button for the elevator to stop," claims Joyce, "it generaly shoots past me. Such service!"

In "Les Miserables," Fredric March gets out of his carriage to assist the men in lifting another carriage which is stuck in the mud. March tilts the carriage upward with his shoulders and thus saves a man who has been pinned beneath it.

March got into the mud to lift this carriage and his suit, according to Harry Soffen, became sprayed with this dirt. Then March got into his own carriage and drove away. When he arrived at the inn and got out of the carriage his suit was as clean as it was before he stopped to do his heroic act.

It appears that in flickers the hero must always be clean—even to his apparel—and that only a villain can be dirty.

PAUL MUNI is shown blowing up, by means of dynamite, the main shaft of the mine in "Black Fury." Muni, imprisoned in the mine, has done this in order to bring about the termination of a strike for which he was responsible. After successfully defeating all efforts to force him out of the mine, into which no one else can gain admission, Muni's terms are finally met by the owners of the said mine.

Muni's victory march, however, writes Peter Kornberg, consists of ascending in the lift of the same shaft which he had, to all appearances, so completely destroyed but a short while before.

In "Escape Me Never," says Arthur Murray, Sebastian Sanger is seen shaving himself and the alarm clock shows that it is 1 o'clock when his brother, Carol, bids him good night.

A little later Gemma, Elisabeth Bergner, comes home from work. Then Mrs. Brown brings Gemma's baby in for the night. And still later Sebastian gets dressed to go to the ballet rehearsal, which is to be followed by a supper party that night. All this, we must assume, takes place after 1 a. m.

Yet, when Sebastian tells Gemma that he must leave for the rehearsal immediately if he wants to get there on time, he adds that it starts at 8 o'clock. "Say," asks Murray, "was that 'Escape Me Never' or 'Turn Back the Clock' that I saw?"

A FAIR barometer of the business a flicker is doing is the number of movie boners the fans send in. It is generally the hit pictures which have the most, although many fans will spot the same boner and write about it. Judging on this basis, the hit picture, "It Happened One Night," reissued after it won the academy award, did very well at the box office.

Clark Gable in one scene is preparing breakfast. Claudette Colbert goes to take a shower. Before Miss Colbert left, Peter Faricchio insists that there were six doughnuts on the dish on the table. When Miss Colbert returned there were only two doughnuts on the dish and Gable was not seen eating any of the doughnuts.

Nats Lose Again, Through Wild Pitching of Earl Whitehill

With Shirley Povich

Cleveland, June 20.

ONCE upon a time there was a fellow who was an excellent worker at his trade. Folks always respected him and his name was never taken in vain as far as his work was concerned. But for ten years particular fame eluded him. He was steady, even brilliant at times, but there was always one other to shove him into the background. When the time came each year to choose a man for special distinction in his trade, our friend could never be chosen. There was always this other fellow to place him in eclipse. Our friend was always the bridesmaid, never the people's choice.

POVICH.

But this year, ah, Buddy Myer is coming into his own. As the major league all-star game next July 8 approaches, the little Washington captain looms as the No. 1 second baseman in his league. No longer is he the understudy for Charlie Gehringer, forged to the top. This other fellow, Gehringer, now faces a fight for his honors.

At last Buddy Myer is fighting it out on even terms, nay, better than that, with Gehringer in the only department of play in which the little Washington captain had always been deficient in comparison to Gehringer—hitting. This is another year, it seems, and Buddy Myer, not Charley Gehringer, is the leading hitter among the league's second baseman.

THERE never was any question of Myer's favorable comparison with Gehringer as a defensive player. But each season, when the talk turned to the all-star second baseman, there was always that factor of Gehringer's superior hitting. Each season Gehringer was awarded the all-star berth, and Buddy Myer, a great player in his own right, was forced to bow to the super-sensational Detroit infielder.

But today Myer is batting for a grand average of .345, —— points higher than even Gehringer's average. Those are the facts that stare the all-star team selectors in the face as they make their nominations. Stripped if his batting superiority Gehringer is no cinch to be a choice over the Washington captain.

There are those who even say that Myer can bat 20 points below Gehringer and still be the most valuable man. That is indeed a compliment to Myer, for Gehringer long has been rated as the peer of all second basemen, defensively and at bat.

BUT this season Myer is the demon player. In the field his daily work has shamed even the play of a Gehringer. At bat he is not only making more hits, but he is making them with men on bases and that is when the pay-off takes place. He is harder to pitch to than is Gehringer, and, consequently, he draws more walks. He does not ride the ball for as long distances as the Detroit star, but he is no puny socker. And, there is another item to be considered.

Like Gehringer, Myer is the personification of steadiness out there on the ball field. Like Gehringer's, his second basing is the poetry of motion, the pinnacle of the art; but, unlike Gehringer, Myer has always been possessed of the flash and fire that the Tiger star never boasted even at the peak of his play.

That terrific will to win, that unquenchable spirit and his well-known penchant for being the opportunist of the ball game stamps Buddy Myer as a man apart this year. Were it an even contest of mechanical skill, Gehringer might still be the American League's choice as it's all-star second baseman against the National League. But this year, the Myer-Gehringer contest is not even, even in that respect.

Look at the averages and you will see that there can be only one choice. And reflect upon the dash and fire that Myer owns in contrast to Gehringer, and that choice becomes only more obvious. Once upon a time Gehringer was tops. But that was before Buddy Myer batted .345.

MANAGER BUCKY HARRIS threatened his teammates today with the announcement that he would probably start Bobby Burke against the Indians tomorrow . . . The Washington pitching situation is so bad that Harold Conn, batting practice pitcher who has never been in the minor leagues, today asked Bucky Harris for a starting job . . . And he wasn't joking . . . Neither was Harris joking when he said that Futility Infielder-Outfielder Red Kress may soon get a chance to pitch . . . $75,000 is already in the till as the advance sale for the all-star game here July 8 . . . 62,000 reserved seats have been sold with 8,000 remaining . . . 10,000 bleacher seats will be sold on the day of the game and circus seats will be installed, if necessary . . . For handling the arrangements for the game, the Cleveland club will get the profits from the concessions . . . Estimated at $5,000 . . . Tickets have been ordered by fans from all 48 States and by Mexican, Canadian and Hawaiian baseball lovers . . . That windstorm in downtown Cleveland today was no tornado . . . It was simply the Nats blowing leads out at the ball park.

Gallico Picks Louis, But Says Primo Can Cut Loose and Win

By Paul Gallico,

A Special Correspondent.

LOCH SHELDRAKE, N. Y., June 20.—There was a report in the papers last night that Primo Carnera took a considerable pushing around from his sparring partners, chiefly Natie Brown, who is not exactly considered an artist in pugilism. At the same time I was watching Joe Louis, his forthcoming opponent in one of the most lethal and damaging training exhibitions since the days when Dempsey used to stiffen his hired hands on old Saratoga Lake when he was training for Firpo. On the strength of the two workouts you would imagine that I would unhesitatingly pick Joe Louis to win, even knock Carnera out. Well, I do. That Baer-Braddock business hasn't scared me at all. I still have to print them the way they look to me. I don't think that Carnera can fight a lick, never could, and I think that Joe Louis is the most vicious and damaging young man who has been turned loose to commit public assault and battery in many a year.

Louis Damaging Puncher.

After the upsets that have marked the recent athletic events it is logical to suppose that Primo will beat Louis, but all I can see in my sometimes treacherous imagination is Louis sliding and shuffling in and letting go those lethal smashes, every one of them damaging punches.

Editors notes: Mr. Gallico also saw Baer whipping left hooks to Braddock's stomach and sending him crashing to the canvas with right-hand smashes. Vas you dere, Sharlie? Wait until I answer that bloomin' editor and I'll get on with this piece.

I didn't see Baer do any of these things in training, but merely took it for granted that he would do it in the fight. That seemed to have been a mistake. But I did jolly well see Louis lay his lads among the garden flowers with short whipping punches. I am therefore reasonably certain that he will let those same punches go next Tuesday night and if they land, Primo will go out just like all the rest of them. My word, but that sullen-looking Alabama African can hit!

One Chance to Win.

I would say, sizing up the two men, that Carnera has one chance to win and that is to go berserk and batter Louis down. If he can pull a Firpo and run amuck that night, his size and strength may accomplish what his boxing never can, and, incidentally, the customers will see one of the greatest heavyweight fights ever while it lasts. If Carnera ever cuts loose with everything he has, throws caution to the winds and sets himself to destroy his opponent in a round or two it will be a thrilling and terrifying spectacle. But I doubt that he can overcome the habits of years.

Apparently Leon See, who trained and taught Carnera, knew that the giant would never be able to stand a stiff punch and probably also

2 Leads Lost By Weak Hurling

Left-Hander Assures Defeat by Wild Toss in 8th.

Home Run by Indian Moundsman Helps, as Does Error.

By Shirley Povich,

A Staff Correspondent.

CLEVELAND, June 20.—Earl Whitehill left-handed the Nats into submission today with a 14-hit ball game that he pitched at the Cleveland Indians. Twice the Washington lads overcame Cleveland leads but they couldn't overcome Whitehill, who was gaining as the game progressed.

Whitehill finished the game in a blaze of ignominy. He wild-pitched the winning run across for the Indians in the eighth inning after the Nats had given him a 6-to-5 lead. The upshot of it all was an 8-to-6 victory for the Indians.

There were grave fears, for a time, that Whitehill would be forced into the role of the winning pitcher. Going into that eighth he had, as I was saying, a one-run lead. But he came out of it with his dishonor intact.

Pitcher Hits Homer.

The first thing he did in that eighth inning was to pitch a home-run ball to Ralph Winegarner, a pitcher who takes his hitting seriously. Manager Walter Johnson sent Winegarner to bat for Mel Harder and there was little delay in tying the score. The pitcher-pinchhitter nudged Whitehill's first pitch far into the left center-field seats and it was 6-6.

But the Indians weren't through, and neither was Whitehill. He walked Knickerbocker, and with one out, Campbell slammed a single into right field. At this point, Right-Fielder Johnny Stone came to the aid of Whitehill's apparent cause by muffing the ball on the hop, and Knickerbocker, who had stopped at second, continued to third with the potential winning run.

With the winning run thus in a position to score on a wild pitch, Whitehill did exactly that. His first toss to Hal Trosky was far inside and skidded off Bolton's glove toward the backstop whereat Knickerbocker came home with the ball game. It was 8-6 when Joe Vosmik's grounder took a bad hop into Cecil Travis' face, but Whitehill hit Odell Hale before it was all over.

Nats Take Early Lead.

The Nats had presented Whitehill with a 3-0 lead in the first three innings when they made half of their own 14 hits against Mel Harder, but Whitehill gave four runs back to the Indians in the third with singles by Harder and Knickerbocker, a walk to Campbell, and doubles by Vosmik and Hale playing no inconspicuous part in the proceedings.

Well, the Nats tied it at 4-4 an inning later when Bluege blasted a triple over Vosmik's head and scored on Kuhel's single, but they still had Whitehill to contend with. Sure enough, he gave the Indians a run in the sixth and a 5-4 lead when Eddie Phillips, a Washington exile, led off with a double and scored on Knickerbocker's long fly.

The Nats gave Whitehill one more chance. Mel Harder, who had pitched a one-hit game against the Red Sox in his last outing, was no puzzle to the Washington club and in the eighth they came up with two more runs to reestablish Whitehill in a 6-5 lead.

Bolton Hits One.

Those two runs erupted from Cliff Bolton's bat. After Bozie Berger had made a town-lot muff

Rockingham Track Status Is Doubtful

Confirmation of Sale to Vanderbilt Lacking.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, June 2.—The future status of the Rockingham, N. H., race track was clouded in some doubt tonight.

The Boston Evening American reported in a copyrighted story that it had been all but sold to a syndicate headed by Alfred Gwyne Vanderbilt, prominent horseman, and it reported that affiliated with him in the venture was Maj. Francis P. Murphy, prominent New Hampshire shoe manufacturer. Murphy, however, denied all knowledge of the proposal.

At the track, in the meantime, Joseph Shellach, who said he was attorney for Lou Smith, managing director of Rockingham, from whom the American said Vanderbilt and his associates were to purchase the establishment, professed to know know nothing about the deal.

Yanks Take 6th in Row At Detroit

Allen Allows 5 Hits; Dickey Hit on Head by Sullivan.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, June 20.—The New York Yankees settled themselves a little more firmly in first place in the American League today when they trounced the Detroit Tigers for the third straight time, winning, 5 to 2, behind the five-hit hurling of Johnny Allen.

The Yankee victory, their sixth in a row, was marred, however, by an injury to Bill Dickey, their first-string catcher. The veteran receiver was hit on the back of the head by one of Joe Sullivan's fast balls in the first inning. He was carried from the field and later taken to a local hospital, where an examination disclosed that he had received nothing more serious than a severe shaking-up and a slight concussion.

Sullivan, the Bengals rookie left-hander, was the victim of his own wildness. He allowed only six hits in the seven innings he worked before giving way to Elon Hogsett, but gave seven bases on balls in addition to hitting Dickey. He was tagged for all of the Yankees' runs.

Barry Fails to Appear For Fight With Hogan

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Philadelphia, June 20.—Red Barry, of Washington, who was to have met Eddie Hogan, of Waterbury, Conn., in a 10-round preliminary to the Tommy Loughran-Ray Impellitiere fight at the Phillies ball park tonight, failed to put in an appearance. Frank Watonski, of Utica, was a last-minute substitute for Barry, and Hogan knocked him out in the first round.

Hunt Defeated, Welsh Wins At Chicago

Favorites Find Trouble in Clay Court Tennis Championship.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 20.—The national clay court tennis championships at the River Forest Tennis Club today staggered into the fourth round after a hectic day's program of 104 matches which saw the choice field of 128 narrowed down to 16 competitors, and which also left four of the seeded stars resting on the sidelines.

Gilbert Hunt, of Washington, 1934 intercollegiate runner-up, led the exit of the elite quartet from the tourney. He was eliminated in the first round with surprising speed by the Tulane University ace, Ernie Sutter, 6—3, 6—4. Hunt was seeded eighth.

Barney Welsh, Washington ace, gained the fourth round after three decisive victories. He first eliminated John Zalinski, of Chicago, 6—2, 6—3; then put out W. S. Murphy, of Western Springs, Ill., 6—1, 6—1, and ended the arduous day by conquering Dr. M. H. Pauly, of Chicago, 7—5, 6—1.

Other Favorites Bow.

The Hunt debacle seemed to signalized the revolt of all unseeded players. John Law, eLland Stanford University captain and listed at No. 15, was rather forcibly ejected from play by Northwestern University's top-ranking man, George Ball in a second-round match. It was a three-set tussle, 6—3, 3—6, 6—2.

In rapid succession, another Stanford player, Ben Dey, accounted for the ousting of Charlie Harris, West Palm Beach, Fla., and No. 12 seeded. The other member of the group, Hal Surface, of Kansas City, placed in the ninth spot, yielded to the hard drives of Sin Kie Kho, Chinese Davis Cup player.

Nor did many of the other seeded players find their opponents ready to succumb. Cliff Sutter, occupying the No. 4 niche in the listings, met stern opposition from his second-round rival, Max Davidson, former University of Chicago captain, and was exptended to win at 5—7, 6—4, 6—1.

Frankie Parker and defending champion "Bitsy" Grant, met opponents who forced them to play a higher than average brand of tennis. Parker advanced 6—4, 6—3 from Vern John, ruddy Denver youngster, while the little man from Atlanta took two 6—4 sets from Henry Crawford, Georgia Tech representative.

Hoya Golfers Rouse Hopes In Tourney

Lee, Corcoran Card Low Scores Preparing for College Event.

GEORGETOWN'S faint hopes of capturing the 1935 intercollegiate golf crown assumed a rosier hue yesterday when Jimmy Lee and Ken Corcoran, a pair of youthful dark horses from the Hilltop, negotiated the Congressional Country Club course, over which the championship will be contested, in 74 and 76, respectively.

Though not the best scores of the day, the sum total of their cards was heartening to Georgetown supporters, who hope the Hoyas may surprise some of their more favored rivals. Both lads displayed good form, hitting their tee shots well and using their irons in a manner that bodes no good for the opposition.

Spec Stewart, Stanford ace, hung up the best card of the day, a 71, after missing an 8-foot putt that would have given him an even 70.

Charlie Yates, defending champion, toured the course in 73, cracking up on the treacherous incoming nine after reaching the halfway mark in 35, two under par. Billy Street, of Georgia Tech, and Ed White got home in 76, while Nelson Munger, of Texas, turned in a 78, and Johnny Ridley, another Techite, a 79.

Late arrivals yesterday swelled the advance guard to 30. Winfield Day and Harry Baldwin, Notre Dame; Otto Nord, Colgate, and Wilson Marks, Jack Malloy and Bill Newsom, all of Princeton, reached the scene of the test in time for abbreviate practice rounds.

Lunn, Wright Out Of Canada Match

D. C. Player Is Eliminated in Morning Play.

By the Associated Press.

Ancaster, Ontario, June 20.—The last hopes of the United States in the current Canadian amateur golf championship were extinguished today when Fred J. Wright, of Boston, was elimipated in the quarter-final round by C. Ross Somerville, former champion and heavy favorite to recapture the crown.

Out for his fifth title, Somerville had a close call when Wright, many times winner of the Massachusetts title, carried him to the nineteenth hole before bowing.

Wright became the last invader left for the championship as Dick Lunn, of Washington, was the victim of a 3-and-2 defeat at the hands of Gordon Taylor, jr., of Toronto, in the morning.

Peacock Out Of Tourney In Md.

Former Champion Wins Only One Hole of First Nine.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 20.—Roger Peacock, of Indian Spring, defending champion, was shunted out of the Maryland amateur golf championship picture today, eliminated by Fred Savage, of Elkridge, who won by 3 and 2 in the inaugural round of match play. But in his wake plodded a trio of sturdy dark horses from the District of Columbia, who are eager to succeed to the throne he unwillingly abdicated, Levi Yoder and Volmy Burnett, also of Indian Spring, and Hickman Greene, of Yoder, the medalist, won from Manor.

Don McPhail on the twentieth hole of a thrilling first-round match, easily the best of the day, and then eliminated Benson Ensor, 2 and 1, in the second round to gain the quarter-finals.

Burnett Defeats Webb.

Burnett also reached the quarter-finals with well-earned victories. He defeated Tommy Webb, of Columbia, in the first round, 2 and 1, and later ousted Peacock's conqueror, 2 up, in a hard-fought match.

Yoder displayed greater staying power in subduing McPhail, who squared the match on the eighteenth green with a 15-foot putt. The Baltimorean also halved the nineteenth with a successful short putt, but he clew up on the twentieth. Both were short in two, but Yoder had the better pitch shot and holed out for a four and the victory. McPhail was short both with his pitch and putt.

Peacock won only one of the first nine holes and Savage was never seriously threatened over the entire route. Savage was 3-up at the turn and maintained his advantage throughout the final stages of play.

Won First in 1933.

Peacock won her first State title in 1933 over his home course at Indian Spring and also was the winner last year at Rolling Foad where he defeated a representative field.

Greene had an easier time with Gene Bruning, of Hillendale, whom he defeated, 4 and 3, in the morning round, but hte Manor entry was extended to the utmost in disposing of Al Schauman, 1 up, in the afternoon play.

Other first round included.

Benson Ensor (Clifton-Mount Pleasant) defeated Carl Snook (Catoctin), 6 and 5.

S. S. Overton (Rolling Road) defeated Sam Rice (Indian Spring), 2 and 1.

V. G. Burnett (Indian Spring) defeated Tommy Webb (Columbia), 2 and 1.

Aces of Dixie Advance at Richmond

By Dillon Graham.

Associated Press Staff Writer.

RICHMOND, Va., June 20.—Sam Perry and Ewing Watkins, a long familiar pair of veterans, came battling through the dusk to furnish the drama to the opening rounds of the Southern Amateur gold championship today while Champion Fred Haas and Medalist Johnny Morris were surviving hard-fought duels.

Long after others had put away their putters and niblicks for the day, the stocky former champion from Birmingham, and Watkins, the lanky Chattanooga campaigner, who was a finalist fifteen years ago, came striding toward the eighteenth green, all even, after Perry had waged one of the finest recoveries the tournament has seen in years.

Out in 44, all his shots going awry and three down as he fated the back stretch—his hopes of a third title apparently blasted—Perry pulled his game together, fired an even par 36 home with a birdie four on the final hole to clinch victory.

Gains Quarter-Finals.

Even par for six holes had pulled him level again and another par brought him ahead, but his tee shot to the short seventeenth found a trap and he lost that. Then came the final challenge and he met it with two booming wood shots to the long par 5 green, got down in 2 and marched into the quarter-finals.

Morris, the Birmingham youngster, who won the medal, also had to call on all his nerve and resources in the second round to turn back the spirited bid of Earl Stokes, the Louisville boy who was runner-up two years ago, while Lewis Johnson, a Charleston youth, gave Haas a tight tussle.

Stokes had Morris 2 down through the fifth, but Johnny won three of the next four to turn 1 to the good. He increased his margin to 3 with pars on the tenth and eleventh, then saw his advantage fly away as trapped shots lost him three holes in a row. A brilliant spurt was in order and he furnished it with two birdies and a par to win 2 and 1.

Haas 1 Up at Turn.

So well did Johnson play that the champion could boast of only a 1-up lead at the turn, but Haas fired even par all the way home and the Carolinian couldn't quite match the pace, bowing, 3 and 2.

Four down through the first four holes and still 4 down at the fifteenth tee, Horace Williams, the Florida champion from St. Petersburg, carried Edwin McClure, the

Miss Wethered Bows In Golf Exhibition

Pittsburgh, June 20 (AP).—The home guards, Ray Babcock and Emil Loeffler, both of the Oakmont Country Club, today teamed to trounce Miss Joyce Wethered, English woman golf ace, and her partner, Johnny Dawson, of Chicago, 3 and 2.

Miss Wethered, who encountered two of Oakmont's noted traps, carded an 81. She played nip-and-tuck with the men except for the 7 strokes charged against her on the ninth hole.

Bonsoir Takes Charles Town Feature Race in Tricky Finish

Squeeze Gets Leaders by In Stretch

Postponement Crowded by Winner and Braw Scot.

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., June 20.—Bonsoir, considered the ace of the sprinters hereabouts, had young Cecil Coffman and some 19 pounds of lead in his saddle this afternoon and scored a thrilling victory in the $500 handicap, featuring "West Virginia Day," here in the mountains.

The finish was one of those which would have resulted in arguments galore and reams of sports stories had it occurred in a Kentucky Derby or a Preakness. The official placing gave Bonsoir a nose decision over Braw Scot with Postponement third, a length away. However, 20 yards from the wire the three horses were running lapped on one another and hardly a head separated them.

But for being squeezed in between Bonsoir and Braw Scot, Charley Jackson, the ancient colored rider, probably would have won the race on Postponement. Riding in his cowboy fashion, Jackson had started a drive between the leaders when Bonsoir bore to the outside and shut off Postponement. Jackson was forced to stand up in the stirrups and pull his mount out of the running.

Those who helped back Bonsoir into even money had some anxious moments until the "official" sign was displayed. The good natured Jackson made no complaints beyond shaking his head. The stewards, generally quick on the draw, probably considered the fact that Coffman, who weighs under 100 pounds, could not control the heavy headed Bonsoir. However, that didn't help backers of Postponement who found little consolation in that $7.60 show price, or those who bet on Braw Scot to win at 29-1.

Bonsoir and Postponement fought it out virtually from the flag fall of the 6½ furlongs contest. Braw Scot came from far back to enter contention at the head of the stretch where the real fun began.

"West Virginia Day" proved little different from any other day at this track although it added some 500 to the crowd. However, among the 4,000 present were the same old Washington faces.

Chart of Narragansett Races

Thursday, June 20, 1935.

(Copyright, 1935, by Daily Racing Form Publishing Co.)

WEATHER, DRIZZLING; TRACK, HEAVY.

FIRST RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:31. Off at 2:35. Winner, P. B. Codd's b. g. (3), by Tail Timber—Nabarama. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:25, 0:50, 1:03 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAMBO JONES, $24.60, $12.10, $6.90; ABSCONDER, $5.00, $3.80; ONUS, $3.90.

SAMBO JONES, in close quarters in the run through the back stretch, obtained clear sailing on the inside after rounding the far turn, moved up fast and came to the outside in the stretch, closing with a rush to wear down ABSCONDER. The latter showed good speed, withstood determined opposition from IRISH HERO, and just failed to withstand the winner. ONUS, restrained early, closed going gamely in the closing drive. SIR ROLLIE closed a big gap. IRISH HERO, hard ridden in an attempt to get to the front, weakened in the last three-sixteenths.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:05. Off at 3:06½. Winner, Jack Howard's ch. g. (3), by Cynic—Charladed. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:48 4-5, 1:16.

Horses	Wt.	Post	St.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight

ONWARD	107	9	6	9	9	9	8nk	Lynch	7.95
YANKEE PRINCE	109	6	2	4½	7d	8nk	9	Sage	28.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RED ENSIGN, $4.40, $3.30, $2.50; JOE MAC, $8.50, $4.90; BEFITTING, $3.20.

RED ENSIGN, handled in confident fashion, worked his way up steadily leaving the back stretch after racing on the outside down the back stretch, came through on the inside, saving many lengths at stretch head when the leaders went wide, and drew out steadily in the last sixteenth. JOE MAC, restrained early, worked his way to the outside gradually, came over to the rail after straightening out in the stretch, but was no match for the winner in the drive. BEFITTING went well placed all the way despite losing ground. ORIFICE was unable to reach the leaders.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:35. Off at 3:38½. Winner, A. G. Vanderbilt's ch. f. (3), by Infinite—Kay O. Trained by J. H. Stotler. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:16 3-5.

INDELIBLE	115	2	1	1½½	1h	1h	1½	Fallon	$0.75
CAPPOQUIN	105	7	2	6½	5d	2½½	2½½	Hayward	8.35

TEMPERATE	110	3	8	8	8	8	8	Fenlon	28.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—INDELIBLE, $3.50, $2.70, $2.50; CAPPOQUIN, $4.80, $3.40; SUN CLOTHING, $4.90.

INDELIBLE went to the front in the opening strides, drew away into a long lead but weakening inside the last furlong, was placed under punishment to hold CAPPOQUIN safe. The latter worked his way up gradually and closed with a rush in the stretch. SUN CLOTHING, outpaced early, came willingly in the stretch drive. HOT GRIDDLE was unable to reach the leaders. NERVY NELLA, hard ridden in the first three furlongs, tired thereafter. ROYAL LINEAGE moved up on the outside, followed the pace closest for the first half-mile, tiring thereafter.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:15. Off at 4:15. Winner, D. J. McAuliffe's br. g. (2), by Monks Way—Goodhart. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $900; second, $180; third, $85; fourth, $35. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:02 2-5.

HAROLD'S WAY	109	7	4	1½	1½	1nk	1nk	Stafford	$0.90
PRETTY PATRICIA	105	2	1	4d	2nk	2d	2½	Pasquma	4.40

BARNSLEY	112	5	5	5	5	5	4d	Laidley	13.10
BE JUST	103	1	2	3½	4d	4½	5	Knisley	18.75

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HAROLD'S WAY, $3.80, $2.60, $2.20; PRETTY PATRICIA, $3.70, $2.30; TREBOR, $2.30.

HAROLD'S WAY, hustled to the front at once, drew clear in the opening furlong, was rated along in front, and fought it out courageously with PRETTY PATRICIA the entire length of the stretch. PRETTY PATRICIA moved up steadily on the inside during the back stretch, fought it out with the winner, and just failed to get up. TREBOR, in closest attendance of the early pace, was unable to keep up in the closing five-sixteenths. BARNSLEY was never a factor.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:40. Off at 4:40½. Winner, J. D. Gratton's ch. f. (3), by Dunlin—Parade. Trained by W. Irvine. Value to winner, $900; second, $180; third, $85; fourth, $35. Time, 0:24, 0:48 2-5, 1:15 2-5.

PARADUN	104	3	4	2½½	2h	2d	1½	Howell	$4.20
ALBUQUERQUE	112	1	1	1h	1d	1½	2d	Corbett	1.20
FAKE	102	6	3	3h	3½½	3½½	3½	Hanford	2.30
DIGNITARY	112	2	2	4½	4d	4d	4h	Stout	20.85
METTLE	109	7	7	7½	6d	6d	5d	Pollard	33.15
TREASURY KEY	105	5	7	5½	6½	7h	6½½	Patsuma	20.90
ALWINTOUR	104	4	5	6d	5d	5d	7	Knisley	18.90

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PARADUN, $10.40, $4.10, $2.40; ALBUQUERQUE, $3.40, $2.30; FAKE, $2.30.

PARADUN followed in closest attendance of the pace established by ALBUQUERQUE, wore the latter down after passing the furlong pole, and drew out steadily for the remainder of the way. ALBUQUERQUE went to the front at once, drew clear in the first few strides and, rated along under slight restraint, was unable to cope with the bid of the winner through the stretch. FAKE, well placed all the way, continued with good energy to the end. DIGNITARY moved up gamely in the run through the back stretch though unable to improve his position.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 5:06. Off at 5:08½. Winner, J. U. Gratton's br. c. (4), by Abbots—Nymph Mantle. Trained by W. Irvine. Value to winner, $900; second, $180; third, $85; fourth, $35. Time, 0:25, 0:50 1-5, 1:18 4-5, 1:44 4-5, 1:50 1-5.

HONEY SWEET	117	1	1	1½	1½½	1h	1h	C. Hanford	$3.60
ALADDIN'S DREAM	113	5	6	6½½	7	5½½	4d	Fels	7.55
POPO	107	2	3	3d	3d	3d	3½	Stafford	9.95
POCKET	109	4	2	2½	2h	2½	4d	Sage	4.10
BIG SHOW	114	3	4	4½	4d	4½	5d	Fallon	19.00
MAD WIND	115	7	7	7	5½	6d	6d	Howell	8.35
ADOBE POST	115	8	5	5d	6d	7	7nk	Laidley	6.05

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HONEY SWEET, $8.00, $3.70, $2.80; ALADDIN'S DREAM, $4.10, $3.20; POPO, $4.10.

HONEY SWEET went to the front at once, drew clear and, straightened out on the back stretch while being rated along under slight restraint, just held on long enough to stave off ALLADDIN'S DREAM. The latter, slow to begin, began moving up faster reaching the far turn, came to the outside at the stretch head, then went to the inside after passing the furlong pole and, closing fast, would probably have been the winner in another stride. POPO, restrained in next to last attendance of the pace, held on willingly. POCKET followed the early pace closest.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:36. Off at 5:37. Winner, Miss A. Doris b. g. (4), by Sun Briar—On Top. Trained by H. L. Campbell. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $70; fourth, $30. Time, 0:25 1-5, 0:50 2-5, 1:16 3-5, 1:42 3-5, 1:57 3-5.

Horses	Wt.	Post	St.	½	¼	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockeys	Straight
TOP HIGH	113	1	3	2½	2½	1½	1½½	Howell	$2.80
MANTADOS	105	4	1	1½½	1h	2½	2½	Wall	2.25
TRICKLING	105	6	2	3nk	3d	3½½	3nk	Schutte	25.85
ZEMBLA	105	3	5	5	4½½	4d	4d	Stafford	4.85
MOMO	113	2	4	4½	5	5	5	Fallon	2.15

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TOP HIGH, $7.00, $3.40, $2.60; MANTADOS, $3.20, $2.70; TRICKLING, $4.50.

TOP HIGH, under stout restraint while following the pace of MANTADOS, took command in the stretch and drew out steadily in the closing furlong. MANTADOS, no match for the winner in the closing test. TRICKLING made a determined bid after passing the final-mile ground, moved up briefly, but was unable to reach the leaders. ZEMBLA ran far back.

Champion Eliminates Mrs. Mackenzie in Women's Tourney

Miss Faunce Nears New D. C. Title

To Play Miss Houghton 18 Holes Today for Decision.

MISS WINIFRED FAUNCE, of Manor, a swimming star before she took up the game of golf, moved a step nearer her second District women's golf championship yesterday at Indian Spring Country Club.

With the same steady playing that characterized her triumphant performances in last season's tournament, the smiling Manor miss beat off the gallant challenger, Mrs. Roland Mackenzie, of Congressional, winning 2 up, to enter the final round.

Her victory, not unexpected, qualified her for a shot at Miss Elizabeth Houghton, of Chevy Chase, who scored a distinct upset by turning back Mrs. Leo Walper, of Kenwood, medalist, 3 and 2.

Miss Faunce and Miss Houghton will meet this morning at 9:30 o'clock for 18 holes. The champion is the favorite.

Trouble on Eleventh.

Mrs. Mackenzie never led once, as the champion took the second hole with a par 4, went 2 up with another par 4 at the fourth, 3 up by capturing the seventh with a 7 after both knocked tee shots into the lake—Mrs. Mackenzie two of 'em—and 4 up by winning the ninth with a 4 to 5 as the Congressional golfer three-putted.

A dead approach gave Miss Faunce a par 4 and win on the tenth. Mrs. Mackenzie then braced, winning the eleventh by sinking a 12-footer for a par 4. Miss Faunce took the twelfth, thanks to a sweet four-iron third shot.

The match was dormie at the 14th. Not to be denied, Mrs. Mackenzie took the 14th with a par three, and the next two holes with par fives when Miss Faunce was guilty of three-putt greens. There was still life in the battle as far as Mrs. Mackenzie was concerned. She was only two down. On the 17th Miss Faunce was trapped on her tee shot and took a five, Mrs. Mackenzie, despite a missed spoon shot, got down in four for a win.

Both found the rough with their drives on the 18th. Miss Faunce reached the green comfortably in three and made her five. Mrs. Mackenzie blasted her chances by topping her third, and took a six. Miss Faunce shot an approximate 87. Mrs. Mackenzie had a pick-up on the seventh, but shot the last nine in 41.

Mrs. Walper took a two-hole lead on Miss Houghton by capturing the second and third. Traps proved costly to Miss Houghton. The Chevy Chase golfer came back to take the fourth with a five and the sixth with a par three. Mrs. Walper taking a five on the latter hole when her tee shot caught a trap.

Sinks 12-Footer.

Rolling in a 12-footer for a par four, Miss Houghton went one up at the 8th, and two up at the turn, winning the ninth with a four when Mrs. Walper was trapped on her tee shot.

They recovered nicely for their par fours on the 10th. They halved the 11th in fives. Miss Houghton became three up by annexing the 12th with a five to a six, and they halved the next two holes in par figures. Miss Houghton lost the 15th to par by making too bold an approach. The end came on the 16th, where Mrs. Walper encountered all sorts of trouble and took an eight. Miss Houghton won it with a six.

Mrs. Jack Scott, of Congressional, and Miss Ellen Kincaid, of Beaver Dam, reached the finals of the first flight consolations. Mrs. Scott shot a 43-39—82 to defeat Mrs. L. G. Pray, of Manor, 4 and 3, and Miss Kincaid put out Mrs. Harvey Cooper, of Manor, 3 and 2.

First Flight.

Consolation—Mrs. Jack Scott (Congressional) defeated Mrs. L. G. Pray (Manor), 4 and 3; Miss Ellen Kincaid (Beaver Dam) defeated Mrs. Harvey Cooper (Indian Spring), 3 and 2.

Second Flight.

Mrs. George Dillenbaugh (Indian Spring) defeated Mrs. J. W. Beller (Columbia), 3 and 2.

Third Flight.

Mrs. R. L. Ross (Chevy Chase) defeated Mrs. J. Powell (Manor), 4 and 3.

Consolation—Mrs. R. Thompson (Army-Navy) defeated Miss Florence Scott (Indian Spring), 1 up.

Fourth Flight.

Mrs. G. E. McGinty (Columbia) defeated Mrs. L. K. Rice (Manor), 1 up.

Fifth Flight.

Mrs. C. E. Purdy (Beaver Dam) defeated Mrs. J. H. Bullock (Indian Spring), 2 and 1.

Consolation—Mrs. L. H. Hedrick (Army-Navy), defeated Mrs. R. E. Kelly (Beaver Dam), 1 up.

Sixth Flight.

Mrs. C. D. Bills (Columbia) defeated Mrs. Lou Harris (Woodmont), 8 and 7.

Harvard and Yale In Old Race Today

President to See Son Pull Junior Crew Oar.

By the Associated Press.

New London, Conn., June 20.—All past signs of the season forgotten, the big eights of Harvard and Yale rested tonight for their seventy-third rowing engagement on the broad Thames tomorrow, while around them glistened again all the pageantry, all the color of the oldest sports event in American history.

The news that President Roosevelt would be here to see his son and namesake, strapping Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., pull a sweep in the junior varsity boat for the Crimson, provided the final touch that return of warm, sunny weather, after a week's absence, started.

Up the wide river sailed the advance guard of the annual yachting fleet today. By tomorrow morning, when the President is scheduled to arrive in time for the two-mile frashman race at 9 a. m. (Eastern standard time), fully 500 pleasure craft are expected to line the lower mile of the course.

Powell May Be Out of Game A Week

Sciatic Nerve Improves in Restless Night; Player Rarin' to Return.

By a Staff Correspondent.

CLEVELAND, June 20.—Jake Powell, rookie Washington outfielder who suffered a painful injury to the sciatic nerve in his right leg yesterday, may be able to depart with his teammates for Detroit tomorrow night.

Despite an unrestful night at Lakeside Hospital here, hospital doctors said that he will be permitted to leave his bed tomorrow. Unless there is a relapse, he will rejoin the club.

Powell suffered another spasm of the sciatic nerve this morning, but tonight he was reported resting comfortably. Doctors declared, however, that it may be more than a week before he is able to return to the line-up.

The young outfielder is not taking his confinement easily and has exacted from the doctors the promise that they will permit him to test his leg tomorrow.

Staunton Defeated Fifth Game in Row

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Staunton, Va., June 20.—Culpeper, leader in the Valley circuit, came through with a 10-hit attack here this afternoon and defeated Staunton, 9 to 2. It was Staunton's fifth loss in as many starts, and the locals are in the cellar.

Harris for Staunton and Brown of Culpeper made homers, but none was on base either time. Staunton's five errors contributed to Culpeper's victory, and made the game a sloppy affair. Hash, pitching for the victors, struck out seven, while Stephens fanned six.

Goodwin Pitches Front Royal to 6-1 Victory

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Orange, Va., June 20.—Coopy Goodwin's hitting and the seven-hit tossing of Cassell proved too much for Orange here today, Front Royal winning, 6-1.

The lone Orange run came in the second by virtue of Hall's single and long double to left by Lohr. Half of the visitor's runs were driven in by Goodwin, who had a perfect day, with four singles in succession and a walk. Hall led the Orange attack with two for three. Orange plays Culpeper at Orange Sunday at 3 p. m.

College Squads Run in Title Games

Trojans Reign Favorites; Owens Will Lead Ohio State Into Action.

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Calif., June 20.—On cinderpath and field tomorrow, 250 athletes from every section of the country will open an assault on times and distances expected to make the 1935 National Collegiate A. A. championships one of the greatest since the classic was founded.

The opening day of the fourteenth annual meet, bringing together the pick from more than 70 colleges and universities, will find a mighty Southern California Trojan squad favored to win.

Twenty-three Trojan aces, under the leadership of Coach Dean Cromwell, are the choice of virtually all observers to dominate the trials, just as was the case in the recent Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. championships and the West Coast relays.

Have Large Squad.

For Southern California it is expected to develop into another case of numerical superiority, plus secondary strength, the consensus being the Trojans can win the meet without taking a first place. Only Phil Cope and Roy Staley, both credited last Saturday with tying the 120-yard high hurdles record of 14.2, and Pole Vaulter Earle Meadows rate even chances to take first place in the early size-up.

On his seasonal performances, Owens will be favored to win the two sprints and the broad jump. Recently he tied the world's 100-yard-dash record and bettered the accepted marks in the 220-yard dash, low hurdles and broad jump. It was definitely decided today that he would compete in the low hurdles, an event that would pit him against the finest barrier artist of all time, Glen Hardin, of Louisiana State.

Hardin is the defending champion in this and the quarter-mile run, with a world's-record-shattering time of 22.4 seconds over the sticks, two-tenths of a second faster than Owens' best race.

Sox Split 2 Games With the Athletics

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 20.—The White Sox divided two overtime games with the Philadelphia Athletics today, taking the second, 2 to 1, in 12 innings on consecutive singles by Rip Radcliff, Jack Hayes and Mule Haas, after Jimmy Foxx's twelfth home run with Bob Johnson on base in the tenth inning had given the A's the opener, 5 to 3.

of Schulte's easy grounder, Bolton whacked a tremendous home run over the center-field screen to the disgust of 5,000 in the stands.

That was the way matters stood as the Indians went into the eighth, but with Whitehill still out there attempting to pitch, Cleveland's prospects for a happy conclusion were about as dark as Jean Harlow's locks at high noon under a glistening sun.

You know what happened then, and when Willis Hudlin disposed of the Nats one-two-three in the ninth, why, the team that had gone down three times had been able to come up only twice, with the usual disastrous consequences of such procedure.

Homers Aid Giants To Defeat Pirates

Terry, Moore Add Circuit Drives to Record.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 20.—With Manager Bill Terry and Joe Moore hitting homers to account for half of the runs, the New York Giants turned back the challenge of the Pittsburgh Pirates today as they won, 6 to 2, to increase their lead to six and one-half games.

Roy Parmelee, ranking National League hurler, was forced to give way to Al Smith in the fifth because of a strained back and although the Giants were in front at the time, credit for the victory went to Smith, who blanked the Pirates with two hits the remainder of the distance. At the same time the Giants got their revenge on Guy Bush, who beat the Terrymen with four hits on the Pirates last visit to the Polo Grounds.

Let's Go Fishing . . .

By M. W. Meier.

WE live and learn. Yesterday we said there was nothing doing on the Bay and the printer barely had set up our statement when reports began to trickle back of huge catches of croakers and weaks made late in the afternoon around the popular spots.

Nobody, however, seemed to have caught anything in the morning. The hardheads which were landed were reported to be the largest of the season. A few fair-sized weaks were reported among the catches.

From Tall Timbers comes a report of plenty of hardheads, fair-sized rocks and a few blues being caught. There are several schools of blues in that vicinity now, but until they finish spawning they probably won't strike.

Outlook Gets Better.

Fishing prospects grow better every day. From commercial fishermen operating just within the Capes come reports of huge schools of blues, channel bass and hordes of weaks moving in.

Bluefishing has taken a decided slump at Ocean City. The fish are there, but they won't strike. "Scotty," of the American Federation of Labor, spent the week-end over there with Fred Savage, jr. They were only able to land a huge string of sea bass, although they report other boats came in with good catches of weaks.

Dr. Perry Gard and a few friends tried out Wachapreague last week and caught plenty of big weaks and could have pulled in all the croakers they wanted.

An Expensive Perch.

To F. L. Fahy we are indebted for a story concerning what he contends is the most expensive fish ever landed.

Together with Philip M. Talbott, Douglas Janney, Dr. Manley Michaels, Frank Thompson, and their wives, the party spent the week-end with Capt. Bob Jones, of Colonial Beach. Fishing in the vicinity of Cobb Island and the mouth of the Potomac, the party of twelve finally managed to land one tiny perch which they estimated cost them about four dollars an ounce. Male members of the party contend their lack of success was due sheerly to the constant necessity of baiting their wive's hooks.

River Proving Fair.

Excellent rock fishing is now being reported from the neighborhood of the Chain Bridge. Slim Miller, using cut herring, caught a six-pounder yesterday afternoon and other anglers caught numerous smaller ones.

Cat fishing is excellent in the river. Black bass are being caught but not in large numbers and their size is disappointing.

Dodgers and Reds Halve Two Games

Pitching Duel in First Lasts 11 Innings.

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, June 20.—Two big innings broke up a pair of pitching duels today as Brooklyn and Cincinnati broke even in a doubleheader, the Reds winning the first, 6 to 1, in 11 innings, and the Dodgers the nightcap, 7 to 4.

For nine innings of the first encounter Tony Freitas and Tom Zachary pitched scoreless ball, the former holding the Dodgers to two hits. In the tenth both teams scored a run as Paul Derringer relieved Freitas after the latter had passed a man, but in the eleventh the Reds broke out with five runs, with Johnny Babich the victim.

Scalli Leads Circuit In Hitting With .520

Cumberland Md., June 20.—Arthur Scalli, hard-hitting outfielder of the Keyser Golden Knights, heads the Cumberland and Georges Creek League in batting with an average of .520; but only three points separate him and Eddie Diehl, catcher-shortstop of the Cumberland Colts, according to the official averages released by John J. ("Suds") Cavanaugh, secretary of the circuit.

The six leading hitters are:

Edinburg Climbs In County Loop

Forfeited Tilt Moves Team From Last to Second.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Woodstock, Va., June 20.—Edinburg jumped from the cellar position in the Shenandoah County League to second place today as a result of a game forfeited by the Strasburg nine. While league officials deny that the bitter game last Sunday at Strasburg in which much disputing and arguing with the umpire took place is the cause of the action taken by the Strasburg team, fans in this section can not see it that way and many believe that the feeling between the two teams following the Sunday game is the main reason that the teams did not play today.

President J. Grove Kniesley received a call at a late hour last night from the Strasburg management requesting that the game be postponed, but due to the fact that the game was advertised and officials named to officiate, the league's head refused to grant the post

Carnera-Louis Betting Is All Tangled

'Wise Money' May Rule Odds

Gamblers Hold Wagers Until the Last Moment.

By Bill McCormick.

WAGERING on the outcome of the fancy-pleasing Primo Carnera-Joe Louis heavyweight bout in New York next Tuesday offers almost as many angles as the fight itself.

At the present writing, for every dollar being bet on Louis, a buck can be found to say Carnera will win. Betting commissioners report the heaviest wagering recorded for any fight they can recall—and practically all bets made so far are "sentimental wagers," not from the checker-vested gentry who earn a livelihood laying odds that this mitten manipulator can outfumble that pug.

Louis ruled an early 8 to 5 favorite, but suddenly Carnera's cohorts dumped important money into the market, hammering the odds against the Glum Golem down to 6 to 5. Harlem is responding nobly to the challenge, and it is expected that the odds on Louis will zoom today and tomorrow.

Betting Battle Seen.

Along about Monday, or perhaps as late as the day of the fight, it is expected the sharpshooters will start a battle. New York interests closely allied to the Carnera management always wager heavily on the outcome of an important bout—usually knowing very well what they are doing. Their money almost always is held until the last minute so that the true odds will not become apparent too soon. It is entirely possible that their money will be laid on the line for Louis, in which case the Brown Bomber from Detroit will rule a heavy favorite at ring time.

Should the New York interests decide that Carnera is a better investment, a merry wagering war will ensue. Numerous potatoes at present are being held in abeyance in Chicago, Detroit and other cities where Louis is well known and liked. Some of these potatoes will be eked into the market gradually between now and Monday, and finally dumped into the commissioners at the last moment. Should the New York interests decide to absorb this outside money, the battlers probably will enter the ring at even money, which is what some of the betting commissioners are predicting.

If the important New York betting money is pitted against the important Chicago and Detroit shekels, the outcome of the bout may be greatly affected. Those in control of the New York money are very important in sub-rosa politics—and the racket world. If they have large sums invested in Carnera, they will do everything possible to see that the Ambling Alp is given all the breaks once the action starts. They may even attempt to put Louis "on the arm," which is a quaint gangsterese expression meaning they may threaten to exterminate him if he doesn't manage to let Ponderous Primo win.

Louis Not "Controlled."

Louis is not racket controlled, as has been claimed in some quarters, but his managers are in a position to make connections for their own protection. That these connections themselves would have considerable coin of the realm riding on Louis would make them more eager to protect the Black Blaster. Louis will not be put on the arm, and if the attempt is made to coerce him, he may call for protection from Midwestern gangsters. Then will there be fun!

The advance sales for the fight have been estimated at $150,000 presaging a sell-out gate of more than $450,000—more than twice as much as was drawn by the Braddock-Baer championship fight which was scaled higher.

Alexandria Nines Play On Road

St. Mary's Celtics Have Two Night Games; Eagles to Meet Elks.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., June 20.—Alexandria's outstanding baseball teams take to the road tomorrow. The Eagles encounter the Elks at Fredericksburg at 3 p. m. Fred Burrell will pitch against the Elks and either "Nubby" Schriener, or Hal Chilcotte will catch.

Theodore Beach, manager of the St. Mary's Celtics has arranged a trio of games over the week-end beginning Friday night. The Celts get their first taste of night baseball at Harrisonburg, the team will play the Valley nine at 8:30 p. m. Saturday night St. Mary's plays Richbrau in another night game. This game was supposed to have been played Saturday afternoon, but the Richbrau team asked to have the game played at night.

Russ Kidwell, manager of the Celts players, intends to use either Shout Taylor or Joe Garvey Friday night against Harrisonburg, Art Lacy Saturday night and Jimmy Titcomb Sunday afternoon. Bill Langford, leading hitter with the Celtics, is unable to make the trip because of business.

The Alexandria Elks have listed a pair of games for Saturday and Sunday afternoons at Baggetts. The Virginia Quick Steps tangle with the locals Saturday at 4:30 and Sunday the strong Aztecs come here for action.

Manager John Travers, of the Alexandria Eagles, wants a game for Sunday. Call Alexandria 510.

Brewers Win Flag In Industrial Loop

First-Half Pennant Cinched by Win Over Cafemen.

Heurich Brewers yesterday clinched the first-half championship in the Industrial League by defeating Gordon's Cafeteria, 4 to 3, on the East Ellipse.

The Brewers finished the circuit with a record of seven victories and two defeats, while the Cafemen have six victories and three defeats.

Frank Watt, the pitching policeman, who twice before this season has been thwarted by Gordon's men, turned in a good game, allowing seven hits and striking out six.

Gallico Says Louis Should Win, But—

knew that with his wrestler's muscles he would never be able to deal them out. And so he trained the big man to become a boxer to protect himself. Only when he is enraged and groggy does Primo sometimes forget his early training. They used to say that Primo never dared to let out his full strength and fury in the ring for fear of killing someone. Well, Tuesday night will be one night where he had better forget himself if he wants to survive.

Confidence Puzzling.

Frankly I have been puzzled at the confidence that has been characteristic of Carnera's camp. Surely they must know that Carnera has no damaging punch; that from his fight against Impellitiere he doesn't figure to whip a good aggressive middleweight, and that he is facing a two-handed poison himself. Perhaps the Carnera crowd know a way to silence both of Joe Louis' hands, for here is no case of stopping one best punch as the smart Braddock coaches figured on making Baer's right-hand punch useless. Louis' punches are all unhealthy. He whips rights and lefts to the body and they sink. He chucks them the same way to the chin, and something gives way.

No matter how hard I could hit and how fast and shifty I was, I still wouldn't like to face a berserk Carnera. If this mountain of a man ever really got the desire to kill in his breast they might have to call in the cops to get him off his prey—always provided that Louis didn't nail him as he charged. No matter whether he had any snap to his punches. If he hit often and continually any man would go down from the accumulative shock. They may believe in Carnera's camp that they can awaken him to such a fury and that it will sweep everything before it. It is about their only chance. If Primo tries to box Louis and keep him off, trying to tire him in clinches, everything will go on beautifully until Da Preem, who is not the greatest boxer in the world, makes a mistake. And from then on it will be a slaughter.

May Be His Turn.

I would like to see that big Italian blazing mad just once before he vanishes from the scene. It would probably scare me right under the ring, but it would be worth it. This may be it, this fight. It had better be.

This piece is being written from the lovely camp where Jim Braddock rehearsed to humiliate Max Baer. The New York Golden Gloves team is here now preparing to work a similar humiliation upon the visiting British Golden Gloves team. I will write about these kids tomorrow. The first time that amateur fighters have ever been away to an outdoor camp to train like their big professional brothers, and it is a riot.

AUCTION SALES

WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1935—
THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers.
1431 Eye Street Northwest.

Trustee's Sale of the Valuable Eight-Story and Basement Brick and Stucco Apartment House Known as "Corcoran Courts Apartments," Located at the Northeast Corner of 23rd and D Streets Northwest.

Because of default in the terms and conditions of, and by virtue of a certain deed of trust executed by Corcoran Courts Corporation, a Delaware corporation, dated July 1, 1925, recorded among the land records of the District of Columbia in Liber 5572, folio 63 et seq., and by leave of court in Equity Causes Nos. 50,717 and 53,025 in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, the undersigned substituted Trustee, by appointment of said court in said Equity Cause No. 53,025, will offer for sale at public auction in front of the premises on WEDNESDAY, JULY 10, 1935, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia: Lots numbered two (2) to ten (10), inclusive, in Emily Fuller's subdivision of lots in square numbered sixty (60), as per plat recorded in the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber H. D. C. at folio 40, being known as premises situate at the northeast corner of Twenty-third and D streets northwest, Washington, D. C. Together with all and singular the screens, curtains, fixtures, window shades, ice boxes, ranges, stoves, furnaces, boilers, engines, dynamos, machinery, elevators and electric equipment, vacuum cleaners, mail chutes, refrigerating, heating, ventilating, telephone, gas and electric fixtures and fittings, and other fittings, fixtures and personal property thereon which said trustee is authorized by said deed of trust to sell and convey.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash on or before the 10th day of August, 1935, balance in two equal installments, payable on or before one and two years from date of sale, respectively, with interest thereon at the rate of six per centum per annum from day of sale, said interest payable semiannually, and to be secured by first deed of trust on the property sold, or all cash at the option of the purchaser. The said trustee will receive no bid from anyone offering to bid who shall not at or before the hour of sale, or any adjournment thereof, deposit with said trustee, as a pledge that such bidder will make good his bid in case of its acceptance, a deposit of $15,000, either in cash or certified check on a local bank or trust company, made or indorsed payable to the undersigned trustee, or in lieu thereof bonds of the par value of $30,000, in form transferable by delivery, secured by said deed of trust, said bonds to have all unpaid coupons attached thereto. The deposit of any unsuccessful bidder will be returned to him immediately after the sale. In case any successful bidder shall fail to complete his purchase by August 10, 1935, in accordance with the said terms of sale, said deposit may be forfeited at the option of the said trustee, or without forfeiting the deposit said trustee may avail itself of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser. The said trustee reserves the right to reject any and all bids and withdraw the property from sale. Adjustments with respect to taxes, assessments, insurance, rents, income from operation of property, interest and all other adjustments shall be made as of the date of sale. Said property is now in possession of and is being operated by Morris Cafritz, as receiver, appointed in said Equity Cause No. 50,717, but by order of court entered in said cause on or about June 10, 1935, said receiver has been directed to deliver possession of said property to the purchaser at said sale upon transfer of title from said trustee to said purchaser, and from date of sale to date of transfer, said receiver will manage and operate said property as agent of the purchaser. The trustee will not be responsible for any bills or expenses incurred in the management or operation of said property. All expense of conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., is to be at the cost of the purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with on or before August 10, 1935; otherwise the said trustee reserves the right to forfeit said deposit or to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser upon the foregoing terms, after seven days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

Stocks Recover After Opening Selling Wave

Utilities, Tobaccos and Oil Shares Resist General Pressure.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 20.—The stock market had to absorb considerable selling in the early hours today, but a quiet recovery was under way before the close which partially erased early losses in many issues.

President Roosevelt's wealth decentralization plan through increased taxation made rather cheerless reading to some Wall street eyes and the market had to contend with the usual "corrective" reaction which follows a sustained upturn, in the opinion of many market observers.

Despite the morning selling wave the turnover in the Stock Exchange was considerably smaller than in the previous session, dropping below the million-share mark at 994,000 shares. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks ended .3 of a point lower at 43.7.

Declining tendencies in the stock list, while fairly general, were better resisted in some sections, notably the utilities, tobaccos and many of the oils, while some of the weaker spots were found in the high-priced favorites of recent sessions such as American Can, Allied Chemical, Columbian Carbon, Ingersoll Rand, Eastman, Hazel-Atlas, Owens Illinois and Union Pacific, where losses ranged from 1 to around 3 points.

Grains Lifted By Cloudbursts

Prices Rise on Reports of Damage in Harvest Areas.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 20.—Stimulated by Kansas and Oklahoma reports of cloudbursts in wheat harvest areas, the grain markets all scored price advances late today, overcoming earlier sharp setbacks.

Predictions were current that as a result of crop damage to winter wheat, the United States 1935 total wheat yield will be less than was indicated by June 1 estimates. Talk was also heard that owing to excessive rain, the leading corn States would suffer a considerable reduction of acreage.

Despite establishing today new low-price records for the season, wheat closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to 1 cent higher, July 80⅜-80½, corn ½-⅝, up, July 81⅞-82, oats ¾-⅞ advanced, and provisions varying from 15 cents decline to 5 cents gain.

Rallies in prices lifted wheat and corn late in the day to more than 2 cents a bushel over early bottom levels. A broader volume of trade was noted than has recently been the rule.

Bank of France Cuts Rate From 6% to 5

By the Associated Press.

Paris, June 20.—The Bank of France today started to relieve the tight money market by reducing its discount rate from 6 per cent to 5 per cent. In its fight against speculation, the bank increased its rate three times late in May, keeping the high rate for three weeks during the fall of two cabinets and the raid on reserve gold which saw withdrawals of 1,054,000,000 francs in gold in a week.

Phones Regain 18% of Losses In Depression

Bell System Reports for April Largest Rise Since 1933.

New York, June 20.—Through successive monthly gains in service connections the telephone business appears to be setting the stage for a fairly impressive earnings expansion over the longer term, says the Standard Statistics Co., in a current survey of the industry.

The April net gain for the Bell system, 49,000 new telephones installed, was the largest for any single month since the beginning of the upturn in 1933. During the four months ended April 30, 1935, a net increase of 161,000 instruments was recorded. This compares with 157,000 instruments gained during the corresponding portion of 1934 and a total gain of 298,000 instruments for the full year 1934.

Up to the present, therefore, the Bell system has regained about 18 per cent of the stations lost during the depression, and the experience of independent companies has been essentially similar.

From an earnings standpoint, the recovery to date has been less impressive. First quarter operating revenues of Bell system companies were up only 2 per cent as compared with the similar 1934 quarter, judging from a summation of the monthly Federal Communications Commission returns of its ten most important operating units. The upturn, however, was more pronounced in some sections than in others and recovery in operating income for the same period was by no means general.

Market Moves Of the Day Seen In Brief Review

	Thurs.	Wed.
Advances	169	189
Declines	376	417
Unchanged	158	160
Total issues	703	766

Stocks—After a selling wave on the President's wealth tax suggestions the market scored a moderate recovery. Closing averages were slightly lower, nevertheless. Transactions fell off to 994,020 shares.

Bonds—Announcement of the coming Treasury offer of $100,000,000 in 3s caused heavy selling of Federal issues with general declines. In a total turnover of $20,194,000 Governments accounted for $9,730,000.

Curb—A rally followed substantial setbacks at the opening and most of the closings showed small net gains. Trading dropped to 165,000 shares.

Grains—Reports that cloudbursts had materially damaged crops in the wheat harvest area led to advances in all grains. July wheat last at 80⅝, July corn 81⅛.

Cotton—Opening declines were followed by a rally on covering and trade buying which resulted in net gains of 5 to 9 points. July closed at 11.57, up 5.

Sugar—Raw sugar was steady at 3.28. Refined closed at 5.25 for the fine granulated, unchanged.

Coffee—Spot coffee was steady. Rio No. 7 sold last at 6¾ and Santos No. 4 at 8.

Bar Silver—Unchanged in New York at 72 cents per ounce. London prices were up ⅛d to 32 and 5-16 pence (71.81 cents).

Commercial Building Trebles in Volume

New York, June 20 (AP). — Commercial building throughout the United States for the first 18 days of June totaled about $9,481,000, says the Engineering News-Record.

This compares with $3,248,000 in the like period in 1934, an increase of more than 190 per cent.

May Treasury Purchases.

Net market purchases of Government securities for Treasury investment accounts for May amounted to $23,326,525, Secretary Morgenthau announced yesterday.

President's Tax Proposals Affect Relative Future Status of Stocks of Large Corporations, Lately Strongly Favored by Buyers of Securities.

By a Special Correspondent.

New York, June 20.—Stockholders of large industrial corporations are given several reasons for special uneasiness by the proposals both for immediate and ultimate changes in our tax laws contained in President Roosevelt's "share the wealth" message to Congress.

This message may play an important part in checking or even reversing the recent tendency of investors and speculators to favor securities of large enterprises. Such issues as American Can, Eastman Kodak, Allied Chemical, Woolworth and du Pont have latterly enjoyed spectacular advances into new high ground for recent years. This rise reflected the widespread belief that enterprises of such caliber would lead in the recovery in corporate earning power that would come with better business, and that they were in an especially favorable position to benefit from the relaxation of restrictions expected as a sequel of the Supreme Court's decision in the Schechter case.

Adoption of the proposal to levy a maximum corporation income tax of 16¾ per cent, instead of the present flat rate of 13¾ per cent would alone make a substantial difference to large corporate enterprises. It means an increase of approximately 22 per cent in Federal incomes taxes. Thus, American Can in 1934 would have had to pay about $800,000 more to the Federal Treasury, which would have meant about 35 cents a share off its earnings. Allied Chemical & Dye would have had to pay about $550,000 more in Federal income taxes, the 1934 statement indicates, which would have meant more than 20 cents per share of common stock.

Taxes on Surplus Hit Large Enterprises.

Such an increase in taxes alone, however, would not be a crucial factor determining stock price movements in most cases. However, this proposal is only part of a series of measures designed to impose special fiscal burdens on large, as against small, enterprises. Already, under section 102 of the revenue act of 1934, the Treasury Department may levy a special tax on earnings over and above dividends paid out by a corporation, where this surplus is held to be retained to an unreasonable degree within the business. The tax amounts to 25 per cent of the first $100,000 so retained, and 35 per cent on further surplus earnings above $100,000. While this tax has not been in force long enough to indicate how broadly it will be applied, the Bureau of Internal Revenue has displayed a desire to increase Treasury revenues wherever the letter of the law makes this at all possible.

Now the President in his special message on taxation has indicated that he wishes to proceed further with legislation aimed against large corporate surpluses. Such large surpluses are typical of leading corporate enterprises, which use such surplus accounts to buttress their stability and financial strength. The suggestion to "discourage unwieldly and unnecessary corporate surpluses" will thus tend to affect mostly corporations of great size. The same applies to the other long-range suggestion for "the elimination of unnecessary holding companies in all lines of business."

Raises Question of Large Versus Small Units.

Large corporations have usually been able to obtain greatest advantage from their size in periods of expanding business, or when the particular industry in which they operated enjoyed a period of prosperity of its own. This is because at such times there is need for a maximum volume of output, and the highly-mechanized concern with extensive plant facilities can enjoy the benefits of large-scale production and distribution to the full. On the other hand, in times of depression and a low rate of business activity, heavy overhead costs and a hugs fixed investment tend to place the large enterprise at a relative disadvantage.

Hence, with business recovery from the low levels of the depression definitely under way, and with easy money conditions promising further substantial recovery over a period of time, interest has centered on stocks of the leading industrial companies. Their status has been further strengthened in many cases by abandonment of the NRA codes and the clouded judicial status of the Wagner labor disputes and the social security acts. However, with the announcement of the intention of the Federal Government to discriminate against large enterprises on acconut of their size in its tax program, a new and adverse element has been introduced into the situation.

President Roosevelt apparently seeks to return to the "trust busting" programs of the first Roosevelt, but through the device of punitive taxation rather than drastic anti-trust law enforcement. The Supreme Court, in the United States Steel Corporation decision in 1920, held that the use made of its power, rather than mere size of itself, determined the status of large corporations under the antitrust laws. Progressive taxation based on mere corporate size would ignore the efficiency and other basic advantages the large enterprise may give, and seeks to make it pay for the privilege of retaining its size alone.

U. S. Store of Gold Continues Climb To New High Level

By the Associated Press.

Monetary gold stock of the United States mounted to new high levels during the week ending June 19. The weekly condition statement of the Federal Reserve Bank disclosed an upturn of $73,000,000 in the period, raising total stocks to $9,089,000,000. The sum is $9,000,000 more than shown by the Treasury's last statement and $1,254,000,000 greater than last year.

A transfer of deposits reduced member bank reserve balances $53,000,000 during the week, which was reflected by a rise of $93,000,000 in non-member deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts.

May Life Sales In Washington Lead Country

Total $5,161,000, a Gain 30 Per Cent Over Like 1934 Month.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

Life insurance sales in the District of Columbia during May as well as during the initial five months of 1935 lead the Nation, the Life Insurance Research Bureau in Hartford, Conn., reported yesterday.

With the average sales in the entire United States off 15 per cent from the total during May of 1934, Washington turned in the top gain of 30 per cent during May this year. In the initial five months of the year, the entire country gained 3 per cent over last year's total. During the same period the value of life policies contracted for locally rose 31 per cent.

Policies sold here during May totaled $5,161,000, it was reported, with 74 per cent of all companies operating scoring gains over the previous month. No other State on the Atlantic seaboard or east of Iowa reported a gain during the month.

90 Per Cent Complete.

In the Nation-wide survey, compiled from statistics submitted by companies carrying 90 per cent of the legal reserve ordinary life insurance, sales during the first five months of 1935 were 5 per cent higher than in the corresponding 1934 period. During May $500,380,000 in life protection was sold while 43 per cent of all companies showed gains.

Improved business conditions in the Far Western States were indicated by the fact that the three States placing next to the District in gains were Arizona, Nevada and New Mexico. Arizona sales were 22 per cent above the same 1934 month. Nevada gained 13 per cent and New Mexico increased output by 9 per cent.

The largest companies, comprising the group having more than $400,000,000 in policies actually in force reported the greatest percentage gain during the first five months. During May, however, the companies falling in the classification of $150,000,000 or below in force scored the greatest increase.

Virginia Bankers Meet.

Carrol Pierce, president and trust officer of the Citizens National Bank of Alexandria, presided at the opening session of the Virginia bankers convention in Hot Springs, Va., yesterday. He has been president of the group during the past year.

A record gathering of Virginia bankers attended the opening meeting, which was begun by presentation of the annual report by Pierce. Robert V. Fleming, scheduled as one of the speakers before the banking body, was detained here by a A. B. A. conference yesterday, but will make his address later in the week.

Administration of trust estates, as during recent meeting at Hot Springs of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, was accorded the major part of the program. Henry E. Sargent, secretary of the trust branch of the A. B. A., discussed current opportunities in the trust field, while Richard Stockton, vice president of the Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. of Winston-Salem, spoke on trust management.

Chile Bond Holders Form Committee

New York, June 20.—Announcement is made of the formation of a committee to protect the interests of American holders of Chilean dollar bonds of which about $300,000,000 worth are held by American investors.

Dividend Declared.

By the Associated Press.

National Biscuit Co. has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 40 cents on the common stock, payable October 15 to stock of record September 13.

Continental Oil Co. of Delaware has declared a dividend of 25 cents on the capital stock payable July 31 to stock of record July 2. On April 30, 1935, a payment of 12½ cents was made.

Austin Nichols & Co. Inc. has declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents on the prior Class "A" stock payable August 1 to stock of record July 15. Regular quarterly dividends of $1.25 were paid in four previous quarters.

Cleveland Union Stock Yards has declared a quarterly dividend of 12½ cents on the capital stock payable July 15 to stock of record June 21. In the two preceding quarters dividends of 25 cents were paid.

Investors Realty Corporation has declared a dividend of 7½ cents on Class A common stock payable July 10 to stockholders of record June 15. An initial dividend of 7½ cents was paid April 10.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London—Trading was generally quiet on the stock exchange today. Gilt-edged securities, oils, rubbers and home industrials were easier while home rails moved irregularly. Overseas rails were supported although other transatlantic shares were weaker, the latter being affected by the new American taxation proposals. The market closed easier.

Paris—With rentes gaining fractionally, trading on the bourse remained calm today. International issues advanced slightly, while French industrials held firm with Citroen shares advancing several points. Metal shares declined fractionally and the market closed irregular.

Berlin—Only a small business was transacted on the boerse today, prices being weak throughout.

Hogs, Cattle, Sheep, 25% Farm Income

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, June 20.—Hogs, cattle and sheep earned for the farmer almost 25 per cent of his 1934 income, R. C. Pollock, general manager of the National Livestock and Meat Board, said today. He added that last year 85,000,000 head of cattle, the greatest meat supply of any year in history, went to market to be converted into 20,000,000,000 pounds of hams, sausage, steaks, chops and roasts.

Major Indices Show Business Tilting Upward

Two Ahead of Last Year, Two Are Even and One Is Lower.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 20.—Evidence that the Nation will be further along the road to economic recovery at mid-1935 than a year ago continued to roll in today as preliminary reports were released by business and financial authorities.

In one compilation, two of five major indices for the first six months of this year were ahead of last year, two others were about even, and only one showed a wide loss from 1934.

With partial estimates for the remainder of the first half of this year by Standard Statistics Co., automobile production led the parade with 2,249,400 units produced this year against 1,714,400 turned out in the like period of 1934, the best first half showing since 1929.

Electric power production stood high with an output this year of 47,424,000,000 kilowatt hours compared with 45,103,000,000 up to July 1, 1934.

Consumption of cotton for the first half of this year and last about balanced at 2,838,000 and 2,925,400 bales, respectively, while freight car loadings for the same periods were close at 15,200,000 and 15,434,000, respectively.

Steel production lagged. Standard estimated a 1935 first-half production of 15,750,000 tons compared with 16,182,000 in the first six months of last year.

On the financial side an even brighter picture was shown by the Associated Press statistics. The average price for 60 stocks, as compiled by the Associated Press, stood yesterday at 44 against 43.5 a year ago with rails and utilities showing losses, but with industrial shares much higher than a year ago.

Bank Clearings Rise 5.7 Per Cent

Income Tax Payments Aid in Swelling Total.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 20.—Bank clearings were higher last week, due in large part to the gains at some of the leading Western and Southern centers. The total for the 22 leading cities in the United States for the week ended Wednesday, June 19, as reported by Dun & Bradstret, was $5,899,502,000, against $5,583,962,000 for the same week of last year, an increase of 5.7 per cent.

This contrasted with a gain of 3.9 per cent for the preceding week. At New York City, clearings were $4,012,796,000, an increase of 3.5 per cent over the amount reported last year, while the aggregate for centers outside of New York of $1,886,706,000 was 10.6 per cent higher. Heavy income tax payments swelled the volume both this year and last.

Trading in Tallow To Start Next Week

New York, June 20, (AP).—Inauguration of futures trading in tallow June 26 on the New York Produce Exchange was announced today by Robert W. Capps, exchange president.

The futures contract calls for one tank car of 60,000 pounds of tallow entirely of animal fat, untreated and unbleached and of good merchantable quality. Prices are to be quoted in 1-100 of a cent a pound, equivalent to $6 a point per contract.

Southern Pacific Co. Cuts Loans $5,000,000

New York, June 20, (AP).—Southern Pacific Co. has reduced its bank loans by $5,000,000 since the first of the year, it was announced today.

This reduces the aggregate of this debt to $16,500,000.

U. S. Treasury Receipts.

By the Associated Press.

The position of the Treasury on June 18 was:

Receipts, $40,853,655.93; expenditures, $50,575,382.34; balance, $1,864,196,646.93; customs receipts for the month, $17,260,819.42.

Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1) $3,669,241,194.73; expenditures, $7,588,598,600.38 (including $3,477,155,490.02 of emergency expenditures); excess of expenditures, $3,387,357,414.65; gross debt, $28,655,040,931.03; a decrease of $10,987,534.25 under the previous day; gold assets, $9,090,795,780.34.

Brokers' Loans Decline.

Loans on securities to brokers and dealers held by weekly reporting member banks in New York City amounted to $858,000,000 during the week ended June 19, representing a decrease of $6,000,000 for the week.

Federal Issues Pressed Down In Heavy Sales

Next Week's Offerings of Treasury 3s Upsets Bond Market.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 20.—Selling in U. S. Government securities today had an unsettling effect on the bond market. Due to a turnover in the Federal section of some $9,730,000, total transfers for the day stepped up to $20,194,000, par value. The Associated Press averages of the rails and industrials were down .2 and .3, respectively, but the composite of the utilities managed to emerge with a gain of .2 of a point.

Traders and investors seemed a little uncertain as to how to interpret President Roosevelt's new share-the-wealth tax program and the result was that some selling took place on the theory that higher corporation taxes would not be so bullish for listed loans generally.

The majority of Federal issues lost from 1-32d to 8-32ds of a point following the announcement of Secretary Morgenthau that on next Monday he would offer some $100,000,000 of 3 per cent Treasuries to the highest bidders. The 3s of 1946-48 suffered the largest decline of the Government group.

The principal victim of the day was the New Haven issue of Consolidated 4s of 1956. Two of these bonds changed hands for the first time this year in the listed market at a decline of 30 points to 22.

Cotton Rallies After Decline

Covering and Buying by Trade Advance Prices 5 to 9 Points.

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 20.—Opening declines in cotton were followed by rallies today on trade buying and covering, with the market closing steady at net advances of 5 to 9 points.

There was liquidation and scattered selling at the start in response to easy Liverpool cables, reports of favorable weather in the South and talk of possible increased domestic mill curtailment. Active months rallied 15 or 18 points from the lowest and closed at nearly the best of the day.

The early action of stocks following overnight reports regarding the new tax proposals in Washington was considered a contributing factor in the early decline, while the recovery was encouraged by later rallies in securities and the firmness in wheat.

Rally Follows Curb Set-Back

By the Associated Press.

New York, June 20.—The curb market rallied today following a rather substantial set-back at the opening. Initial losses of fractions to around a point were replaced by small net gains in a number of instances. Transfers dwindled to 163,000 shares compared with 296,000 yesterday.

Pan American Airways finished nearly 3 points higher, while Lake Shore edged up a point. Slight improvement was registered by International Petroleum, Creole Petroleum, Sunshine Mining and Swift Internacional.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass was conspicuously weak, yielding 6⅜ to close at 60. Aluminum Co. of America and Gulf Oil dipped around a point each. Among utilities, American Gas & Electric eased, while Electric Bond & Share and Niagara Hudson Power were steady.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

The lowering of the Bank of France rate to 5 per cent from 6 per cent was calmly received in world exchange centers yesterday, where the action was not unexpected in view of the better tone of the French franc in recent sessions.

In Paris the dollar was slightly lower at the equivalent of 6.616 cents to the franc, compared with an overnight New York rate of 6.6073 cents, while in later dealings in the American market the French unit advanced .00¼ of a cent at 6.61⅛ cents.

The dollar was firm in London at 4.83 4-16 to the pound sterling, while in subsequent New York trading the pound lost ⅛ of a cent at 4.83⅜.

Swiss francs gained slightly in the New York market at 32.72 cents, up .03 of a cent, but guilders were off .01 of a cent at 68.00 cents and the belga held even at 16.92 cents.

By H. I. Phillips

The Garble Sisters on the "Alabama" Pitts Case.

"Well, I see where Zasu Pitts has been allowed to play professional baseball despite a five-year term in Hollywood."

"Not Zasu Pitts. It was some fellow called Oklahoma Pitts, I think."

"What was it all about anyhow?"

"Pitts had an eight-year sentence called on account of darkness and wanted to join the Albany Baseball Club."

"Well, why did anybody object?"

"They thought it would be a bad influence on the other eight players to know that a new member had promised never to do anything wrong again. The case went to the Supreme Court where Judge Landis handed down a decision holding that every encouragement should be given to the idea that entering professional baseball constituted the beginning of a better life."

* * * *

"Is Pitts a good player?"

"Well, he struck out the entire National Association of Minor League Executives."

"I didn't know he was a pitcher."

"The way it turned out, he certainly was no catcher."

* * * *

"What did Pitts do that got him in prison? It's awfully hard to get in these days, so he must have shown unusual talent."

"He robbed a store and got $76 from the cash register back in 1929."

"Was that considered good in those days?"

"No. You wouldn't even run it out in those days, but anybody who could find $76 in a cash register today would be considered qualified in any line of endeavor."

"Did Pitts have a gun?"

"Yes, but that was excusable. At that time he didn't realize what he could do with a bat."

* * * *

"What did Judge Landis say in allowing them to sign waivers on Pitts and let Albany take him?"

"He said he thought the young man was entitled to a break."

"Will he get it in baseball?"

"Only up to the time he strikes out with the bases full, I guess."

"What became of that other fellow who wanted a break in baseball?"

"You mean Babe Ruth?"

"Yeah. He used to play with Boston or Philadelphia or some club."

"Oh, I dunno. I guess that despite all he did to those pitchers he still ain't penitent.

Minority Chant.

The Eagle's dead—
The Deal's a fizzle,
Hasten, brothers,
Let us chisel!
—R. W. Rogers.

Well, Tom Mooney has been granted another hearing and there may or may not be something in the rumor that what he seeks is a job in professional baseball.

"Alabama's" Version.

Now I am out, I am free, I am set!
Mine be the life without flaws;
This is the play I can never forget—
"Evers to Landis to Lawes!"

Elmer Twitchell thinks "Alabama" Pitts will never be good as a base runner. "He will always have in mind his promise to Warden Lawes never to steal again," says Elmer.

Robbed! Oh I knew when we saw Ollie and Gus tearing away from here in that taxi, loaded down with baggage that.....here's Peggy.
My stars! You folks look excited.
Reg. U.S. Pat. Off. 6-21
Peggy, your Aunt Ollie and Uncle Gus. They're gone with...
I had some excitement, too. Hartford has been telling me about this Count Salamander. He's a munitions mogul. Just waving his hand starts a war in Europe.
What's that, a munitions mogul.... in a hall room?
He does very odd things. You heard him tell Hartford he was not Count...
Yes, I heard that too. A munitions mogul. Hmm!
Oh Peggy, at a time like this, when your Aunt and Uncle have just skipped out with a lot of our things, why argue about this drivel?
Oh but mother, it isn't drivel. I'm sure...

Bailey Alart Ill; Ford Takes Baton

Associate Will Direct Sylvan Theater Program.

An attack of appendicitis has compelled Bailey F. Alart, conductor of the Community Center Civic Symphony Orchestra, to transfer the baton to his associate conductor, Samuel P. Ford, for the concert to be given by the organization on Monday night at the Sylvan Theater in conjunction with the performance of three short plays by the Washington Community Players.

It is expected that some 40 of the orchestra's personnel will play under Mr. Ford's leadership. The program will include "Old Folks at Home and in Foreign Lands" (Foster-Roberts), selections from Victor Herbert's light operas, Drigo's "Valse Bluette," Lincke's "The Glow Worm" and "The Desert Song."

Following the concert, which will begin at 8 o'clock, the Community Players will present "Moon Maiden," an adaptation of Ernest Dowson's "Pierrot of the Minute"; "The Gods of the Mountain" by Lord Dunsany (Edward Plunkett), and "Helena's Husband" by Philip Moeller. More than 50 players will take part. The technical staff includes Louis Noreteau, Harold Snyder and Howard Whitfield.
